Babu Shri Bahadur Singhji Singhi

My dear, sincere, and noble friend, Babu Shri BAHADUR SINGHI SINGHI, who, under my special inspiration, had founded this SINGHI JAIN SERIES in 1931, in sacred memory of his saintly father, Babu Shri DALCHANDJI SINGHI and realizing whose uncommon devotion to the cause of learning as well as his ideal munificence, I also dedicated with my heart the dynamic and the precious portion of my remaining life to the Series, seeing whose fairly satisfactory and prompting progress in course of last twelve years who had, to find it in more advancing and comprehensive form in future, cherished an intense desire which resulted in associating the Series with the BHARATIYA VIDYA BHAVAN, according to a scheme outlined by me in the latest works published last year in it, is now no more to see the publication of this work! Full one year has now passed since the sad demise of that noble man. This is the first work of the SERIES that is being published after he departed from amongst us. In his revered memory, I am penning few lines here.

ON THE 7TH OF JULY, last year (1944) Babu Shri BAHADUR SINGHI SINGHI left his mortal coils at the comparatively early age of fiftynine. His loss has been widely felt. His aged mother received this rude shock so ill that she did not long outlive him. His worthy sons have lost an affectionate and noble father, the industrialists and businessmen of the country one of their pioneers, the large number of his employees a benevolent master, scholarship one of its best patrons and the poor people of his native district a most generous donor. To me his loss is personal. My contact with him was a turning point in my life. Whatever I have been able, during the past fifteen years, to achieve in the field of scholarship is due directly to him. The financial assistance with which he backed up my activities was the least of his contributions. But for his love of scholarship with which he inspired me, this chapter of my life would have been entirely different.

* सं. रा.

Babu Shri BAHADUR SINGHI SINGHI was born in Azimganj, Murshidabad, in Vikram Samvat 1941, in the ancient family of the Singhis, who were of old the treasurers of the Mughal emperors. The family had passed through many vicissitudes of fortune and in the 17th century it migrated from Rajputana to Bengal, but thanks to the energy and enterprise of Singhi's father, Babu Shri DALCHANDJI SINGHI, the family firm became a very flourishing concern.

Babu Dalchandji Singhi, was born in Azimganj (Murshidabad) in the Vikrama Samvat 1921 (1865 A. D.), and died in Calcutta on the 30th December, 1927. Owing to financial difficulties, Dalchandji Singhi had abruptly to cut short his educational career and join the family business at the early age of 14. The family had been carrying on business in the name of Messrs Hurisingh Nehalchand for a long time though, in those days, it was not at all a prominent firm. But having taken the reins of the firm in his own hands, Babu Dalchandji developed it on a very large scale; and it was mainly through his business acumen, industry, perseverance and honesty that this comparatively unknown firm of "Hurisingh Nehalchand" came to be reckoned as the foremost jute concern with branches in almost all the important jute centres of Bengal. The fruits of Dalchandji Singhi's toils were immense, and the reputation of the firm in commercial circles was, indeed, unique.

Having thus brought his jute business to the most flourishing condition, Babu Dalchandji Singhi diverted his attention to the mineral resources of India and spent many lacs of rupees in prospecting the coal fields of Korea State (C. P.), limestone deposits of Sakti State and Akaltara, and the bauxite deposits of Belgaum and Sawantwadi and Ichalkaranji States. His scheme for the Hiranyakeshi Hydro-Electric Project and manufacture of aluminium from bauxite ores, the first of its kind in India, is yet to be developed. His mining firm, Messrs Dalchand Bahadur Singh is reputed to be one of the foremost colliery proprietors in India. While so engaged in manifold business, he also acquired and possessed vast Zamindari estates spreading over the districts of 24-Perganas, Rangpur, Purnea, Maldah, etc.

But the fame of Babu Dalchandji Singhi was not confined to his unique position in commercial circles. He was equally well-known for his liberality and large-heartedness, though he always fought shy of publicity attached to charitable acts and often remained anonymous while feeding the needy and patronizing the poor. A few instances of his liberality are given below.

When Mahatma Gandhi personally visited his place in 1926, for a contribution to the Chittaranjan Seva Sadan, Babu Dalchandji Singhi gladly handed over to him a purse of Rs. 10,000.

His War contribution in the first world-war consisted in his purchasing War Bonds to the value of Rs. 3,00,000; and his contribution at the Red Cross Sales, held in March 1917, under the patronage of H. E. Lord Carmichael on Government House grounds, Calcutta, amounted to approximately Rs. 21,000, in which he paid Rs. 10,000 for one bale of jute which he had himself contributed. His anonymous donations are stated to have amounted to many lacs.

In his private life Babu Dalchandji Singhi was a man of extremely simple and unostentatious habits. Plain living and high thinking was his ideal. Although he had been denied a long academic career, his knowledge, erudition and intellectual endowments were of a very high order, indeed. His private studies were vast and constant. His attitude towards life and the world was intensely religious, and yet he held very liberal views and had made a synthetic study of the teachings of all religions. He was also well-versed in the Yoga-darśana. During the latter part of his life he spent his days mostly in pilgrimage and meditation. Noted throughout the district and outside for his devoutness, kindness and piety, he is remembered even now as a pride of the Jaina community.

During the last days of his life, Babu Dalchandji Singhi cherished a strong desire to do something towards encouraging research in important branches of Jaina literature and publishing their editions scientifically and critically prepared by eminent scholars. But fate had decreed otherwise; and before this purpose of his could become a reality, he expired.

However, BABU BAHADUR SINGHI SINGHI, worthy son of the worthy father, in order to fulfil the noble wish of the late Dalchandji Singhi, continued to help institutions like the Jaina Pustaka Pracāraka Maṇḍala, Agra; the Jaina Gurukula, Palitana; the Jaina Vidyābhavana, Udaipur, etc.; and also patronized many individual scholars engaged in the publication of Jaina literature. Besides, with a view to establishing an independent memorial foundation to perpetuate the memory of his father, he consulted our common friend, Pandit Sri Sukhlalji, (formerly a Professor of Jainism in the Benares Hindu University), an unrivalled scholar of Jaina Philosophy, who had also come in close contact with the late Babu Dalchandji Singhi, and whom the latter had always held in very high esteem. In the meanwhile, Babu Bahadur Singhji Singhi incidentally met the late Poet, Rabindranath Tagore, and learnt of his desire to get a chair of Jaina studies established in the Viśva Bhāratī, Shantiniketan. Out of his respect for the Poet, Babu Sri Bahadur Singhji readily agreed to found the chair (provisionally for three years) in revered memory of his dear father, and pressinglly and cordially invited me to organize and conduct the same. I accepted the task very willingly, and felt thankful for the opportunity of spending even a few years in the cultural and inspiring atmosphere of Viśva-Bhāratī, the grand creation of the great Poet, Rabindranath.

During the period of 10 years of my principalship of the GUJARAT PURATATVA MANDIR, Ahmedabad, and even before that period, I had begun collecting materials of historical and philological importance, and of folk-lore etc., which had been lying hidden in the great Jaina Bhandars of Patan, Ahmedabad, Baroda, Cambay, etc. I induced my noble friend Babu Bahadur Singhji Singhi, also to start a Series which would publish works dealing with the vast materials in my possession, and also with other allied important Jaina texts and studies prepared on the most modern scientific methods. Hence the inauguration of the present Singhi Jaina Series.

At an early age Babu Bahadur Singhji joined the family business and by pushing ahead with his father's enterprises, succeeded in making the firm the foremost in the mining industry of Bengal and Central India. Besides he also acquired vast zamindaries and had interests in many industrial and banking concerns. This early preoccupation with business affairs prevented his having a college education. But Singhji was studious and introspective by nature. He devoted all his spare time to study and cultural development. He acquired an excellent command over several languages. Art and literature were the subjects of his choice. He was very fond of collecting rare and invaluable specimens of ancient sculpture, paintings, coins, copperplates and inscriptions. His manuscript collection contained a large number of rare works of historical and cultural importance, among which mention must be made of a unique manuscript of the Koran which was handed down from Baber to Aurangzeb and bears the autographs of all of them. His numismatic collection, especially of Kushan and Gupta coins, is considered the third best in the world. He also had a good and large collection of works of art and historical importance. Singhji was a Fellow of the Royal Society of Arts (London), a member of the Royal Asiatic Society of Bengal, the Bangiya Sahitya Parishad, the Indian Research Institute and a Founder-Member of the Bharatiya Vidya Bhavan. He was also the President of the Jain Svetambara Conference held in Bombay in 1926. Though he had made no special study of law he was well up in legal matters. On one occasion in the Calcutta High Court when he found that even his distinguished lawyers were not properly representing his case he himself pleaded out the case successfully, much to the surprise of the opposite party who was a manager of a big European firm.

Though a highly religious and leading figure in the Jain Community he had an outlook which was far from sectarian. More than three-fourths of the six lakhs and over of his donations were for non-Jain causes. More often than not he preferred to give his assistance anonymously and he did not keep a list of his donations even when they were made in his name.

At the Singhi Park Mela held in Decembar, 1941, at his Ballyganj residence in which Viscount Wavell, then Commander-in-Chief and Lord John Herbert, Governor of Bengal and Lady Herbert participated, he donated Rs. 41,000/ for the Red Cross Fund.

Really speaking, he did not in the least hanker after name and fame even though he was a multi-millionaire and a big Zamindar, and even though he was a man of superior intellect and energy. He was by nature taciturn and a lover of solitude. Art and literature were the pursuits of his choice. He was very fond of seeing and collecting rare and invaluable specimens of ancient sculpture, painting, coins, copperplates, inscriptions, manuscripts, etc. He spent all his spare time in seeing and examining the rarities which he had collected in his room as well as in reading. He was seldom seen outside and he rarely mixed with society and friendly circles. Wealthy persons like himself usually have a number of fads and hobbies such as seeing the games and races, visiting clubs, undertaking pleasure trips etc., and they spend enormously over them, but Singhiji had none of these habits. Instead of wasting money on such things, he spent large sums on collecting ancient things and valuable curios and on the preservation and publication of important literature. Donations to institutions and charities to individuals were, for the most part given by him anonymously. I know it from my own experience that these gifts, donations and charities reach a very high figure at the end of every year. But he was so modest that on his being requested so often by me he did not show the least inclination to part with the names and whereabouts of the individuals and institutions that were the recipients of such financial aid from him. By chance I came to know of a very recent example, just now, indicative of this characteristic of his nature. In the year 1941 he shifted, like other innumerable inhabitants of Calcutta, his headquarters to Azimganj (Dist. Murshidabad) when the fear of the Japanese invasion was looming large, and decided to stay there with his whole family during war time. Taking into consideration the present grievous condition of the country as well as the excessive scarcity of the grains in Bengal, he had stocked grains in large quantities with a view to distributing them gratis according to his capacity. Thereafter the problem of food became rather more serious and the prices had risen inconceivably high. Babu Bahadur Singhji Singhi could have earned four to five lacs of rupees if he had, like many other miserly merchants, sold off the hoarded lot of grains, taking undue advantage of the prevailing conditions. But he resisted the temptations, and had been daily distributing freely the grains among thousands of poor people who showered blessings on him, and he enjoyed a deep self-satisfaction. This is the most recent example that puts us in adequate knowledge of his silent munificence.

Really he was a very silent and solid worker and he had no desire to take active part in any controversies, social or political, though he had sufficient fitness and energy to do so. Still however he was skilful enough to do what was proper at the particular time. The following incident will best illustrate this statement. It was in the fitness of things that a wealthy multi-millionaire like him should give an appropriate contribution in the war funds. With this view he arranged in the second week of December, 1941, an attractive show, styled Singhi Park Mela in the garden of his residential place at Calcutta in which all the local people and officers of name and fame, including the Governor of Bengal, Sir John Arthur Herbert and lady Herbert as well as the Commander-in-chief (now the Governor-General) Viscount Wavell, had also taken part with enthusiasm. This show fetched thousands of rupees which were considered substantial financial help to the war funds.

As mentioned above, the series was started, in 1931 A. D. when I worked as a Founder-Director of the Singhi Jain Chair in Viśvabhāratī at Shantiniketan, at Singhiji's request. It was, then, our aspiration to put the SINGHI JAIN CHAIR and the SINGHI JAIN SERIES on a permanent basis and to create a centre at Viśvabhāratī for the studies of Jain cult in deference to the wishes of the late Poet Rabindranath Tagore. But unfortunately I was forced to leave this very inspiring and holy place on account of unfavourable climatic conditions etc. which I had to face during my stay of about four years there. I shifted, therefore, from Viśvabhāratī to Ahmedabad where I had formerly resided and worked in those glorious days when the GŪJARAT VIDYĀPĪTH and the PURĀTATTVA MANDIR had been established as a part of the movement for national awakening and cultural regeneration. I went there in the hope that the reminiscences of those days and the proximity of those places would serve as sources of inspiration in my literary pursuits.

During this period my aim of life had centred round the Singhi Jain Series and I devoted every iota of my energy to its development and progress.

In June, 1938, I received, to my agreeable surprise, a letter from my esteemed friend Śrī K. M. Munshi—who was, then, the Home Minister of the Congress Ministry of the Bombay Presidency. In that letter he had mentioned that Sheth Śrī Mungalal Goenka had placed a liberal sum of two lacs of rupees at his disposal for the establishment of a good academic institution for Indological studies and he had asked me to come down to Bombay to discuss and prepare a scheme for that. Accordingly, I came here and saw Munshiji. Knowing that he had a fervent desire of founding at Bombay an institution of the type of the Purātattva Mandir, I was extremely delighted and I showed my eagerness to offer for that such services as might be possible for me. We, then, began to draft out a scheme and after some deliberations and exchange of ideas the outline of the BHĀRATĪYA VIDYĀ BHAVAN was settled. Accordingly, on the auspicious full-moon day of the Kārttik of 1995 (V. S.) the opening ceremony of the Bhāratīya Vidyā Bhavan took place amidst the clappings and rejoicings of a magnificent party which was arranged at the residence of Munshiji. The brilliant achievement and the wide publicity which the Bhavan has been able to secure during his last five or Six years' short period bear eloquent testimony to the inexhaustible fund of energy and unsurpassed skill of Munshiji. As I am inseparably linked up with it from the very conception,

I also feel the same amount of joy and interest at the Bhavan's progress as Śrī Munshiji, its Founder-President and therefore I have been always offering my humble services in its various undertakings and activities.

On the other hand, the Singhi Jain Series is the principal aim of my remaining life and the results of my thinking, meditation, researches and writings have all been devoted to the development of the Series. As life passes on, the time of activity is also naturally shortened and therefore it is quite appropriate, now, for me to chalk out lines of its future programme and permanence.

As Babu Bahadur Singhi Singhji, the noble founder and the sole patron of the Series, had placed the whole responsibility of the Series on me from its inception, he had also the right to expect that more and more works may more speedily and splendidly be published. I have neither seen nor come across any other gentleman who can match with him as regards generosity and unbounded zeal for the revival of ancient literature. On the works of the Series he had spent through me more than 75,000 rupees during his life-time. But he had not even once asked me, during this long period of a dozen years, as to how and for what works the amount was spent. Whenever the account was submitted to him, he did not ask for even the least information and sanctioned it casting merely a formal glance on the account sheets. But he discussed very minutely the details regarding things such as the paper, types, printing, binding, get-up, etc. as well as internal subjects like Preface and others, and occasionally gave very useful suggestions thereon with deep interest. His only desire being to see the publication of as many works as possible in his life-time, he was always ready to spend as much, after it, as required. He did not labour under a delusion that the things should be done in this or that way when he was no more.

As these were his ideas and desires concerning the Series and as every day that passed left me all the more convinced of the fickleness of my advanced life too, it was imperative for us to draw out a scheme for its future programme and management. Just at this time a desire dawned in the heart of Śrī Munshiji, to the effect that if the Singhi Jain Series be associated with the Bhāratīya Vidyā Bhavan, both the institutions would not only be admirably progressing but the Series would get permanence and the Bhavan, unique honour and fame by its hereby becoming an important centre for the studies of Jain culture and the publication of Jain literature. This well-intentioned desire of Munshiji was much liked by me and I conveyed it in a proper form to Singhiji who was, besides being a Founder-Member of the Bhavan, also an intimate friend of Munshiji since long. Eventually he welcomed this idea. I also came to a final decision of associating the Series with the Bhavan, having consulted my most sincere friend, life-long companion and co-worker, Pt. Sukhlalji, who is a well-wisher and an active inspirer of the Series, and who is also an esteemed friend of Babu Bahadur Singhji. Luckily we all four met in Bombay in the bright half of Vaiśākḥ (V. S. 1999) and on one auspicious day we all sat together and unanimously resolved, at the residence of Munshiji, to entrust the Series to the Bhavan.

According to that resolution, the publication of the Series thereafter began under the management of the Bhāratīya Vidyā Bhavan under my sole supervision and direction.

In addition to transferring all sorts of copyright of the Series, Singhiji also donated a liberal sum of Rs. 10,000 which will be spent on erecting a hall, to be named after him, in a prominent place in the Bhavan. In appreciation of this generous donation of Singhiji, the Bhavan has also resolved to style permanently the Department of Jain Studies as the "Singhi Jain Śāstra Śikṣāpīṭha".

In the mean time we considered to purchase for the Bhavan a well-equipped library of a retired professor living in Calcutta and consequently I was entrusted with the work of making a proper move in the matter. I then went to Calcutta for this very purpose and started negotiations through Singhiji with the professor whose demand was somewhere about Rs. 50,000/-. Singhiji asked me just casually as to what arrangement had been made for meeting with the costs. I promptly replied that there was no cause for worry so long as donors like himself were there. He smiled at it with a suppressed sense of satisfaction and also remarked that he had to assume the role of a negotiator for a buyer who he himself was eventually to be. He considered seriously my candid utterance and made up his mind from that moment, lucky of course for the Bhavan, to donate the Library to the Bhavan. He invited the professor concerned to his residence and talked in my presence about the approximate cost of the whole collection which appearing rather more to him and to me, the bargain could not be struck. He himself thereafter suggested to me to go in for the Nahar collection and promised with his usual preparedness to make complete arrangements in due course of time for the same. As was natural with him, he disallowed me at the same time from making known his intentions to any one. From close association with him I very well knew this aspect of his sobre mind. This taciturnity of his mind was so much developed that even his sons who are equally able and worthy did not get a clue to his intentions till they were put into practice. But to our great mishap he did not live long enough to present this literary treasure to the Bhavan himself; but his eldest son and my beloved friend, Babu Shri Rajendra Singh has fulfilled his father's wish though he was totally ignorant of it and has got this unique collection for the Bhavan and spent Rs. 50,000/- for the purpose.

Singhiji began to take keen interest in the progress and development of the Bharatiya Vidya Bhavan, seeing that it had at last become the centre of research and literary activities of Shri Munshiji and mine. In his last visit to Bombay he had also expressed to me his sincere desire to come and stay occasionally with us in the building of the Bhavan at Andheri when it is made over to us after the war.

At this time he also expressed with great enthusiasm his generous desire in clear terms as to how increasing progress of the Series can be achieved and how more works can be brought out with added speed. He also told me to make an arrangement, as I wished, regarding as much publication as possible of the works in the Series till I and he were alive, wishing me not to worry at all concerning the expenses. He mentioned that he would not feel satisfied even if the present rate of the publication which is three to four works annually be raised to two works per month. What a noble zeal and a domineering passion for the advancement of learning and literature !

Having been fully reinvigorated by this unequalled enthusiasm and liberality I came to Bombay and was immersed in making plans of a large-scale production of the works in the Series and its extension in pursuance of his eager desire.

By the end of 1943 his health began to decline. In the first week of January, 1944, when I went to him at Calcutta in connection with the work of the Bharatiya Itihasa Samiti I found him extremely unwell. Notwithstanding his ill-health he talked to me for more than a couple of hours on the day of my arrival there. The first thing he did in the course of this lengthy, though very sweet talk, was to give me a mild reproof for undertaking the long and tedious journeys to Calcutta, Benares and Cawnpore in spite of my ill health. He discussed with absorbing interest the details of the Samiti's proposed History of India, a subject of great interest to him. I could see that he was at that time quite forgetful of his physical ailments. Our talks then drifted to the subject of the History of Jainism in which connection also he expressed his opinion about the material to be utilised for such a work. At the termination of our talks, which this time lasted for over three hours, I found him much exhausted and drooping in spirits.

On the 7th January his health took a turn for the worse. On 11th January I went to take leave of him, which he, full of emotions, gave with a heavy heart, exclaiming "Who knows whether we shall meet again or not?" I requested him to take heart and remain buoyant and assured him that he would be soon restored to normal health. But while I was stepping out of his room, my eyes were full of tears and his last words began to eat into my heart. Ill-luck prevented our second meeting. That lofty and generous soul finally left its mortal habitat at mid-day on 7th July, 1944. May his soul rest in peace !

Singhiji's worthy sons

Though the heavy loss caused by his sad demise is irreparable for me and the Jain community at large, still it is, indeed, a matter of real consolation that he has left behind him equally illustrious and worthy sons. His sons, Babu Rajendra Singhji, Babu Narendra Singhji and Babu Virendra Singhji are treading in the foot-steps of their revered father. It gives me a great pleasure to record here that during the past year on the Series alone they have spent about Rs. 20,000/-. They also handed over a some of Rs. 5000/- to the Indian Research Institnte of Calcutta for the publication of the Jain works in Bengali language. In last January these Singhi brothers spent in the sacred memory of their late father and their grandmother who had passed away soon after her son, a big sum of about two lacs for social purposes and for helping the poor with food, clothes, etc.

I have already mentioned how Babu Rajendra Singhji made a generous donation of Rs. 50000/- for the purchase of the famous Nahar Collection of Indological works which now forms a most precious part of the Bhavan's library. Babu Narendra Singhji has donated Rs. 3000/- for the foundation of a Jain Bhavan at Calcutta for which Babu Bahadur Singhji had already contributed Rs. 15000/-. He liberally gave Rs. 5000 at the ocasion of the celebration of the 'Viraśāsana Mahotsava' in November 1944 which was held by the Digambar Jain Samāj. Further he has shouldered the responsibility of continuing now under his patronage to help the work of social and religious upliftment among the Sarāk tribe of Bengal which was started by his illustrious father and for which the latter had spent thousands of Rupees. Babu Rajendra Singhji and Babu Narendra Singhji have also very generously promised to continue to meet all the expenses of the Singhi Jain Series and requested me to bring out as many works as possible, at whatever cost so that this unique Series founded and cherished by their late lamented father may continue to bring to light the invaluable treasures of Jain literature and culture.

. In recognition of his unique assistance the Bharatiya Vidya Bhavan has decided to perpetuate Singhji's memory by naming its indological library as Babu Bahadur Singhji Singhi Library. Further, one of its main halls will bear his name as Babu Bahadur Singhji Singhi Hall. The Bhavan's Jain Department will also be known as the Singhi Jain shastra Shikshapith.

PREFACE

WHEN for the first time in 1912-13 A. C., I began to examine the Jain Bhandars at Pātan, my primary object then was to find out with a view to research the literary works composed in the Early Vernaculars. At that time I had yet little acquaintance with Sanskrit and Prākṛit, but with Old Gujarātī (or the Old Western Rajasthani, as it is known among the scholars) I had cultivated a considerable familiarity. Of course I was as yet only a fresh student of it. My perusal and study of the research articles dealing with Gujarātī language and literature that were being published in the early Reports of the Gujarātī Sāhitya Pariṣad and also in the early numbers of the periodicals like the 'Gujarātī' had created in me a desire to know more and undertake investigation into these subjects. I had already come in close touch with the Rāsā compositions by the Jain monks of which there was such a profusion, and my visit to the Bhandars of various places had given me some idea as to what a big number of such works had been preserved in the Jain Mss. collections. The Bhandars at Pātan were since long very famous for being the oldest and richest Mss. collections pertaining to this subject and so, when I got an opportunity to live in Pātan near Pūjyapāda Pravartaka Shri Kāntivijayaji Mahārāj whom I considered as my highly revered Guru, I began to prepare a list of the Old Rāsās found in those Bhandars in order to satisfy my curiosity and to have a general idea of how great an amount of such sort of vernacular literature was lying buried there. In this list the information was being gathered under the heads like title of the work, name of the author, date of composition, date of copying, extent of the work in Granthāgras, number of folios, condition of the Ms., etc.

During these years a controversy was raging in Gujarat among the scholars of Old Gujarātī as to who was the earliest poet in Old Gujarātī, and the non-Jain scholars almost unanimously had assigned that place to Narasinha Mahetā. But there were one or two Jain scholars who had declared their objection to such a view and who, on the ground of some pre-Narasinha Jain works that were within their knowledge, were trying to assign the honour of being the first poet of Old Gujarātī to Vinayaprabha Upādhyāya, who had composed his Gautamasvāmirāsa at Khambhāt (Cambay) in 1412 V. S. I too got interested in that controversy and accordingly I began to search carefully for older Gujarātī poetical works. In one of the Bhandars I found a Ms. copied in 1357-58 V. S., the years during which the Hindu rule in Gujarāt was nearing its end and Independent Gujarat was vanishing for ever between the jaws of Time. The Ms. contained a collection of many small works in Sanskrit, Prākṛit, Apabhraṃśa and Old Gujarātī. Among these was found a poetical work called Nemināthacatuspadikū of Vinayacandra which appeared to be a charming and typical representative of Old Gujarātī works. There was no doubt about its being some 75 or 100 years older than the Gautamasvāmirāsa and hence I prepared a complete copy of it and sent it to be published in the Paryuṣaṇā special number of the monthly 'Jain Śvetāmbar Conference Herald' of the year 1913. At that time I had no specialized study of that subject so that I could supply an explanatory review, notes etc. on it, but my eagerness to continue my research in that subject and to search for and examine more literary works of that type was increased to a degree and from that point of view I continued my efforts.

*

It was about that period that I found a Ms. of the Samdeśarāsaka in the same Bhandār.* This Pātan Ms. contained the bare text of the poem without any thing like the Sanskrit Avucāri or Ṭippaṇa. On a superficial examination, its language appeared to me to be of a different sort from the language found in other Rāsās and it was not properly intelligible to me, since I knew yet practically nothing of the Apabhraṃśa grammar. But my continuous reading and study of Old Gujarātī works had indirectly acquainted me somewhat with that language and consequently I could grasp the essence of the contents of the Rāsaka. I had read many times the Prthvirāja-Rāsana before and I could

* It was in this very Bhandar that I discovered Prthvicanḍacaritra, the oldest and earliest extensive prose work in Old Gujarātī.

make out that the language of the present Rāsaka was to some extent of that sort which was found in the Prthvirāja-Rāsau, though the form appeared quite different. I became eager to study the Rāsaka and I copied it completely with my own hand. I also hoped to possibly find in the Bhandars some other Ms. of this poem containing some Ṭabbā (Gujarātī gloss) or Bālāvabodhā on it, so that it can facilitate the understanding of the poem. For I had already come across in those Bhandārs some Mss. of the works like the Bhāvanāsanulhi written in the same sort of language and containing a Gujarātī gloss.

*

After this some five to seven years elapsed. During this, I was progressing in my study of the Prākṛit grammar. The study of Hemacandra's grammar helped me to peep into the exact nature of Prākṛit, Apabhraṃśa etc. In 1918 A. C. when in Poona I was engaged in examining the Jain section of the Government Manuscript collection brought to the Bhandarkar Oriental Research Institute, I came across another Ms. of this Rāsaka there, and I was very glad to find that that new Ms. contained, as I had anticipated, a chāyā-like Sanskrit Avacūrikā on the text of the Rāsaka. I had then a mind to get prepared a transcript of that Ms. After this when I joined the Gujarāt Vidyāpīṭh and undertook to organize the activities of the Gujarāt Purātattva Mandir, I thought of publishing the Rāsaka in the Purātattva Granthāvali that was to be started by that Institution. I acquired the Ms. from Pātan as also from Poona and started to note down the variant readings, etc. gradually. But much progress could not be made in that owing to my being occupied with other undertakings. In the meanwhile I received a letter from that great indologist and German savant Prof. Hermann JACOBI. He had asked from me some information regarding the works of Apabhraṃśa literature that could be found in the Pātan Bhandars. For it was Prof. JACOBI who had started a new era in Apabhraṃśa studies by publishing the Apabhraṃśa texts Bhavisattakaha of Dhanapāla and the Sauatkumāracarita of Haribhadra and had begun to search diligently for the literary treasures of that language. I sent him particulars regarding the Tisatṭhilakkhaṇa-Mulāpurāṇa of Puṣpadanta together with a transcript of the Harivaṃśapurāṇa contained therein, which I had got previously prepared. Afterwards I informed him of this Saṁdesarāsaka also. In the meanwhile, when I decided to go to Germany, he wrote to me: 'When yow come, please bring with you the Ms. of the Saṁdesarāsaka or a transcript thereof. I am very eager to see that work' etc. Accordingly I took with me the transcript that I had prepared with my own hand and when in the summer of 1924 I saw that revered and aged Professor in Hamburg, I handed over to him that transcript. He was very much thankful to me for the transcript and said that when he returned to his home at Bonn, he would, at leisure, go through the transcript and write to me his opinion etc. regarding the work in detail. And he kept the transcript with him. But unfortunately he could not do or write anything in connection with this matter during my stay in Germany, being engaged as he was in some more pressing work.

*

I returned from Germany and remained wholly occupied in establishing the Singhi Jain Chair at Shantiniketan, in planning the Singhi Jain Series and other such works. When the Bharatiya Vidyā Bhavan was established in 1938 and the 'Bhāratīya Vidyā Series' was started, I earnestly desired to publish this Saṁdesarāsaka which was occupying my attention since so many years. And so acquiring again the Mss. at Poona and Pātan, I got a fresh press-copy prepared from them. After collating variants, I thought of publishing the work serially in the Bhāratīya Vidyā (the Hindi-Gujarāṭi quarterly). In the mean time I came to know of a third Ms. of the Saṁdesarāsaka which was in the Jñānabhaṇḍār of Achārya Shri Jinaharisāgarji at Lohavāt in Marwar. I acquired that Ms. also from the Achārya. Besides the text, that Ms. also contained a Tippana-like short Sanskrit commentary by some different writer. Hence I decided to print that commentary also. Thus ultimately the printing of the text of the present work with the variants from the three Mss. and the Sanskrit commentaries from the Poona and Lohavāt Mss. was begun in 1941.

In the beginning my intention was 'to publish merely the text with the Sanskrit commentaries and a few prefatory lines by way of introduction. And accordingly I got the whole thing printed. But then some friends suggested that if the work is published with the indication of the critical apparatus and a critical introduction, it would add to the utility of that fine work for those interested in Apabhraṃśa. So I entrusted that task to my dear pupil and enthusiastic co-worker Prof. H. C. Bhayani, M. A., who, since last three or four years is deeply engaged in the study of Apabhraṃśa language and literature and who has acquired a substantial knowledge of that subject. As the result, the present work with its more substantial form is placed in the hands of the learned.

That Prof. Bhayani has spared no pains in studying his subject with requisite minuteness will be clear to all the discerning readers who will go through the pages of the 'Critical Study.' He has carefully investigated and recorded in a systematic manner the rich variety of grammatical forms and different types of metres that are evidenced in this poem. He has also treated the form and structure of the poem, has given an extensive summary of the contents and some informative notes from exegetical or metrical point of view, and has prefaced all this with a brief introduction intended to point out the specially interesting features of the poem. Thus Prof. Bhayani has increased the importance and utility of this publication for which I offer him sincere congratulations.

Following is the description of the three Mss. which I have utilized in editing the present text and the commentaries :

Ms. A — It is a Ms. from the Jain Section of the Government Mss. collection which is in charge of the Bhandarkar Oriental Research Institute, Poona and bears the number 181 of 1881-82. It contains 12 leaves. The date of copying is not given but looking to the condition of the Ms., it appears to have been written about 300 years ago. It is written in the Jain Devanāgarī script. The text of the Rāsaka is in a slightly bigger hand. Every side contains 11 to 12 line of the Rāsaka text and above each line is written, in a finer hand, something like a Sanskrit translation of the text which is styled Avacūrikā. The copyist of this Avacūrikā appears to be different from the scribe who had copied the text, for there is difference in the style of the characters. It seems that somebody must have entered this Sanskrit Avacūrikā for his own guidance in the Ms. in his possession that was containing only the text. The name of the scribe is given thus at the end of the Ms. : इत्यवचूरिः । सुदेशरासकं समाप्तं । पं. नयसमुद्रेणलिखितं. But from this it cannot be made out whether this Nayasamudra is himself the author of this Avacūrikā or he has merely copied it. It is certain that he was a Jain monk. There have been many Jain monks bearing the name Nayasamudra and some of them have also some works in Old Gujarāṭī, etc. to their credit. But as the present scribe has given neither his spiritual lineage and preceptor, nor his date, there is no means to know anything about his time or his identification.

The scribe who has copied the text in this Ms. has not bestowed sufficient care on his task and consequently he has included as a part of the text those stanzas also which give the definition of some particular metre employed in a stanza of the poem. For example, the 18th stanza of the text is composed in Raḍḍā metre. In the Ms. which must have served as the prototype to our Ms., somebody must have marginally entered the stanza defining Raḍḍā metre from some metrical treatise of an author called Nandaḍḍha. The scribe of our Ms., considering this definition stanza as a part of the text, copied it runningly with other stanzas of the text. Similarly because the 21st stanza is in Paddhaḍḍī metre, a stanza giving the definition of this metre has been included in the text as its part. The stanzas of the poem also have been numbered erroneously so that the last stanza, instead of being numbered 222 or 223, bears the number 216.

Ms. B — This Ms. was acquired from the Jñānabhaṇḍār of Achārya Shri Jinaharisāgarji at Lohāvat in Marwar. It contains 28 leaves in all. The name of the copyist is not given. But doubtlessly he was a Jain. Though the name is not given he has mentioned the place and the day, from which we know that writing of this Ms. was completed at Hisārādurga (i. e. Hisār fort in the Punjab) on the 8th day of the bright half of Āṣāḍha, Wednesday. If some more trouble had been taken to put down the number indicating the year also, we would have got at least the exact date of the Ms. But as that thing is not done, it is not easy for us to say in what century the copy was prepared. Though if any scholar wishes to exactly find out this date with the help of the ephemeris, he can do so because given the month, the fortnight, the Tithi and the day of the week, the corresponding year can be calculated. Having at present little time at my disposal, I could not undertake it. I wish some expert would try.

This Ms. contains, along with the text, short Tīppana-like Sanskrit commentary, which gives just slightly more renderings of the original text than those given in the Avacūrikā in the Ms. A. The scribe of this Ms. appears to have very little familiarity with Sanskrit and so he has committed many blunders of a grammatical or orthographic nature in copying the commentary on each stanza.

There are two stanzas at the end of this Tīppana-like commentary, which give us some information regarding its author, etc. The author of this commentary was a Jain monk named Lakṣmicandra, who was a disciple of Devendrasūri of the Rudrapalliya Gaccha. He has also mentioned the names of his father and mother and his family, which is seldom done by any Jain monk. According to this he belonged to the Prāgvāta family (i. e. the Porwād caste of the Banias). His father's name was Hāliga and mother's Tilakhū. He had composed this commentary in 1465 V. S.*

The second stanza indicates in what manner he prepared this commentary. The stanza is defective and its text appears in places corrupt, so the exact meaning cannot be made out. He says that he has not seen with his eyes any commentary of this poem, nor has he studied this poem before a teacher, nor has he listened to this Śāstra on the earth directly from the mouth of its author (?). But what explanations of this poem he heard from the mouth of the Kṣatriya named Gāhaḍa, he wrote them out in the form of

- * There a Ms. of the Dharmābhyudaya-kāvya in Jain Bhandars at Pātan written by the same Lakṣmicandra, at the end of which he has given 1446 V. S. as the date of copying. There has been given the same stanza which is found in the commentary on the Saṁdeśarūsaka with slight variation. It is as follows:

श्रीमत्प्राग्वाटवंशानुविशशिसदृशो हालिगस्यांगजन्मा
पुत्रो मातुस्तिलखाः प्रविदितचरणो रुद्रपल्लीयगच्छे ।
श्रीमद्देवेन्द्रशिष्यः रस-सुख-जल-भू-वत्सपरे काव्यमेनं
लक्ष्मीचन्द्रो हिलेखाखिलगुणनिधयः मृत्युः शोधयन्तु ॥

this vārtā (vārtika?). In this if anything that was not proper was unguardedly written by him it was not he, but, Gāhaḍa who was to be held answerable for that. Thus it appears that Lakṣmīcandra learned the purport of the poem from some Kṣatriya named Gāhaḍa. We do not know any thing else regarding this Gāhaḍa.

From this commentary of Lakṣmīcandra we can see that he was not a good student of Sanskrit. He must have only a working knowledge of that language. In spite of his defective knowledge of Sanskrit and his immature study he has enthusiastically tried to explain the purport of the Rāsaka by writing in his broken style a commentary in the form of this 'vārtika', and to-day it has certainly proved of considerable help in understanding the poem. It is probable that the Avacūrikā which is found in the Poona Ms. (A) was prepared by some student on the basis of the substance of this commentary of Lakṣmīcandra. From what is said by Lakṣmīcandra we can also surmise that possibly there was nothing like a Sanskrit commentary on the Samdeśarāsaka before one written by Lakṣmīcandra himself. So in course of time this Apabhramśa poem of Abdala Rahamāna being felt difficult to understand, Lakmīcandra, who found the poem very attractive and worthy of study, learnt it from some Kṣatriya called Gāhaḍa who knew its language and purport tolerably well, and composed this vṛtti or vārtika in his own words. Since, the text of the Rāsaka as found in this Ms. and the one which forms the basis for the commentary are in some places at variance with each other, it is to be concluded that either the text and the commentary were copied from two different Mss. or the prototype of this Ms. must have been copied in the said manner.

Ms. C — This is from a Bhandar at Pātan. The number of the leaves is 17, and the script is Jain Devanāgarī. The copyist is Muni Mānasāgara, who was a disciple of Upādhyāya Devasāgara. Some Bhaṭṭāraka — the name has been scored off by somebody — got this copy prepared by Muni Mānasāgara. Here also the date of copying is not given. So we cannot say what must be the exact date, but looking to the condition of the Ms. it appears to have been written during 1700–1750 V. S.

This Ms. contains merely the text of the Samdeśarāsaka. The copyist has not put down the numbers to the stanzas, but some space is left empty at the end of each stanza. This possibly means that as in other Mss., here also, the copyist intended to write the numbers with red ink or vermillion, but due to some reason it was left undone.

To give some idea of the size, characters etc. of these three Mss., a half-tone block of one page of each Ms. is given herewith.

I have sought to record at the base of the text of the Rāsaka the variant readings that are found in these three Mss. One who examines these variants will see that the text of the Rāsaka has come down to us with plenty of variants. The spelling and pronunciation in a spoken vernacular is subject to continual change dependent upon its currency in different places at different times and among different peoples. The work which becomes more popular and current, gathers still richer crop of variants. It is difficult to decide which one of the Mss. offering numerous variants is more correct and faithful to the original. If the author's date is definitely known, we can say that the Ms. which is written nearer to this date is more reliable. But when the author's date is indefinite, we cannot take it as a never-failing criterion that the earliest Ms. is the most reliable one. For a later Ms. can prove more authentic than an earlier one, if the former is copied from a prototype which is earlier than the latter. In such circumstances it is a very difficult task to constitute an authentic text of a work which abounds in variants. To illustrate this let us suppose there are two Mss. of a vernacular work composed in the 11th century. One of these is written in the 15th century and presents that form of language which, after successive transformations was current in that century. On the other hand the other Ms. is written in the 18th century, but as it is an exact reproduction of its prototype which belonged to the 13th century, we should consider this latter Ms. more authentic when we want to study the language of that work. I have many a time come across such cases during my researches.

But when we have no definite idea as to the time of the author, nor can we find any sure ground to fix the tradition of the Mss., the obviously least objectionable course would be to accept the majority reading in the constituted text and record the remaining ones below. And in cases when all the Mss. disagree on a particular reading, grammar, metre and general style of the author should be the criteria of selecting the reading.

This is normally the method which I have followed in editing the present text. On examining the text one will find that the three above-described Mss. of this work present abundant variants. What is more, the text of the Rāsaka as given in B. and the words of the text which are found interspersed with Laṣṇicandra's commentary contained in the same Ms. differ at places from each other. As all the three Mss. are undated, there is no evidence to consider any of them as older and more authentic than the rest. Hence generally I have accepted two criterions for the selection of the reading. The first is to accept that reading in the constituted text which is correct and found in the two Mss., the reading of the remaining Ms. being recorded below. The second is, when the three Mss. mutually disagree, to select that reading which appeared to me superior to others from a metrical, contextual, or stylistic view-point, the other two readings being given below.

There is no sort of consistency in the variants in each of the three Mss. No uniformity is to be found in any one of the Mss. regarding grammatical forms or orthography. In all the Mss. a substantive of the A-stem is found now inflected, now uninflected. In the case of verbal forms also sometimes we find a fuller form, while at other times it is found in a mutilated condition. And if one carefully examines the poem, one would discern that at times the author himself was responsible for employing such varying forms. The same sort of inconsistency is observable in the indication of the y-glide that appears in the place of the elided intervocalic consonants. In some places only a is found, while in others it is preceded by y. Thus as much lawlessness was found in the variants offered by the Mss., I had to adopt the above-described method of selecting the readings. I am aware that such a method is not absolutely scientific or satisfactory, but under the circumstances I could not find any less objectionable alternative.

From the information that I have, I think there can be found still many more Mss. of this work from the Jain Bhandars. There is also the possibility of finding out another Sanskrit commentary or gloss on the text. For example, when the printing of the present text was finished, Shri Agarchand NAHTA of Bikaner sent to me an incomplete Ms. of this work from his private collection. There were seven leaves only, containing the first 109 stanzas of the text. The Ms. contained the Sanskrit Vārtika also, which was mostly identical with the Avacūrikā given here, but it was by a different author. Its first stanza was word for word the same as the first stanza of Lakṣmicandra's commentary, excepting the fourth pāda, which instead of reading कुरुते मुनिपुङ्गवः as in Lakṣmicandra, reads कुरुते लब्धिसुन्दरः. Accordingly we come to know that some Labdhisundara was the author of this commentary. The Ms. being incomplete, we have no means to know whether the author had said at the end anything regarding himself, his Guru, etc. Can this Labdhisundara be in any way connected with that Nayasundara who is mentioned at the end of the Poona Ms.?

Most of the readings of this Bikaner Ms. (N) are the same as those found in B, but there are places where the two Mss. differ and hence it appears that the Bikaner Ms. also has a different Ms. tradition from that of the three Mss. previously described. From this, it will be seen that to prepare a really critical edition and present the text in a purer form, we should acquire as many Mss. of the work as is possible to get, and work on them with sufficient diligence.

*

As Prof. Bhayani has, in his 'Critical Study' exhaustively treated most of the specially interesting and novel features of this work, it is not necessary for me to touch those aspects and I confine myself to saying a few words regarding the date of the author. I have not come across any definite external evidence which would fix our author's date. No reference to the Saṁdeśarāsaka is found in any other work. We have to make a probable guess regarding the author's time and here our first definite ground, which supplies at the same time the terminus ad quem for the date of the poem, is Lakṣmicandra's commentary that is published here along with the text. The commentary is composed in 1465 V. S. (1403 A. C.). Therefore, it is obvious that the author of the Saṁdeśarāsaka flourished earlier to this date. But to say how much earlier would be a matter of mere speculation. Still considering the form of its language and the nature of the information given in the text regarding the geographical places, I have reasons to believe that Abdala Rahamāna* the author of the present Rāsaka was born in some place situated on the western borders of India before the period of--though not much earlier to--the rise of Sultan Muhammad alias Shihabu-d din Ghorī who established the sovereignty of Muslim rule on the throne of Delhi.

From the description given in the Rāsaka, it is clear that at that time the city of Multan in the Punjab was famous as the greatest of the holy places of the Hindus in the furthest precincts of the north-western India. The temple of Sun god and Suryakūṇḍa that were there were famous all over India and it was a prosperous centre of Hindu culture. From this description we also gather that Multan was a flourishing city. We can, therefore conclude that in the times of the author of the Samdeśārāsaka the ominous shadow of foreign invasion had not yet engulfed the city, and the Hindu cultural atmosphere held there its continuous and unrivalled sway. After Shihabu-d din's invasion that glory of Multan disappeared never to get established again. The mention of Khambhāt (Cambay), moreover, along with Multan in the Punjab and Vijayanagar or Vikramapura (to-day in the Jesulmere State) in the Marusthali is also noteworthy. The husband of the lady from Vijayanagara, who, suffering long separation sends the message to him, had gone to Cambay to earn riches and there being no end to his ambition, he does not leave Cambay for years. The message-carrier also is going on his way to Khambhāt with a written message to some similar enterpriser from Multan who has gone to Cambay with the same purpose. From this we can gather that the poem was composed about a period during which Cambay was a great centre of trade and commerce tempting enough to draw businessmen and enterprisers from far off countries like Sind, the Punjab etc. If we look into the history of Cambay we see that it was during the reigns of the Cālukyan kings

* The text of the SR. gives the name of the author as Addahamāna, which is rendered by the commentaries as Abdala Rahamāna. So this form of the name is adopted by us, though current Muslim name is probably Abdul, and not Abdala.

Siddharāja and Kumārapāla that Cambay had reached this height of fame as a flourishing trade centre. Soon after the death of Kumārapāla, the royal sway of Anahillapura was weakened and the political chaos consequent upon this brought down the decline of Cambay. When, through the shrewdness and skill of Vastupāla, Viradhavala took in his hands the administration of Cambay, it was almost in the state of a deserted city. It was during the reigns of Siddharāja and Kumārapāla that the north-western boundary of the kingdom of Gujarat had reached right up to the banks of the Indus and hence it was natural that the merchants from that frontier would run their business firms in Cambay which then occupied the position of being the foremost port of the kingdom of Gujarat. From all these I infer that the Samdeśarāsaka must have been composed during the reign of Siddharāja or Kumārapāla i.e. in the latter half of the 12th century or at the latest, the first half of the 13th century of the Vikrama era.

From the point of view of language also, the above suggested date appears to fit well. The particular form of language in which the poem is written gives us an impression that it must have been living and understandable by all at that time. The poet's aim was to make his work charming and attractive to the average man of his times and he can succeed in his aim then and then only, when he composes the poem in easy language and a plain style. The poet Abdala Rahamāna being an inhabitant of some place in the western part of India and different from the Hindus in religion and culture, cannot possibly have acquaintance with the language that he employs in the Rāsaka right from his birth. His mother-tongue or his language of common day-to-day intercourse must have been different. So he must have mastered this language from some seat of Hindu culture (perhaps it was Multan). From his statement we understand that he was well-versed in Sanskrit, Prakrit and Apabhramśa. That he had acquired proficiency in Prakrit is directly evidenced by the present Rāsaka. For, he has given in the Rāsaka some fine Prakrit Gāthās also and in introducing himself, he tells, in explicit words, of the notable reputation he has acquired in the field of Prakrit poetry and Prakrit songs (see stanza 4 in the text). For one possessing such a sound knowledge of Prakrit and Apabhraṃśa, not to be knowing Sanskrit appeared next to impossible in those times. Thus this much we can say on good grounds that Abdala Rahamāna was very learned. He had composed many poems, songs etc. in chaste Prakrit. The cultured and the élite of that period considered Prakrit as a language of the yesterday which was a valuable source of literary enjoyment by virtue of its literature of tenderness and beauty. But only those could properly understand that language who had studied well its grammar and literature and who were otherwise also well-read. For the averagely-educated and uninitiated, Prakrit had become somewhat difficult to grasp. Consequently to cater to the contemporary literary demand, the authors had to write their works in Apabhraṃśa also which was the literary dialect of the time accessible to the common people. Actuated by some such motive Abdala Rahamāna seems to have composed his poem in the popularly current dialect of Apabhraṃśa. Hence he expresses his apprehension that the highly learned—the well-educated would not touch his work considering it to be mediocre or worthless, while those who are quite illiterate would not understand this and so they also cannot be expected to eagerly welcome this. But those who are neither ignorant, nor very learned, will certainly read this poem frequently.

By this time Apabhraṃśa also had acquired such a status in the literary world as could place it side by side with Sanskrit, Prakrit and Pāṣāṇī which possessed rich literatures. There were two styles of Apabhraṃśa then current: the 'classical style' and the 'popular style', called Grāmya Apabhraṃśa by Hemacandra in his Kāvyānuśāsana. The former style was, like Prakrit, characterised by well-defined and rigid grammatical rules and in it were composed in a tone of elegance great epics and voluminous narratives. The other style was like the unsophisticated people, direct, natural, uncomplicated and characterised by a flexible grammar. We can place Samdeśurāsaka in this second category of the works in the popular style. Its language and sentiments earmark it as meant for the common people. Fortunately now we have come to possess a good number of Apabhraṃśa works written in the classical style, but we have not been so far similarly lucky in coming across works in the popular style which are very important and useful in the study of the development of our modern vernaculars. From this view the present work should receive a good welcome.

The language of the Samdeśarūsaka is, as I suggested just above, not enclosed in a rigid grammatical frame, but has a considerable flexibility of form. This fact suggests that the work was composed when Apabhramśa was passing through its last stage of decay and the New Vernaculars like its daughters were leaving behind their childhood stage. This period was, as already stated, the second half of the 12th century or the first half of the 13th century of the Vikrama era. In other words, this was exactly the period which covered up the whole life, from childhood to death, of Ācārya Hemacandra, the last grammarian to treat the fully developed form of Apabhramśa. Hemācārya died in 1230 V. S. Cambay had reached its height of progress and prosperity during his life-time. Soon after him the power of the kingdom of Gujarat waned and Cambay also fell to evil days. Within fifteen or twenty years after Hemacandra's death are started the series of invasions by Shihabuddin Ghori on the Punjab and the northern India, the Hindu kingdoms of Anangapāla of the Punjab, Cāhamāna Prthvirāja of Delhi and Rāstrakūṭa Jayacanda of Kanauj are destroyed, Multan which was like a stronghold of Hindu culture is ravaged and the trade relations established between Gujarat and north-western India become disconnected. The glimpses of the lost glory of these places are preserved in this poem. As we do not find such prosperous state of these cities restored to them at any time afterwards, I come to the plausible conclusion that our Rāsaka was composed before—but not much earlier to—the rise of Sultan Muhammad Ghori.

This work of Abdalā Rahamāna attractively handles a theme that is very simple and popular. In his descriptions nowhere do we find exaggeration to achieve effect or depiction of unreal sentiments. It gives a vivid picture of most natural emotions in direct words. The description of various seasons reflects the common experience. It is the climate which we find in Rājasthāna i. e. in Marusthala, Sind and the borders of the Punjab that is pointedly described here. The poet calls the hot wind blowing in summer by the name Jhakhadā and it is known in Marusthala even today by the same name (Jhankhar). The Aracūrikā notes Dr̥ṇḍuyālaka i. e. Dr̥ṇḍālo as its another name. Again, in the description of Autumn, there is a reference to putting of the Tilaka-mark of sandal-paste on the head of horses and cows. Most probably it is indicative of the occasion of the Navarātra and Vijayādaśamī festival. In Rājasthān, to-day also it is a custom to perform the worshipping ceremony in the horse's stable and the cowstall during the Daśerā festival, and it is considered a specially festive occasion among the Rājput families.

Among the Muslim poets who have composed in Indian vernaculars Amir Khusarō's (died in 1325 A. C.) name comes first and after him comes the famous poet Malik Mohammad Jāyasī (c. 1540 A. C.) who composed his Padamāvata in the Avadhī language. But until now we had not come across any work of a Muslim author written in the earlier and more widely employed cultural languages of India, Prakrit and Apabhraṃśa. As such, the present Apabhraṃśa poem interspersed with Prakrit can be considered as a very important work. Its date also is earlier to those of the above-named two poets and its subject-matter too is very attractive. Accordingly, Abdala Rahamāna appropriates the honour of being the first Muslim poet to assimilate Hindu culture and to master the Hindu literary style prevalent in his times.

Let us hope that following Abdala Rahamāna, who having drunk deep at the fount of Hindu culture and inspired by noble sentiments composed his invaluable work in the then common literary language of India, our Muslim brethren of to-day also becoming inspired by similar sentiments will make their best contribution to the Indian literary treasures by composing works of value in our national literary language.

I conclude this preface in the words of Abdala Rahamāna himself:

जेम अचिन्तिउ कजु तसु सिद्धु खणदि महंतु ।
तेम पदंत-सुणंताह जयउ अणाइ अणंतु ॥

INTRODUCTION

The two striking traits of the Apabhraṃśa literature unearthed so far are its predominantly Jain character* and the purpose of religious edification inspiring its cultivation. Most of it is covered up by the Jain Dharmakathā and the epic-Purāṇic type of works continued from the Prakrit literature and includes Caritas, Purāṇas and Kathākośas. These together with some religious-didactic, mystical and subhāṣita works and a few treatises on metre exhaust all that could be found in the Apabhraṃśa literature known to us. This would go to create some doubt in our mind as to the existence of pure literary works as such in Apabhraṃśa. But if the wealth of varied citations in the metrical treatises of Svayambhū and Hemacandra (not to mention the names of some Apabhraṃśa epics cited by the latter) are any index, we must believe, what is otherwise also quite natural, that in belles-lettres too Apabhraṃśa continued and further developed the Prakrit literary types and traditions.

Moreover, Virahāṅka and Svayambhū specifically define an Apabhraṃśa literary genre called Rāsaa, Rāsā (Sk. Rāsaka). Their description of this poetic form as employing a variety of choice Apabhraṃśa metres would point to a type of compositions of modest range as compared with the more ambitious epic—something corresponding to the Khaṇḍakāvya of the Sanskrit literature. So far no such Rāsaka had come to light. The Samdeśarāsaka is the first published text to give us a concrete idea of the Rāsaka type of works.

Besides this speciality of the form, the present piece arouses our interest from another point of view also. The author of the Samdeśarāsaka was a weaver of the Muslim community named Abdala Rahamāna, son of one Mirasena 'of the famous Mleccha country in the West'. But if the author himself had not imparted this information, we could not have probably guessed that the poem was composed by a non-Hindu writer. Of course, the maṅgala verse in the beginning paying homage to the author of all this varied universe, and the conclusion of the poem proclaiming, 'victory to one without beginning, without end' are certainly peculiar, but it is only when we come to know of the Muslim authorship of this work that this opening and end become invested with a definite significance for us. Otherwise, in the facile handling of numerous

* We do know of a few Buddhist Apabhraṃśa works also and there are indications that the Hindus too did not quite neglect this medium of literary expression. These facts do not allow us to ascribe a sectarian character to Apabhraṃśa.

metres, in the charming manner in which the figures of speech are employed, in the easy flow of language or in the mastery of poetic craftsmanship in general there is not a trace that can hint at the hand of a non-Hindu poet. And this presupposes on the part of the author a sound literary training on traditional lines and a close familiarity with Sanskrit, Prakrit and Apabhramśa masterpieces. The author's claim for these distinctions made in the introductory portion of the poem is thus anything but hollow. Parallels (from Prakrit, Apabhramśa or Vernacular literatures) to the expressions and ideas contained in certain passages of the Samdeśarāsaka have been pointed out in Appendix I at the end, and this also emphasizes Abdala Rahamāna's well-versedness in the classical and contemporary literatures.

But this has no adverse implication as to the originality of the author. Though a Samdeśakāvya, the Samdeśarāsaka is far above the common run of such type of compositions, the lifeless or mediocre imitations of the Meghadūta, some of them claiming our attention by their only virtue of being tours-de-force. This one fact of being able to produce something refreshing even from a theme that is overexploited speaks much favourably regarding the poetic powers of Abdala Rahamāna. As to his sense of form, descriptive powers, melodious diction etc., let the reader himself be a judge.

Lastly the language and metres of the poem are of no small interest. The author has not composed in the classical Apabhramśa which by his times was long 'dead'. He has adopted the 'living' literary medium of Late Apabhramśa which has strong admixture of Old Western Rājasthānī (especially its northerly idiom) with a touch of the early form of one (Braj?) of the Western Hindi group of dialects. Most of the metres employed in the Samdeśarāsaka were currently used for early Vernacular poetic compositions also. One occupying himself with the study of the linguistic, metrical, structural or literary aspect of the Apabhramśa and Early Vernacular literatures cannot afford to neglect this fine literary piece from Abdala Rahamāna's pen.

I am grateful to my revered Guru Āchārya Shri Jīnavijayaji for the opportunity and encouragement he gave me in my present studies in the Samdeśarāsaka. I express my sense of gratitude towards Prof. Dr. Sunitikumar CHATTERJI and Prof. Mahendra PANDYA for kindly taking the trouble of going through the 'Critical Introduction' and 'Summary' respectively and making some valuable suggestions.

A CRITICAL STUDY OF THE
GRAMMAR and METRES of the SAMDEŚA RĀSAKA

By
H. C. BHAYANI, M. A.

INTRODUCTORY

As one of the few texts of late, vernacular-coloured Apabhramśa, as a metrical work composed in a score of metres most of them of considerable interest from the view-point of the Middle Indian prosody, as a valuable specimen of the Apabhramśa रसा-literature and as probably the only non-religious literary Apabhramśa work published so far, the संदेशरासक proves unique enough to make itself a focus of studious attention. In addition to this, the fact that it is from a Muslim author's pen is of no small interest. Hence, at the instruction of Acharya Shri Jinavijayaji, who has brought out for the first time this critical edition, I have dealt below with the grammatical and metrical aspects and the literary form of the संदेशरासक, as also have supplied a stanzawise summary in English to facilitate reference.

GRAMMAR¹

I ORTHOGRAPHY

§ 1. A conflicting and confused orthography is quite characteristic of the Ap. Mss. The spelling of grammatical forms and words even in the same Ms. presents bewildering variations. One form now exhibits an ङ, now an ण. Another form has at one time one of its vowels nasalized, while a second time it appears without the Anunasika. Similarly in the writing of ऋ or ॠ, in the introduction of the 'य'श्रुति or in the choice of ऋ or ॠ much consistency is not to be found. There are two or three facts which can be advanced to explain this remarkable orthographic variation of the Ap. Mss. One explanation which obviously suggests itself is to assume that in the speech of the author there actually obtained an option of pronunciation in the case of the forms or words concerned, the orthographic diversity being but a reflex of these optional pronunciations. But this sort of assumption works in a limited number of cases only. As regards the others, there is enough evidence, brought forth by ALSDORF (and JACOBI) through a statistical analysis of the form-and word-variants occurring in some Ap. Mss., to prove that either confusion of phonetically similar forms or divergent scribal practices lie at the basis of this variation. Further, it seems quite probable that some types of variants, indicative of a stage of language more advanced than one represented by the text, bear influence of the spoken idiom of the scribes and as such, are to be considered modernisms from a relative view-point.

These are the chief agencies responsible for the inconsistencies and divergences in the Ap. orthography. It is to be noted that even after taking everything into consideration, there would still remain, as is amply borne out by the treatment below, a number of cases where it is considerably difficult to achieve some measure of certainty as to whether a particular form is really reflective of an actual alteration in pronunciation already developed in an author's time or it is merely a 'scribal' variant.

1 As regards the method of treatment I have followed ALSDORF so far as it was suitable. The sections on grammar in his Hr. and Kp. have been throughout kept before view and at several places drawn upon. JACOBI's works are also consulted.

In dealing with the orthography of the Sr., the following cases come for consideration :

Nasalisation

§ 2. As remarked at the outset, one and the same case-ending is at times nasalised, at times the Anunāsika is wanting. Only the statistical method can help to bring order into this state and to decide the dominant or preferred tendency. The question of nasalisation arises in connexion with the following forms :

(1) Locatives and instrumentals. The figures for the nasalised and unnasalised cases are¹ :

	in °हृ	in °हृ
loc. plur.	13	13
instr. „	31	50
loc. sing.	3	15
instr. „	11	11

A few of these cases can perhaps be transferred from the singular to the plural or vice versa, because their context is not helpful in deciding one way or the other.

§ 3. In bringing out the significance of the figures given above, some special remarks are called forth. The state of affairs regarding the orthography of the Mss. of the Sr. is in a way quite different from that of the Mss. of the Hp. In the case of the latter text the Mss. disagree among themselves regarding the spelling of a form at its each particular occurrence in the text, though, taken by itself each particular Ms. is for the most part consistent in spelling that form. Thus, for example, in one Ms. of the Hp. styled A, the ending of the gen. and the loc. sing. of the feminine *अ-*stems and of all the इ- and *उ-*stems is mostly written °हृ, while the Mss. styled B and C have almost always °हृ instead. Now in contrast to this the Mss. of the Sr. show, barring insignificant exceptions, complete agreement in spelling a form at its one particular occurrence. Thus, for a form occurring at a particular place in the text, either all the three Mss. of the Sr. have °हि or all of them have °हि. They scarcely differ among themselves. Hence, the principle of determining the probably original spelling by the substantial majority of one sort of variants over those of the other sorts, though fully valid for the Mss. like those of the Hr., does not serve to solve the orthographical tangle of the Mss. of our text and consequently we have to fall back upon the alternative of assuming in the case of the endings like those considered above a varying pronunciation as °हि or °हि. The proportion of the nasalised and unnasalised cases (2 : 3) indicates that the tendency to pronounce the final vowel of this ending unnasalised was comparatively stronger. These remarks are in substance applicable to other cases of nasalization considered below.

§ 4. (2) Genitives. As we shall see under § 51 A, the Apabhraṃśa presented by our text too, like the Śvetāmbara (or Gurjara) Apabhraṃśa of the San., has the 'assimilated' genitives. And since in the San. the gen. plur. differs from the sing. only in having the final vowel of the ending nasalized, we can naturally expect to find a parallel state in our text. But the genitive plural forms of the feminine ṣ-stems only come up to this expectation. They take °हि in the singular, and °हि in the plural. For the rest such a distinction does not exist. The gen. plur. ending of the अ-stems is completely identical with the sing. ending except possibly in one case उजाण्हँ 193d (plural?) in the constituted text and in random cases in mostly one Ms., e. g., A जोयंतय्हँ-पवहंतय्हँ 54a,b; but such cases are too scanty to deserve more consideration. It is instructive to note that there occur about four gen. sing. forms (कसिणिहि 50c, कंतहँ 104b, असहंतियहँ 131a, आकंतियहँ 131b) with their ending nasalised. As कसिणिहि points out, their nasalisation is but the result of confusion with the plural ending and as such unjustified. Can it suggest that in the case of the gen. plur. ending of the अ-stems too, the nasalisation was optionally present?

§ 5. (3) Nom. and Acc. plur. forms of neuter अ-stems. In our text there is no trace of the neuter forms in °अहँ, excepting three cases which can be shown as occurring under specific conditions (§ 52. Remarks). The case-ending of the two out of these three is written °अइ and of the remaining one, °अद्. In the Prakrit passages we come across one or two cases having their ending unnasalised. There does not occur a single case of 'enlarged' nom. sing. form of neuter अ-stems with the ending °अउं.

§ 6. (4) Pres. indic. 1. sing. In 17 cases all the three Mss. read the ending as °अउ, only once they agree in reading °अउं. Individually, once two Mss. have °अउं, and thrice only one (C). Thus here also the tendency to drop the Anunāsika is overwhelming.

§ 7. (5) Pres. indic. 3. plur. The following figures indicate the comparative strength of different variants for the endings:

°हि	19	°इ	11

Quite casually some one Ms. reads °हिँ for °हि or confusing the third person singular forms in °अइ with the plural forms in °अइँ, nasalizes them. B has some 19 cases of pres. 3. sing. in °अइँ.

§ 8. (6) Individual words. Once (154b) all the Mss. read इउं, once (117d) two and twice (65e, 169e) only one, while thrice (80a, 92a, 134d) they agree in reading हउ. So also the second person singular pronoun appears as तुहु at all its occurrences, while once (77b) we have the modern form तू (B तू). The pronominal forms पइ 7a, तइ 76a, 124a, मउ 81a etc. (more than a dozen occurrences) too appear without their final vowel nasalized. Further are to be mentioned कि 77a, 183a etc. (in combination with other particles: कि-हु 121d, कि-वि (B कि-वि) 91b); कइ (C कइँ) 124a; the locative adverbs तहि 102e, कहि 41d (cf. Hc. II 161); मउ 74b, 79a, 99a. Such forms without the nasal mark are frequent in the Ap. texts composed in Eastern India as can be seen from the Dohā-Kosas. There also we come across हउ, मइ etc. See SHAHIDULLAH, p. 5; JACOBI: San. p. XXVIII mid.

Interchange between इ and य

§ 9. Writing य for इ or vice versa is not uncommon for the orthography of the Jain Mss. in general. But in the Mss. of the Sr. such cases are numerous and what is specifically noteworthy, all the three Mss. show a remarkable agreement in having य or इ at a particular place. This latter fact would suggest the probability of इ having in fact phonetically developed into य. That it was actually so in some cases at least is clearly demonstrated by (i) रुजयण rhyming with मियनयण and कयवरिहि rhyming with दयवरिहि, and by (ii) विउयह (विउय° = विउइ = वियोगी) with the genitive ending °ह instead of °हि.

Such interchange of य, इ is seen also in the language of the Dohā-Kosas and in Old Bengali. For the development of medial °इ° into य under limited conditions in Owr. see TESSITORI, § 4 (5).

On the other hand in some other cases the orthographic origin of य is suggested by a glance at the variants: C falsely reads य for इ 15 times, B 7 times and A 4 times.

§ 10. य is read for इ medial or terminal

(a) in the stem: रय (= रइ = रति) 22a, गय (= गइ = गति) 26b, 105d etc., कयवर (= कइवर = कविवर) 44d, छायउ (= छाइउ = छादिनम्) 148a, विउय (= विउइ = वियोगी) 200d, perhaps also गायं (गाइ 'as if') 53d, णाय (णाइ 'as if') 170b, पायउ (= पाइउ = प्राकृतम्) 183d, केवय (= केवइ = केतकी) 205d, Pk.¹ सयलज (= सइलज = शैलजा) 40a.

(b) in the ending: °यण for °इण in the 'enlarged' instrumentals रुजयण 68e; कइययण 91e, रुइययण 91d.

§ 11. Conversely इ is read for °य° in मइरइउ (= मयरइउ = मकरध्वजः) 22e, आइजिहि (= आयजिहि i. e. आकर्णयति) 45a, अइत्थि (= अयत्थि = अगति) 159b, सइत्ति (= सयत्ति i. e. प्रमुदिता) 169a. The fact that C wrongly reads इ for य in 17 cases, B in 13 cases and A in 9 cases suggests that most of the above-considered cases may be simply orthographic.

§ 12. Ya-śruti. In our text the conditions regulating the appearance of the 'य'श्रुति can be formulated thus: 'य'श्रुति is obligatory between अ आ and अ आ, forbidden before इ ई or उ ऊ and facultative in other cases. The solitary exception °मय्ह (only in B) 137b is not quite certain as the particular text where it occurs has considerably suffered in transmission.

§ 13. ण and न्. Initially both ण or न् appear. Non-initially, when single, ण alone is permitted; when double or compounded with ह mostly it is written न् or न्ह and quite casually ण्.

1 The language of the Pk. Gāthās of the Sr. is considerably influenced by Apabhraṃśa. Hence at several places the illustrations from these Gāthās too have been included in this treatment. On the other hand, doubtful or obscure cases have not been touched upon as a rule.

§ 14. वृ and वृ. Many Ap. Mss. do not distinguish वृ and वृ. They write always वृ for both. Unlike these, the Mss. of the Sr. write वृ and वृ fairly correctly. Only in sundry cases they are confused with each other, as: णिवड (= णिवड = निविड) 47^a etc., विउणउ (= विउणउ = द्विगुणकम्) 136^b, वलाहय (= वलाहय = वलाहक) 160^a, वाह (= वाह = वाप्प) 95^b and 109^b, वोलंत (= वोलंत i. e. अववीत्) 95^c, पुफंवर (= पुफंवर = पुष्पाम्बर) 202^b, Pk. वरहिणी (= वरहिणी = वहिणी) and वरह (= वरह = वर्ह) 213^a; वलिउडय (= वलिउडय) 80^b, वाउलिय (= वाउलिय = व्याकुलिता) 94^b.

For वृ and elision of an intervocalic वृ see §§ 30, 33.

II Sound-Changes

§ 15. Apabhraṃśa phonology is non-existent as an independent entity. It is fundamentally identical with the Pk. phonology. Only a few alterations are peculiar to Ap. or figure in it with a strikingly greater prominence and as such they merit special consideration. Some of these have been already anticipated in the section on Orthography. In the following treatment¹ changes that have been caused under the stress of metre are dealt with first under a separate caption.

Prosodic Alterations

§ 16. A light syllable is made heavy

(a) by lengthening: आलंकियउ (= अलं = अलंकृत enlarged) 48^d, पावासुय (= पा from प्र + वस्) 102^c, 184^a, पावास (= प = प्रवास) 118^c, साहार (= स = सहकार) 134^d, पासाहण (= पा = प्रसाधन) 179^c, संगाइ (= संग i. e. संगेन) 156^b (at the end of a Dohā-pāda), कुणाड (= कुण = कणति) 217^b (at the end of a Paddhādī-pāda); हीय (= हिय = हन) 161^c, लीअय (= लि i. e. लान) 176^b, कीयय (= कि = कृत enlarged) 199^d, अग्गीहर (= अग्गि = अग्निगृह) 194^b;

(b) by gemination of a simple consonant (i) either in the seam of compounds: णवडिभस (= णवभिस = नव-विस) 171^a, चिरगय (= चिरगय = चिरगत) 181^a, सम्भय (= सभय) 208^c, परव्वस (= परवस = परवस) 217^c, Pk. दलच्चहल (so to be read metri causa for the textual दलचहल) 11^a, (ii) or in the body of the word (confined mostly to continuants like nasals, sibilants, liquids): संसाल (= समाल) 56^c, गम्मिज्जइ (= ग) 64^d, गम्मियइ (= गमि) 117^f, गम्मियउ (= गमि) 67^d,

1 The Prakritised passages of the Sr. mostly in Varnavṛttas and the section called वनस्पतिनामानि (St. 55-63) have been partially left out of consideration

संभाणियं (=समा^० i. e. समम्) 78*b*, किम्म-इ (=किम्-इ i. e. कथमपि) 118*c*, दुम्मं (=दुम् = द्रुम्) 194*d*; तुस्वार (=तुसार = तुपार) 184*d*, वुलीण (=वोलीण = व्यक्लीन i. e. व्यतिक्रान्त) 204*c*. विज्जम्भइ (=विज्जम्भते) 25*b* is probably regular as being based on a pronunciation *विज्जंभते;

(c) by the preservation or addition of an Anusvāra: सुहं (the Pk. acc. sing. = सुभम्), णयं (= णाइ 'as if') 53*d*, Pk. अमियंझरणो (= अमिय-झरण = अमृतक्षरण) 33*a*.

It may be remarked en passant that later on, the tendency to consonantal gemination for metrical reasons noted above becomes stronger and stronger so much so that it comes to form a striking characteristic of the language of the Dingala (or Old Mārāvārī) poetic literature cultivated by the bards of Rājaputānā.

§ 17. A heavy syllable is made light

(a) by shortening a long vowel: गंधमोय (=गंधामोय = गंधामोद) 203*a*, झल^१ (=झल = उवाला) 137*f*; सियल (=सीयल = शीतल) 210*c*, बहिरयंति (=वही^० = बधीरयन्ति) 218*d*; हुय (=हूय = भूत) 87*b* etc. कवालिय 185*d* is not कपालिक but कपालिन् enlarged with "कः स्वार्थं". Pk. पहर 72*a* is according to Hemacandra (I 68) shortened from प्रहार, but really speaking it is freshly formed from the verb √पहर (cf. § 46, iii.);

(b) by simplification of a geminated consonant in the seam of compounds: उमुक्क (=उद् + *मुक्क i. e. मुक्त) 25*b*, उरुन्न (=उद् + *रुन्न i. e. रुदित) 97*a*, उछित (=उद् + क्षिप्त) 120*c*, उसास (=उद् + धास) 191*a*, उससंतिय (=उद् + धमती enlarged) 83*c*, उवैय (=उद् + वेग) 136*b*, उगंदीयइ (=उद् + नंदते) 182*b*, दुमइ 120*b*, etc. (7 times), निभंति (i. e. निर्द् + भ्रान्तम्) 138*d*; सउन्न (=सम् + पूर्ण) 24*c*, 98*b*, √समा = सम् + √मा as in समाइ 81*b* and समाणा 80*b*; Pk. समुइ (=सम् + मुख) 13*b*, सपुण्ण (=सम् + पूर्ण) 33*a* (cf. § 31 end);

(c) by the weakening of the अनुस्वार to अनुनासिक in सिगार (so to be read metri causa) for सिगार (=शृङ्गारम्) 167*c*.

Vowel-Changes

(1) Change in the quantity of the vowel.

§ 18. The causative suffix °आव becomes °अव when applied to the roots either ending in a long vowel or having a heavy root-syllable: ठवइ 27*a*, ठविय 135*c* and संठविय 195*c* (all from √ठा), णिम्मविय (from √णिम्मा) 31*a*; विंभविय 46*a*, उरुहवइ 137*f*, 138*b*, धीरवइ 116*d*. मावइ

1 Deśya शब्द "सुगन्धगा", "व्यथे तुष्णा" is different. Our word is preserved in Dingal. See Ved. Kṛṣṇa Rukmanī-ri, 140 b.

(meaning माइ) 141*b* appears to be an exception and बोलावियउ (= बोलावियउ from √बोल्) a fresh analogical formation (cf. Guj. बोलाव्यो).

(2) Change in the quality of the vowel.

§ 19. °अ° becomes इ (mostly in the closed syllable): निमिसिद्धु (= निमिसिद्धु = निमिषार्द्धम्) 19*d*, 30*a*, 68*a*, 182*c*, ससिहर¹ (= ससहर = सशहर) 42*b*, 91*a*, ईखोड (= इन्खोड = अक्खोड = अक्षोट) 56*b*, बलियडय (= बलयडय = बलय + ड enlarged) 80*b*, उक्खिख (= उक्ख = उक्काह्वा) 108*a* (cf. also the variants for °उक्खिरिय 26*a*), कोसिह (= कोसल = कौशल्य) 186*b*, गगिर (= गगर i. e. गद्गद) 29*e*, 66*e*.

It is of orthographical interest to note that in the variants, A reads 19 times इ for अ, B 13 times and C 30 times. For this tendency under special condition in OWR. see TESSITORI § 2 (1).

§ 20. °अ° becomes उ in अंजुलि² (= अजलि) 130*b*, पडदंडउ (= पय° = पददण्डकः) 140*a* and °पडहर (= पय° = पदधरा) 24*b*.

In the variants उ is read for अ 4 times by A, 5 times by B and 9 times by C.

§ 21. °इ° becomes अ in विरहणि (= विरहिणी) 22*e* (Pk. 116*b*), सिहण (= सिहिण = *शिखिनौ i. e. स्तनौ) 28*d*, 135*b*, धरति (= धरिति = धरित्री) 41*b*, दयवर (= दि° = द्विजवर) 44*e*, णिवड (= णिविड = निविड) 47*a*, 64*e*, etc. (9 times; in all cases except two, B reads णिविड), गिरवक्खि (= गिरविक्खि i. e. निरपेक्षम्) 78*a*, वसण (= वसिण = वशेण) 95*e*, भज्जरिय (भज्जरिय) 98*c*, सलज्जरिय (= सलज्जि°) 98*d*, आभंगियइ (= अभि° from अभ्यङ्ग) 101*b*, धरणि (= धरणि = गृहिणी enlarged) 103*b*, विणग्गय (= विणि° = विनिर्गत) 122*a*, 142*b*, सिवण (= सिविण = स्वप्न) 154*a*, नंदणी (= नंदि° = नंदिनी) 170*d*, दंति (= दंति?) 171*c*, °सरि (= सिरि = श्री) 171*d*, विलत्तउ (= विलि° = विलिप्त enlarged) 178*a*, गंदीयइ (= णि° = निंदीयते) 182*a*, विवह (= विविह = विविध) 195*a*, परिखिल्लरी (= परिखिल्लिरी) 219*c*; cf. also the variants for किंकिणी 26*d*, 219*d*.

§ 22. As regards the cases noted above certain phonetic limits allow themselves to be clearly distinguished. Firstly, excepting दयवर, वसण and दंति which may be the result of scribal carelessness, in all the cases °इ° becomes अ only when it is followed or preceded by another इ in the adjoining syllable. Secondly, out of the two इ's thus occurring in juxtaposed syllables, one that stands in the initial or final syllable of the word is preserved; the other becomes अ. But when both the इ's occur medially or if the word is dyssyllabic, it is the final इ that is preserved. In गंदीयद् the second इ is essential for the individuality of the form and also it is long. So the preceding इ though initial has to change. Thus the process of dissimilation plays here an active role. In the variants अ is read for इ 25 times in A, 16 times in B, 30 times in C. For the general tendency of इ > अ in OWR. see TESSITORI § 4 (1).

1 ससिहर occurs also in the Veli Kṛiṣaṇ Rukamaṇī-rī, 27 d. cf. दिणियर = दिणयर (= दिनकर) in Dhōlā-Mārurā Duhā.

2 अंजुलि occurs also in the Rāmacaritamānasa I, 101, 7*a*.

SHAHIDULLAH connects √सुग with Sk. √सन् (cf. PISCHEL, § 489), but its derivation from Sk. √स्रा by anaptyxis appears least objectionable.

§ 23. °उ° becomes अ.

(a) In individual words: फरसउ (= फरु° = फरुद enlarged) 18c, 144c, 222c, पलट्टिहि (= पलट्टिहि) 117c; उत्तंग (= उत्तुंग) 24b, चउमगणी (= चउमगुणी i. e. चतुर्गुणा) 156b, कुसम (= कुसुम) 183f, 193d, Pk. कुकस (= कुकुस) 16 b. In the last four cases the second of the two उ's in the consecutive syllables is dropped. The cases निवडम्बर (= निवडु° i. e. निविडोद्भर) 47a, सलिलम्भव (= सलिलु° = सलिलोद्भव 66b, रहसच्छल (= रहसु° = रभसोच्छल) 179c, सूरगउ (= सूरु° = सूरोद्गमः) 181b, गंधकुरिस (= गंधु° = गन्धोत्कर्ष) 195a, सुकुलगय (= सुकुलु° = सुकुलोद्गम) 152a may have an orthographic origin. Among the Mss., C exhibits a stronger tendency than either A or B to drop the उ-hook. A drops it 5 times, B 5 times, but C 18 times. The figures exclude the cases of nominative singular forms without the उ-hook. For the tendency of अ > उ in OWR. see TESSITORI, § 5 (1).

(b) The ending °उ of the nominative sing. of the masculine अ-stems is dropped sometimes when it is followed by an enclitic: इक्क-इ (= इकु-इ = एकम्+अपि) 99d, अन्न-इ (= अन्नु° = अन्यद्+अपि) 117b, पुण-वि (= पुणु वि = पुनः+अपि) 137f, etc.

(c) सु°, prefixed to adjectival words as an emphatic element becomes स°. For the examples see § 48, ii.

§ 24. The cases of इ appearing as य and °व° appearing as इ have been previously dealt with under §§ 10, 11. Further, °उ° becomes व in गेवर (= गेउर = नूपुर) 27d, 171d, °आवलय (= आउ° = आउल enlarged) 113d, °गोवर (= गोउर = गोपुर) 178d; Pk. पावस (= पाउस = प्रावृष्) 153b.

For the same tendency in Gujarāṭī see TURNER 'Gujarāṭī Phonology' (JRS. 1921), § 29.

§ 25. ए becomes इ¹

(a) always, when in a closed syllable: पिक्खइ (=पेक्खइ = प्रेक्षते) 96c and other forms and derivatives from √पिक्ख, मिल्हउ (from √मैल्ल) 86c and other forms of √मिल्ह, इक्क (= ऐक्क = एक) 100c and its other derivatives, सिज्ज (= सैज्ज = शय्या) 173c, etc. etc.

(b) casually, in an open syllable: इम (= एम) 54a, तिम (= तेम) 103d, जिम (= जेम) 103d, किम (= केम) 69b, इहु (= एहु = एषः) 151d, हिमंत (= हेमन्त) 186b, 204b.

cf. TESSITORI, § 7 (1).

§ 26. ओ becomes उ

(a) always, when in a closed syllable: दुग्घिय (= दौ = *दौर्गतिक) 18d, सुत्तिय (= मो = मौक्तिक) 118d, जुन्ह (= जो = जोन्हा = ज्योत्स्ना) 160d, कंदुट्ट (= कंदोट्ट) 162a, कुंज (= कोंज = कौष) 164c, णवजुव्वणी (= णवजो = नवयौवना) 220a.

(b) casually, in an open syllable: णिउइय (= णिओ = नियोजित) 112b, विउय (= विओइ = योगी) 200d, सुसंतिय (= सो = शोषयन्ती enlarged) 123c.

cf. TESSITORI, § 8.

§ 27. Vowel contraction. (a) In individual words:

*अया > आ in सुन्नार (= *सुन्नआर = खर्णकार) 108a, साहार (= सहआर = सहकार) 134d, similarly सहार 211d, अंधार (= अंधआर = अंधकार) 139c;

*इइं > ई in तीयय (= *तिइयय = तृतीयक);

*अउ > ओ in तो (= तउ = ततः) 18d, 29c, सामोर (= सम्मउर = *संबउर = शम्भपुर)² 42a, मोर (= मऊर = मयूर) 212b, Pk. आसोय (= आसउय = अश्वयुज enlarged) 172a, cf. also इंदोअ (= इंदओव = इन्द्रगोप) 143d, चंपण्ल (= चंपयण्ल = चंपकतैल) 187d; cf. relevant cases from TESSITORI § 9, 11;

*इअ > इ in पडिलिउ³ (= प्रति+अलीकम्? cf. Pāli अलिक 'contrary'; पच्चलिउ

1 A comparison of the inflected forms of one specimen of Ap. like that represented by, say, the Mahāpurāṇa of Puṣpadanta with those of another specimen like one represented by our text (e. g. instr. sing. in *एण or *ऐणः that in *इण, instr. plur. in एहिं or ऐहिं; that in *इहिं, loc. sin. in *इं; that in *इ, gen. sing. in *इहे; that in *इहि, abs. in *एवि or ऐवि; that in *इवि; nom. sing. in उः that in *अ, abl. sing. in *अहे; that in *अहु etc.) naturally compels one to include the terminational elements, also in the phonetic treatment. But to do so appears premature as yet, since it involves unsolved chronological and dialectological problems relating to Apabhramśa.

2 See KATRE: 'A Mushm contribution to Apabhramśa literature'—The Karmāṭaka Historical Review, Jan.—July 1937, p 18f.

3 पडिह्वा occurs also in the Sc. VIII 35b.

He. IV. 420) 89*b*, 100*d*, 106*d*, 162*d*—cf. Ardha-Māgadhī पडिणीय = प्रति+अनीक ; °इउ°>उ in √पडुंज (= पडिउंज i. e. प्रति+√युज्) 110*b*, 223*a*—beside √पडिउंज at 91*a*, पडुत्तय (= पडिउत्तय = प्रतिवृत्त enlarged) 124*d*—beside पडिउत्त 222*a*. For the loss of the final °इ of पडि° (<प्रति) in a compound when followed by a dissimilar vowel see PISCHEL, § 163, where it is said to be mostly confined to Ardha-Māgadhī.

§ 28. (b) Besides the above-considered cases, there is a series of contractions which possesses a morphological interest¹:

firstly, °अय is contracted to आ at the end (i) of the enlarged mase./neu. अ-stems: तृग° (= तृय i. e. तूर enlarged with “कः स्वायें”) in तृगरव 218*d* and Pk. तंडुल्य° (= तंडुलय i. e. तण्डुल enlarged) in तंडुलाखीरी 16*a*; (ii) of the nom. acc. plur. forms of mase./neu. अ-stems: e. g., दद्वय becomes दद्वा 166*b* (see § 41).

secondly, इय is contracted to ई at the end of the enlarged fem. इ-stems. Thus Sk. मंजरी appears in Ap. as मंजरि in accordance with the Law of Shortening of the Finals (see § 11). When enlarged with “कः स्वायें”, it becomes मंजरिय. Finally मंजरिय is contracted to मंजरी (210*b*) and consequently it converges with the tatsama मंजरी. For other such cases in our text see § 41 (d);

thirdly, following the analogy of such enlarged feminines in °इय, final °इय of whatever origin is in some cases contracted to ई: pret. part. चडिय becomes चडी 161*d* and probably तुडिय becomes तुडी 78*b*, पालिय (= पालिका?) becomes पाली 79*b*, पडिडिय (162 d) becomes पडिडी 89*b*; finally, for the instrumentals in °ई<°इय see § 56.

This tendency has fully worked out itself in Gujarātī. See TURNER, § 27 (3), (4); DAVE, p. 6.

§ 29. Loss of initial vowel. वक्खर (= उवक्खर = उपरकर?) 95 d, रज (= अरण्य = अरण्य) 146*a*, रविद° (= अरविद) 183*b*, Pk. 34*a*.

cf. TESSITORI § § 2 (4), 5 (3).

§ 30. Like the ya-śruti, va-śruti too appears in stray cases (between उ and a following vowel, as also between any two vowels) to bridge up the hiatus created by the elision of

1 See Hp. p. 154, § 25; As. p. 7 ff.

2 This raises a strong presumption in favour of there being रविद at those places where ALSDORF would rather have अरविद. See Hp. p. 159 foot-note.

an intervocalic stop: खइ (= रुदति) 25*a* etc. (thrice), उवर (= उदर) 135*a*, केवइ (= केतकी) 53*d* etc. (thrice), चावइ (= चातकी) 133*a*.

cf. TESSITORI, § 34.

§ 31. Anusvāra and Anunāsika. For the Anunāsika see §§ 2-8. Final Anusvāra is present in जं 27*a*, 82*c* etc., तं 28*c*, 41*a* etc., किं 91*c* (किं पि 82*c*), णं 96*d*, 97*d* etc.; besides these, in णयं 53*d*, खणं 166*d* and सुहं 201*a* (the last two, Pk. accusatives used adverbially) it owes its presence to metre. It is a quite possible alternative to assume that समुह, सउण्ण and समाइ (see § 17(b)) represent respectively समुह, etc. through a weakening of the nasal in संमुह (= संमुख), etc. With सउण्ण and संपुण्ण cf. कि-वि and किपि.

Consonant-Changes

a) SINGLE CONSONANTS

§ 32. Voicing. The stray cases of voicing that are met with in the Sr., to wit, अण्ण (= अनेक) 177*b*, एण (= एक) 180*d*, वण (= वक) 140*d* (besides one case of the preservation of a voiced consonant in जण (= जगत्) 137*e*) are quite familiar to the Prakrit. अगर 189*a* retains the °गृ. कुंज (= कंज) 164*e* and perhaps पङ्ग 188*d*—reading uncertain—(= पर्यङ्क) present rare cases of voicing a voiceless stop in the group (nasal+stop)—a trait of the Sindhi-Panjābi-Lahndā group.

§ 33. Changes of म् and व्

A. Intervocalic म् (through व्) becomes व्, which according to C. below is occasionally¹ elided: डवण (= दमन) 62*d*, उन्नवियय (= उन्नमित enlarged) 148*b*, खन्नउ (= *रमण्यकम्) 180*c*, 201*b*, खण्णिज (= रमणीय) 207*d*; ठाड (= loc. sing. from *ठाव = ठाम = स्थामन्) 43*c*, etc., सउ (= सवुं = समम्) 74*b*, 79*a*, 99*a*, पउक (= पवुंक = प्रसुक?) 111*c*, 217*b*, सूरुगउ (= *सूरुगवुं = सूरुद्रमम्) 181*b*, पंचउ (= पंचवुं = पञ्चमम्) 183*d*, सुयरतिय (= *सुवे° = सुम = स्मरती enlarged) 191*b*, धृण (= *धृविण = धूमेण?) 193*b*. Elsewhere in the text, the °मृ is retained in the words that are identical with or allied to the above-treated cases, e. g. पंचमु 53*c*, रमणीउ 183*a*, etc. In वम्मह (= मन्मथ) 97*b*, 103*a* (quite common in Pk.), though initial, म् has become व् through dissimilation.

B. Conversely nasalised व् (i. e. वं) becomes म् in इम 54*a*, जिम 103*d*, तिम 103*d*, किम 69*b* respectively from एम < एवं, etc.

1 This and similar facts indicate that in the mixed language of the Sr. forms belonging to an earlier phonetic stage and those belonging to a later stage stand side by side with each other. •

C. Intervocalic व् original or secondary (i. e. resulting from an original व्, व् or म्) is elided in a considerable number of cases:

(a) before the initial इ or ए of an ending or a suffix;
 (i) in the final syllable: सरलाइवि (= सरलाविवि, abs. from √ सरलाव = *सरलावय्) 26b, मंनाएवि (= मंनावैवि) 74a, भाइयइ (= भावि° i. e. भाव्यते) 52a, चडाइयइ (= चडावि° from √ चडाव) 52b, लाइयइ (= लावि° from √ लाव i. e. लाग्य्) 189a, सुहाइयइ (= सुहावि° = सुहायते) 189b; धृज्जइ (= धृवि° from √ धृव = धृप्य्) 189a; रुइवि (= रुविवि, abs. from √ रुव). 67a, मंनाइ (= मंनावि, abs. from √ मंनाव): भाइण (= भाविण = भावेण) 93c, 183d, धृइण (= *धृविण = धृमेन) 193b; *भाइ (= भावि i. e. भावेन) 19c, ठाइ (= *ठावि = ठामि from स्थामन्) 43c, etc.; पाइ (= *पावि = पापिन्) 191f, पाइय (= पाविय from √ पाव = प्राप्) 114b;
 (ii) in the body of the word: कयवर (= कइ° = कवि°) 44d;

(b) before (mostly) the terminational उ and medial उ or ओ: रउ (= रयु = रवः) 45b, etc. (five times), संताउ (= संतायु = संतापः) 76b, जीउ (= जीयु = जीवः) 154e, 217d, पाउ (= पायु = पापम्) 206d, तंडउ (= तंडयु = ताण्डवम्) 212b; सउ, सूरगउ, पंचउ (see A. above); मयउ (= *मययु = मृगयु) 83b; सउन्न (= *सउन्न = संपूर्ण) 24e, तितर (= *तिवर = त्रिपुर) 42b, अउव्व (= *अवुव्व = अपूर्व) 46a; पउक (see § 33); विउदी (= विवुदिय i. e. विवुदी enlarged) 154a; कओल (कवोल = कपोल) 187b.

(c) before अ: तिहुयण (= त्रिभुवन) 18a, etc. (thrice), भुयण (= भुवन) 130d, etc. (thrice), सुयरंतिय (see A. above), cf. सकोयल (A B; = सकोमलम्) 123c, धुय (= ध्रुवम्) 209b; णिअत्तय (= णिवत्तय = निवृत्त enlarged) 30d, Pk. अणियत्त (= अणिवत्त = अनिवृत्त) 84a and अणियत्ती (= अणिवत्ति = अनिवृत्ति) 128a, इअ (= इव) 193d; णेय (= नैव) 30d, 99c, 111b etc.; गोयंगण (= गोवंगण = गोपाद्गण) 116b.

In many a case the alternative form with the व् preserved also occurs in the text. This tendency to drop intervocal व् is discernible in the Midland dialects Braj, Kharī Bolī, etc. For Early Maithilī cf. Vr. § 18.

§ 34. Miscellaneous.

A. °स् becomes ह् in³ संनेह° (= संदेस = संदेश) 19b, Pk. 4b, दह

1 Dīngal has पुह्य in accordance with this tendency. In the light of other cases from the text collected here (cf. PISCHEL see also § 35 (vi) below) there would remain no difficulty in the way of connecting संनेह with संदेश as against सखेह which otherwise suggests itself as the Sk. original of संनेह (See KATRE: 'A Muslim contribution to Apabhramśa Literature'—The Karmāṭaka Historical Review, Jan.—July 1937, p. 16). The derivation is also supported by the com. and the subject-matter of the poem.

2 In desinences the ह् in the gen. sing., in the h-future and in °हि of the pres. 2. sing. derives from an original स्.

(= दस = दशन्) 58*b*, 145*a*, दिवह (= दिवस) 123 b, Pk. 126*a*, 127*b*, निवेदिय (= निवेसिय = निवेशित) 189*d*; Pk. वरिहण (= वरिसण = वर्षण) 84*a* and √साह 'tell' (= शास्, not साध्) as in साहेद् 82*b*, साहि 104*b*.

B. Loss of °ह°. Only four genuine cases of the elision of an intervocalic ह् are offered by our text: pres. 3. plur. forms in °इ (see § 62), तूं (77*b*) from तुहुँ, the pronominal form तुअ (= तुह) 78*b*, 86*d*, etc. and probably वडाऊ (<*वट्वाहुय = वट्म + वाह् + उक्) 222*c*. वीउन्ह (= वीहुन्ह = वीघोण्) 83*b* etc. is haplological (see § 40. iii). The other cases are either only apparent or doubtful: सउ 74*b*, etc. is quite satisfactorily derivable from समम् (see § 33. A.) and hence we need not look for it to सहु (= सह). सदतिहि 169*a* is not सहितभि: as taken by the com. सदत्त (= सयत्त) is altogether a different word. cf. Des. VIII 5: सयनो मुदितः.

For this tendency in the language of the Dohā-Kośas, see SHAHIDULLAH, p. 34. For OWR. see TESSITORI, § 37.

b) CONJUNCTS

§ 35. i. °ज् of the passive appears as उक् in √क्षिज्झ = क्षिज (from √क्षि): क्षिज्झति 103*d*, क्षिज्झउ 165*a*, क्षिज्झंत 165*a*. The alternative form also occurs: क्षिजइ 156*b*. cf. Mārkaṇḍeya, Prākṛtasarvasva, p. 63; 7, 20.

ii. ज् of √ज्वल् optionally becomes झ or ब. झाल 131*c*, etc. (four times), झलकंत 131*c*, झलकंतिय 140*a* and झलक्किय 106*d* (all from √झलक्क = ज्वल्, see § 46. i.); बलइ 113*c*. Forms with ज (ज) also occur: जलंतिय 131*c*, पजलिय 170*c*.

iii Geminated ल् becomes aspirated in the forms of √मिन्ह (from √मेल्ल): मिन्हउ 86*c*, etc. (refer to the शब्दकोष under √मिन्ह).

For this change in Early Maithili see Vr. § 22. cf. TESSITORI, § 42. Old Bengali also has √उल्हस from √उल्लस.

iv. The group (sibilant+stop) appears as double stop (a) in the seam of compounds: अन्नरिय (= आश्रय) 120*d*, Pk. 149*b*, चउक्कय (= चतुक्क enlarged) 125*b* (contrast जोइक्क 8*b* = ज्योतिष्क), दुत्तर (= दुस्तर) 142*a*, दुक्कर (= दुष्कर) 204*d*, Pk. दुप्पच्छ (= दुष्पेक्ष) 11*a*; (b) in other cases: °सकुलिय (= सकुलिय = शाकुलिका) 23*b*, Pk. अवहट्टय (= अपभ्रष्ट enlarged) 6*a*.

v. The group (nasal+non-nasal stop) is assimilated to double nasal in संनेह° (= संदेश = संदेश) 19*c*, Pk. संनेहय 4*c*, cf. संनेहउउ (A) 80*a* (otherwise संदेशउ 68*b*, etc.), सामोर (= °सम्मउर - °सम्भउर = शाम्भपुर) 42*a*. In Early Maithili this tendency to assimilate a post-nasal stop has already set in. See Vr. § 13, end. For Gujarātī cf. TURNER, 'Gujarātī Phonology' (JRAS, 1921), § 78.

vi. Nasal+consonant instead of double consonant is found in सुंदड (from सुदा+ड enlarged) 81*b* (cf. Early Avadhī सुँद), निद (= निदा) 190*a*, 191*b*, णंदीयड (= निंदीयते) 182*a*, अंसु (= अंशु) 89*b*, 118*c*, (already in Pk.), फंस from रपरी in फंसहि 98*b*; पंखुडिय (= पंखुडिय) 27*d*, सुंध (= सुग्धा) 66*d*, सुंधि 82*d*, etc. (five times), विभल (= विम्भल = विह्वल) 46*c*; ओसासंभम (= उच्छ्वास-भ्रम) 97*a*, संकाश (= सत्काश ?) 163*b*.

§ 36. vii. Simplification of a double consonant. This New Indo-Aryan tendency is attested by several words:

(a) without compensatory lengthening in सकुलिय (= सकु° = शकुलिका) 23*b*, कणयार (= कण्णयार = कणिकार) 60*b*, वखाणियड (= वक्खा° from व्याख्यान) 65*a*, कपुर (= कर्पूर) 79*a*; इकनि (= इकन्ति from एकत्र) 80*b*, इकलिय (= इक्° from एक+ल् enlarged) 92*b*, इकट्ट (= इक्कट्ट = एकस्य) 180*d*—all of these are words with their first two syllables heavy in the original; चूडिलउ (= चूडिलउ = चूडा+इल् enlarged) 110*d* (cf. चूडिलउ 113*i*) and झलकंन (from √ झलक्) 131*c*, 140*a*—both with a heavy suffix; मयउ (= मयवु = मृगव्यु) 83*b*, आलय (= आलस्य) 105*d*, पलटंति (cf. पलटि 130*c*) 195*d*, सवि (= सव्वे = सर्वे) 209*b*; °स (= °रस) of the pronominal gen. sing. as in तसु 85*d*, 94*e*, f, जसु 70*a*, कस 49*a* and °स (= °रस) of the future as in कहिसु 91*c*, पयसिसु 117*b*.

(b) with compensatory lengthening in वेसा (= वेस्ता = वेद्या) 46*b*, ऊसास (= उस्सास = उच्छ्वास) 97*a*, ऊसारिय (= उस्सारिय = उत्सारित) 186*d*, नीसास (= निस्सा° = निःश्वास) 83*c*, 85*c*, नीसरड (= निस्स° = निस्सरति) 54*c*, वीसरड (= विस्स° = विस्सरति) 54*c*, दीसहि (from दिस्स° = दृश्य°) 68*d*, सीस° (= सिस्स = शीर्षन्) 178*c*, पीसियड (from पिस्स = पित्य°) 187*a*, संमीसियड (from संमिस्स = सम्+मिश्र) 187*b*, Pk. दूसड (from दुस्स° = दुध्य°) 40*b* and आसोय (= *अस्सउय = अश्रुयुज् enlarged) 172*a*; in the the gen. ending in जासु 70*a* and पियासु 70*b*—all these cases involve simplification of °स्स°; बोलावियउ (= बोल्हा° from √ बोल्ह) 41*c*, बोल्त (= बोल्हंत) 95*c*, फोफल (= फोफल = पूगफल) 188*b*, सामोर (= सम्मउर = सम्बउर = शाम्बपुर) 42*a*, ईखोउ (= इक्खोउ = अक्षोट) 56*b*, ताकं (= तक्कं from √ तक्क) 104*a*, जागंतिय (= जग्ग° from *जाग्र° i. e. जाग्र°) 147*c*, परावसि (= परववसि = परवशा) 151*b*, राव (= गवन् - गर्व) 202*b*; आभंगियड (= अभग्° from अभ्यङ्ग ; C reads अभंगियड) 101*b*.

§ 37. viii. Simplification of a consonant-group following a long syllable, with once more reduction of the consonant resulting from this simplification is seen in दीह (= दीघ = दीर्घ) 25*c*, वाह 95*b* or बाह (= *बाघ = बाघ) 109*b* etc., जीह (= *जीमा = जीहा) 132*a*; Pk. °माड (= माथ = *माता = मात्रा) 32*a* and तंतीवाय (= तंतीवाय ?) 10*a*. Most of these cases are already known to Pk. (especially to Ardha-Māgadhi)¹.

In विहल° (= *विभल = विहल) 130*d*, in the postposition °महि in मणोमहि (= मनोमये; contrast मज्झहि 203*c*) 166*a* and probably in अरविय (= अरविन्द) 137*a* this sort of double reduction (or "double shift") is seen even though the preceding vowel is short.

§ 38. Anaptyxis².

(a) Some notable cases in general: सणेह (= षेह) 19*d*, 88*b* and सिणेह 100*b* (otherwise णेह 23*a*); समरंत (from स्मर) 86*a*, समरिय 181*a* and सुमरंत 103*b* etc. (otherwise सरवि 97*b*, सारसि 165*d*); °सरि (= श्री) 171*d*, वरसंतिय (from वर्ष) 183*d*, दरसिय (from दर्श) 223*b*, दरसिज्ज 164*a*, हरसिय (from हर्ष) 223*c*, Pk. वरहणी (बर्हिणी) 213*a*, वरह (= वर्ह) 213*a*—all these on the one hand and वरिस (= वर्ष) 204*a*, फरिस (= स्पर्श) 191*c*, etc., °(अ)करिस (= उत्कर्ष) 195*a*, Pk. वरिहण (= वर्षण) 84*a*—all these on the other; this collocation shows the newly-developed tendency of using अ as the 'parting' vowel side by side with the old इ. Further we have to add सुविण (= स्वप्न) 94*c*, etc., करिण (= कृष्ण) 177*a*; मणमथ (= मन्मथ) 83*a* and तत्तक्खणे (= तत्क्षणे) 82*a* (both metri causa); पडिउट्टिय (= प्रति+उत्थित i. e. प्रत्युत्थित) 28*a*;

cf. TESSITORI, § 2 (6) a.

(b) Certain form-types based on anaptyxis. The absolutives in °इय (§ 68) like निवेसिय have evolved from the prototypes like निवेद्य by the dissolution of the consonant-group in the final syllable. Same is the case with the passives in °इयइ/°इज्जइ. (§ 71). Forms like Sk. कथ्यते would give *कहियण and after the substitution of the active for the middle endings, कहियइ; difference in accent would develop this further into कहिज्जइ (PISCHEL § 91). And finally the gerundives in °इय/°इज्ज. (§ 70): here also the Sk. gerundives like कथ्य would give कहिय and कहिज्ज in accordance with the difference in accent, the twofold development being exactly parallel to that of the passive ending.

cf. also the two isolated instrumentals उससंतिया and वरसंतिया³ (§ 44).

§ 39. Gemination. It relates to the intervocalic stops which otherwise are elided in the Middle Indo-Aryan. It appears in पंडित (= पंडित) 20c, मणमत्य (= मन्मथ) 83a, तत्तत्त्वणे (= तत्त्वणेत्य 82a, पडिल्लिय (cf. पडिलिउ 106d, see § 27) 162d, तिलक्किवि (from तिलक्क = तिलक्क) 168a, अलिक्य (= अलीक enlarged) 211a, Pk. सयलज (= सड² = शैलजा) 40a.

1 cf. SHAHIDULLAH, p. 37-38.

2 It is to be borne in mind that the cases noted in this as well as the next article mostly concern words that are semi-tatsama or 'modified borrowings' from Sanskrit.

3 सं. रा.

Three novel cases based on assimilation are पंडित (= पाण्डित्) 19a, गितु (= नित्यम्) 202d (beside णिच्च 115d) and रत्थ (= रथ्या) 218 (beside रच्छ 175b).

§ 40. Other casual phenomena.

i. Consonantal assimilation is found in फोफल (= फोफल = *फोफल = पूगफल) 188b. cf. also 46c (BC) भिभल = *भिम्भल = विम्भल = विह्वल. Note also vocalic assimilation in सिवण (for सिविण) 154a from सुविण (= स्वप्न). Besides these cases of regressive assimilation, we have in √स्त्रिज्ज (§ 35, i) for स्त्रिज्ज a case of progressive assimilation.

ii. Metathesis explains पावयण² (= पावणय = प्रापणक्) 28c, and विमुंडलय 115a for विसुंडलय. Both may be simply orthographie.

iii. Loss of a syllable (or a consonant): (a) haplological in दीउन्ह (= दीहुन्ह = दीघोण्) 83b, 111a, Pk. 90a, जाइसि (= जाइसिसि) 41d, दुक्खिज्जिया (= दुक्खलिज्जिया = दुःखलिज्जा) 85b, 147a; similarly दुक्खिज्जि 115c to be somehow derived from दुक्ख+खिय (?) (cf. Pk. खिज्जिअ = खिज्ज); छेअर (= छेययर = छेकर) 18d, पहियण (= पहियण = पथिक-जन) 31b, णिह्यर (= णिह्ययर = निर्दयतर) 67d; (b) relating to a medial ²य followed by a conjunct in कंटयग (= कंटयग्ग = कण्टकग्र) 206b.

iv. Contamination appears responsible for वपेस (in पेसिय 95c, पेसिज्ज 140a) = √पेह² ~ √पास. If गुहिर (49c, Pk. 37a) cannot be satisfactorily explained as made up of √गुह+²इर (participial suffix, see § 46. ii.), we have to assume that it has resulted from गहिर (= गभीर) being contaminated with गुहा or कुहर. cf. SHAHIDULLAH, p. 35 mid.

Law of Shortening of the Finals

§ 41. Following ALSDORF (see As. p. 7) we can thus express the law: the most outstanding change that characterises the Ap. linguistic stuff as contrasted with the Pk. one is the shortening of the final vowel of all the mono- or poly-syllabic words. In other words, all the purely Ap. words (including the feminine bases) always end in a short vowel. This powerful tendency is intersected by (1) Prakritisms and (2) lengthening due to secondary contraction. The latter counter-tendency gains much ground later on and becomes a normal feature of the New Indian phonology.

In several of the exceptions to the above law in our text, the length of the final vowel is protected by a following enclitic. Thus we have का-वि 41*c*, 47*c*, 48*a*; के-वि 195*d*, 196*a* (कि-वि also occurs), सो-वि 197*b*; ने-वि 80*b*; को-इ 94*c*, 183*c*, d; को-पुण 94*f*, ते-य 103*a*, दिसा-य 193*b*.

Contraction explains (a) nom. and acc. plurals (see § 28. ii.) गाहा 31*b*, भणिया 31*b*, अणुरत्ता 55*d*, दद्धा 77*b*, समाणा 80*b*, थद्धा¹ 150*b*, दद्धा 166*b*; दोहा 74*b*, दोह्या 82*b*, गाहा 41*a*; (b) acc. sing. दोहा (masc.) 88*b*; (c) fem. nom. singulars in °आः पवसिया 70*a*, घल्लिया 92*a* and मिल्हिया 92*b* (each of the three ending a पाद); cf. गाहाइ 113*f*; (d) enlarged fem. इ-stems appearing with °ई: छायांती 29*a*, झंपंती 29*b*, विहसंती 48*a*, जंपंती 50*c*, झिजंती 68*d*, दिंती 70*b*, विलवंती 118*e*, कुणंती 155*a*, णियंती 186*a*, धरंती 217*d*; तुट्टी 78*a*, हुई 199*e*, विउट्टी 154*a*, चउग्गणी 156*b*, चही 161*d*, विट्टी 182*d*; मणोहरीउ—झुणीउ 216*c*, d, परव्वसीउ 217*c*; णवजुव्वणीहिं 220*a*, °कंखिरीहिं 220*b*; कलीहि 205*d*; किंकिणीहिं 179*d*, 219*d*, परिव्विहरीहिं 219*c*; पिंजरीहिं 210*a*, °मंजरीहिं 210*b*. °आलसीइ—परावसीइ 151*a*, b are metrically unsupportable. (e) masc. in इय appearing with °ई: पाळी 79*b*, पट्टी 89*b*; (f) enlarged उ-stems appearing with °ऊ: निवू (= निवूय) 59*c*, आरू (= आरूय) 56*b*; (g) तू 77*b* (in a Dohā) quite familiar to the New Indian.

There are prosodic grounds for सो 111*b* (in a यमक) and दिसाहु 201*b* (at the end of a trochaically closing पाद).

The rest are the feminines सा 27*c*, चंवा 55*c*, इच्छा 169*d*; pronominal plurals के 45*a*, ते 94*c*, 206*b*; the indeclinable अह्वा 91*b*.

§ 42. Light and heavy endings. Most of the dyssyllabic flexion-endings in Ap. appear in a double form, as light (~~) or heavy (~~). Thus the absolutes end in °इवि or एवि. This double set of endings has arisen either due to the end-syllable of the stem being anceps or due to the employment of the Pk. endings besides the corresponding usual Ap. ones. As in the San. and Kr., here also in every case the forms with the light endings far exceed those with the heavy ending. Thus masc. अ-stems:

instr. sing. in °इण (°यण) 26 times in °एण 9 times;

- 1 These six words except अणुरत्ता occur in the Dohā-portion of the text whose language appears in certain respects a bit more advanced in development than that of the rest of the text.
 - 2 Fem. forms in °अ or °इ occurring in Prakritized stanzas have been excluded from this consideration.

instr. plur. in °इहि/°अहि about 60 times in °एहि 8 times;
gen. sing. in °अह almost always in °आह once, in आहु
(in a Dohā) twice;

present indicative :

3. sing. in °अइ almost always in °एइ 4 times;

3. plur. in °अहि/°इहि or °अइ 34 times in °अंति 22 times, in °एहि once.

optative :

2. sing. in °इय 7 times in °इज् thrice.

absolute :

in °इवि/°अवि 61 times in °एवि 5 times.

In most of these cases (excepting the pres. 3 plur. forms) the cause of the employment of the forms with the heavy ending is the trochaic rhyme (of the पद्वी or दोहा).

Regarding the vowel-harmony in the case of the h-endings of the genitive, see § 51 A.

§ 43. Sandhi. In a compound in many cases the initial vowel of the second member is joined with the final vowel of the first, but frequently also the two members are merely juxtaposed without such vocalic coalescence, this being quite usual in the Pk. sandhi. So we have गिम्हागम 130*a*, and सर-आगम 53*b*, विवरंतर 49*c* and घण-अंतर 142*a*, दीहुन्ह 66*b* and पीण-उन्नय 45*c*, etc. भाउलं 208*b* is भा-आकुलम्.

Specially to be noted are the four cases of sentence-sandhi: नासासिहसि (= न आ°) 191*e*, णविउ (= ण आ°) 197*c*; Pk. ताणणु (= ताण अणु) 7*a*¹, and perhaps विसमुद्धियउ (= विसमु उद्धियउ) 86*a*.

Initial conjunct in the seam of compounds is represented by a single (e. g. थोर-थणि 24*a*) or conjunct (e. g. °कर-द्वियउ 86*b*) consonant according to metrical convenience.

III MORPHOLOGY

STEM-FORMATION: AFFIXES

§ 44. We come across a stray remnant² of the old consonant declension. It is the dative विग्धिणे (from विघ्नन् in the sense of विघ्नकर्तृ) 85c. It appears in the final position in a वर्णवृत्त each one of whose quarters closes with a रगण.

1 For the Pk. sandhi-law governing these cases see हरिभद्र's समराश्चक्रहा (ed. JACOB), introduction, pp. xxviii-xxix.

2 विग्धिणे (= निर्धृणाय?) 85*d* and पयहृत्थिण (com. = पादत्राणहस्ताः) 140*c* are not clear to me.

The semi-tatsama fem. instr. forms उससंतिया (= उच्छ्वसन्त्या) 83c and वरसंतिया (= वर्षन्त्या) 83d also occur in an identical metrical position.

§ 45. Normalization of the stems.

i. Stems in °इ, °उ or °इन् are transferred to the standard °अ-declension (a) either by the addition of the stem-enlarging suffix °य (= “कः स्वार्थे”) as in अनुराइय (अनुरागिन्) 22a, कामिय (कामिन्) 22a, जंबुय (जंबू) 60d; रिसिय (ऋषि) 159b; अंमुय (अंशु) 50b, अयस्य (अगर) 61b, तरुय (तरु) 192d; and the feminines in °इय like णट्टणिय 45d, etc. (see § 41, (d)); or directly as in °राहि (instr. sing. from राहु) 24a, तुंबरि (instr. sing. from तुंबरु) 53d, तरणि (instr. sing. from तरणि) 203b, अस (= अय) 158b, संनिह (= संनिधि) 167a, 189c, तणि (loc. sing. तण = तनु) 187c, 189a, इवख° (= इक्षु) 195b. Cf. ḍingal locatives like तनि (from तनु), तरि (from तरु).

ii. Under the influence of masc. अ-declension, the fem. अ- and इ-stems take also °इ to form instr. sing. (see §§ 54, 56).

§ 46. Stem-forming suffixes.

i. The verbal determinative °क signifying momentary and rapid action in a general way is represented in a few words: चमकउ 50b, √झलक (from उवल) in झलकउ 106d, etc., थकिय (from स्था) 142c, तडक 148c, चक्किकि (from चर्च?) 188b.

ii. The suffix °इर forms adjectives in the sense of the present participle. We have उक्खिर 26a, 94a, आक्खिरिय 134a, कंखिर 133a etc. (thrice), लज्जिर 28a etc. (four times), परिचोलिर 46a, मल्लिरय 50b, विओइरिय 118a, पहल्लिर 133d; भज्जिरिय 98c, परिखिहरी 219c (see § 22).

iii. Action nouns in °अ (or °अय). चमकय 52b, उज्जगय 105c, गम 113a, °अत्थम 113b, °कुट्ट 173d, चढ (f.) 45d, भीड (f.) 62b.

iv. °अण forming agent (and action) nouns appears casually. पवित्थरण 19b, दहण 131d, जणण 136a, निष्ठाण 158d, f. णट्टणिय 45d.

v. A fresh mode of forming agentives with the addition of °यर (= °कर) has made its appearance: दीवयर 22b, संजीवयर 22d, उन्हावयर 67c. cf. वंचयर Hc. IV 412. These when enlarged become the precursors of the Hindi agentives in °एरा (e. g. हंटेरा, चितेरा).

Here we can scan the beginning of that analytical mode of breaking up the unitary basic idea of a verbal-root into two distinct elements: an action noun and the general verb signifying 'to do'. With the NIA. languages it has become a normal feature. Thus for example, to express the concept 'to rejoice', Guj. uses two elements आनंद करो (lit. 'to make joy') instead of a single word आनंदवुं. The same mode of expression lies at the basis of Ap. संजीव-यर, वंच-यर; Hindi लुंटेरा; Guj. लुंटेरो (= *लुण्टा+कारक), तारण-हार (= तारणस्य+कारः) etc. as contrasted with Sk. संजीवक, वंचक, लुंटाक, मारक, तारक etc. If we are to follow the com. there occurs a quite modern case at 194d न कीरइ कि-वि सयण where we would have an expression exactly equivalent to Guj. शयन करवु 'to lie down'. But for an objection against accepting this sense see notes on 194d.

vi. °त्त (= °त्व) in कवित्त 19a and उद्दत्त 107a, इम (f.) in सामलिम 24a, समन्विम 79a and Pk. वंमिमा 15a and °त्तण in अवुद्दत्तण 21b are the suffixes forming abstract nouns of quality. In the following cases an adjective seems to be employed to signify its quality: ललित्व° (i. e. ललित्त्व) 18c, °अरुण (i. e. अरुणत्त्व) 50d, कस्सिण° (i. e. कृष्णत्त्व) 87c, मिसिर (i. e. शिशिरत्त्व) 135a. (M. § 48. ii.)

vii. Only one word takes the possessive suffix °आल (enlarged): सोहालय 51c.

§ 47. Stem-enlarging suffixes.

i. °य (from "कः स्वार्थे") is not merely a suffix. It has got definite morphological significance, for which see § 53.

In तियलोए 5b, 13a, °य has been attached to the numeral, while in गरुअय (from गुरु) 77a, it appears twice.

ii. °ड (enlarged), the only other pleonastic suffix that we meet with in the Sr., is confined to the language of the Dohās. संदेसड 69b, 70b, 80a, 81a, वलियड 80b, मूदड (or मु°) 81b; बहडि 81b and उकरडि 69a exhaust the list. The stanza 81 has no less than three forms in °ड!

§ 48. Prefixes.

i. अण° forms negatives from adjectival words. Refer to the सन्दकोष for the words with अण°.

ii. स° (<सु°?) as an emphatic element is prefixed to the adjectival words as in सलज्जिर (= लज्जिर) 28a, 29a, 41b, 94d, 136c, सगरिगर (= गरिगर) 29c, सविलक्ख (= विलक्ख) 28a, सलोल (= लोल) 59b, सकोमल (= कोमल) 123c and सकसाय (= कसाय) 171a. cf. सचकित in the Pañcākhyaṇaka (1199 A. C.), p. 70, l. 3 (IOS, vol. 11), ससंभतो (= ससंभ्रान्तः) in the Samarāñcīkakhā (ed. JACOBI), p. 14, l. 7; सशंकिय (= सशंकित).

Pāṭisaddamahānava. This type of words are casually encountered in some modern vernaculars also. Cf. for example ḍīngal सकुसळ, ससत (= सल) etc., Gujarātī सकोसळ, सघन (= घन), Hindi सकुशल, Bengālī सचकित, Awadhī समीत, Marāṭhī सकाळी (Sk. *सकल्ये = कल्ये).

§ 49. Formation of the feminine bases.

Ap. has evolved its own laws of forming the feminine bases. Although there prevails a considerable option in the employment of particular suffixes, the chief tendencies allow themselves to be distinguished fairly clearly.

To start with, we have to take two basic facts into consideration. Firstly, the suffix °इय appears to be established in the language of our text as the feminine counterpart of the enlargement in °अय. Thus to a masc. करंतउ corresponds the fem. करंतिय. Secondly, a new tendency has been developed in accordance with which the adjectival or participial (especially the present part.) अ-stems keep their base unchanged in the masc. as well as the fem. declension. Keeping these two facts in view we can explain the formation of the feminine bases in our text with considerable clarity.

i. Present participle.

There are four types of feminines formed from the pres. part.: (a) corresponding to a masc. करंत, we have the fem. करंति (Sk. fem. in °न्ती); (b) corresponding to the enlarged masc. करंतउ, we have the fem. करंतिय¹. This करंतिय further appears as करंती through contraction; (c) करंत without any addition or change serves as a masc. as well as a fem. base; (d) this formal identity of the masc. and the fem. base is extended to the enlarged cases also, so that a parallelism has come to be established between the bases in °अंति and °अंतिय on the one hand and °अंत and °अंतय on the other. One case of this type of the fem. pres. part. in the Sr. is करंतय 167b.

The numerical strength of these various types as represented in the Sr. is as follows: 10 in °अंति, 17 in अंतिय (two or three of these, interpretable either way, as in °अंत or °अंति) and 10 in °अंती, 14 in °अंत, 1 in °अंतय. Thus those in °अंतिय/°अंती score the highest figure.

ii. Preterit participle.

1 When metre requires, we have also करंतिय with the unshortened final.

In the case of the 'regular' (§ 67) participles in °इय, the fem. is regularly formed by °अ (= °आ); that is, the masc. and the fem. bases are identical in form. Those participles that represent the inherited stuff i. e. those that are सिद्धावस्थ or 'irregular' (mostly the participles from Sk. अनिद् roots) take °इय optionally in the fem., e. g., गइय, हुइय, पुनिय etc. besides गय, हुय etc. But as suggested at the outset, one can legitimately look upon these bases in °इय as counterparts to the enlarged masc. bases in अउ (e. g. गयउ etc.). Further, on the analogy of the 'regular' pret. participles, some 'irregular' ones also have taken up the °इय in the masc. (e. g. हुइय 186c, पमुक्किय 164b) and as a result they too have identical masc. and fem. bases.

iii. Adjectival compounds.

As regards the formation of the feminine from the adjectival compounds, it is to be observed that there prevails a free choice between °अ, °इ and °इय. Bases in °अ (more than a dozen) are fewer in number when compared with those in °इ (about 3 dozen). Besides these there are about a dozen bases in °इय. Simple adjectives also show a preference for °इय. On the whole there appears in our text a strong tendency to reduce the other types of the fem. bases to one in °इय.

cf. TESSITORI's observations (§ 57 (2)) on the feminines in OWR.

§ 50. Gender. Hemacandra (Hc. IV 415) informs us that in Ap. gender-confusion prevails to a remarkable degree. This observation is supported by JACOB in his account of the language of the San., wherein the nom./acc. neuter plur. ending °अई is taken by the masculines also, while conversely, there are some nom./acc. neu. plur. forms ending in °अ. The change that has set in in the language of the San. has fully worked out itself by the time of the Sr. Here, excepting three cases (see § 52, Remarks.), two of which are metrically conditioned, the nom./acc. plur. forms in °अई are totally absent. And the second characteristic neuter form, viz., the nasalised nom./acc. sing. in °अउँ also being quite unknown, almost all traces of the neuter have vanished from the morphology. There is not the slightest distinction between the masc. and the neu. declension. In this connection we have to note the fact that all the New Indo-Aryan vernaculars, except Gujarāṭī, Marāṭhī and Kōṅkaṇī have lost the neuter.

Other cases of change in gender are झुणि f. (= ध्वनि) 134c, 216d

(the व्याख्या as also the अवचुरि gives the fem. gender even to its Sk. rendering ध्वनिः !), देह f. 78b and तण masc. (=तनु) 202c, 214d.

It is probable that the epithets कुसुमसराउह and रुक्मिणि 31a are fem., as rendered by the com. (कुसुमसरायुधाम्). In the Rāmācarita-mānasa too we come across such epithets taking the feminine gender of the substantive they qualify.

NOMINAL FLEXION

§ 51. Some cases of special morphological interest.

A. Assimilated h-endings of the genitive. As in the Śvetāmbara Ap. (see San. p. 2, Kp. p. 55, § 15.) here too we find assimilated genitives. The ending of the genitive is not determined primarily by the gender but by the type of the stem. Thus अ-stems, whether masc. or fem. have °अह in the gen., इ-stems, whether masc. or fem. have °इहि. No genitive form of the उ-stems is attested in the Śr. It will be noted that hand-in-hand with this correspondence of the ending with the stem, there prevails the principle of vowel harmony, the vowel of the ending being determined by the stem-final. So the अ-stems have the affix °ह, the इ-stems, °हि. It should be marked that in bringing about this state of affairs phonetic forces have also played some part, as it is by following the general tendency to change ऐ to इ that the fem. ending °है has become हि.

B. Three notable form-categories of the °अ-stem.

(1). 'Endingless' genitives. According to Hc. IV 345, the ending of the genitive is occasionally dropped in Ap.; that is, the bare stem can function as a genitive form. That the rule has for its basis some genuine Ap. grammatical tradition is indicated by the Vālmiki-Sūtras III, 4, 16 which too teach the same thing. ALSDORF (As. 56 ff.) raises objections against this rule and after an examination of the alleged examples of such genitives advanced by Hemacandra and PISCHKE, he attempts to establish that in the available Ap. linguistic material one does not come across a single form which can be genuinely regarded as an 'endingless' genitive. All the alleged cases of such forms can be justly looked upon as previous members of regular or loosely-formed compounds. It is, ALSDORF thinks, from these loose compounds (cf. § 75 below) that such a rule must have come to be abstracted, but in a scientific treatment of Ap. grammar it cannot claim a place. •

Now, though it is true that in the stanzas cited by Hemacandra or elsewhere in the Ap. literature come to light so far, there is nothing to indicate that Ap. employed bare stems as genitives, still if one glances at later linguistic developments, there is much there to create a strong presumption in favour of a factual basis for the rule given by the ancient Ap. grammarians. Thus, for example, in Ḍingal or Old Mārṇārī literature cases of genitively used bare stems occur apace. There they are not anything like casual but make up a regular category of forms. And the language of the Sr. which bears unmistakable influence of some early vernaculars offers us several clear cases of such 'endingless' genitives.

Further, these together with the 'endingless' insts./loc. (see (2). below) and nom./acc. (see § 52, Remarks.) forms point out that in the case of the whole of the अ-declension at least, the bare stem without any flexion-ending could appear in the singular (as yet rarely in the plur.) of almost all cases. Add to this the formal confusion and the consequent impression of 'endinglessness' that could be caused by the homophony (1) of the instr./loc. forms in °इ of the fem. अ-stems and the nom./acc. forms in °इ of the fem. इ-stems (§ 54, Remarks.), as also (2) of the insts./gen. forms in °इय of the °इ-stems and the nom./acc. forms in °इय of the enlarged fem. अ-stems (§ 56, Remarks). All these facts are strongly indicative of the active process of disintegration of the old morphological system, the final result whereof is seen in the languages like, e. g., Ḍingal which in consequence of so to say the total loss of the flexion-endings at times use in both the numbers and all the cases the bare stem without any addition or modification whatsoever.

Below are collected the cases of the genitively used naked stems attested in the Sr. They relate to the masc. as well as the fem. अ-stem.

जसु पवसंत (= पवसंतह) 70a, तुय सुमरंत 86a, जंत...मह 109a, गिरंत पढंतह 157b, सुमरंत...णिर्यंतह 158d-159a, सुयरंतिय... अलहंत 191c, अवर कह 47a, 51a, d, वरमुद्ध हसंतिय 51a, पिय (with √भण, √कह etc.) 101d, 68b, 71b, 80b, 88b, 92d, णिह्य (with √भण) 95b.

(2). Employment of the bare stem in the instr./loc. (sing.). As in the genitive, so in the instr./loc. too the bare stem without any ending appears occasionally. Of course phoneti-cally the form is 'got by the reduction of the final °इ of the old ending. As the unenlarged present participle has lost gender-distinctions to a certain extent, we find 'endingless' forms in the case of the feminine °अ-stems also. Casually we get a variant in °इ for the forms considered here.

Instr. sing.: नवय 100c, विरह 103b, भूम 109d, सुललिय 183c, कंदप्प 185c, गियवल्ह 196b, मेह (plur.) 218a, perhaps भाय (plur.) 216b; f. उट्टंत, पडंत 136c, अलहंत 190a.

Loc. sing.: चरण (plur.) 27d, दर 28d, जुयलय 52c, सुयण 95c, मग 105d, दक्खिण 112b, विओय 115a, पळव 134c, सेंनिह, घर 167a, कुंडवाल 175a, सिज्जासण 179d, वसंत 215d; f. सिज्ज 196c.

Early Awadhī, Early Maithilī and Early Mārwarī freely use such forms.

(3). Nom. plur. in °अह.

At a few places it appears quite plausible to suggest that °अह also is employed as a nom. plur. ending. Thus, अबुहत्तिण अबुहह णहु पवेसि (21 b) ' = अबुधत्तेन, अबुधा: (मत्काव्ये) न खलु प्रवेशिनः '. पयहत्तिण किय पहिय पयहि (v. l. पहिहि) पवहंतयह (141 c) = 'पयसि (or पथि) प्रवहन्तः (= संचरन्तः) पथिका: पादत्राणहस्ता: कृता: '. Fem. सुसंतियहं and लीलंतियह (123c, d) also are nom. plurals. Possibly 103d presents a similar case of the nom. plur. in अह. The line reads जिम तुम्हिहि तिम मुंथि पहिय द्विज्जंति णिरु. Here it is difficult to construe the instr. तुम्हिहि. Obviously the line means हे मुग्धे यथा यूयम् तथा पथिका: अपि अतिशयम् क्षीयन्ते. Now B. offers a variant तुम्हह for तुम्हिहि. If this is accepted, we can take it as an honorific form of तुम्ह.¹

This nom. plur. ending °अह is nowhere attested so far in the extent Apabhramśa texts. Only Early Maithilī uses this commonly. "In the Early Maithilī of the Vr. an affix -āha features commonly for the plural in the adjectives and passive particle (sic) (=past) forms" (Vr., § 26). CHATTERJĪ's suggestion that this °अह is the same as the Ap. gen. sing. and plur. ending °अह is most probable.

§ 52. Masculine and Neuter अ-stems.

The following paradigm of the endings can be prepared from the text. The figures give the number of times a form with a particular ending occurs in the text.

1 Alternatively we have to note that as TURNER derives Marāṭhī आम्ही, तुम्ही from Pk. अम्हेहि, तुम्हेहि (BSOS., VIII i, p. 205), we can take तुम्हिहि of Sr. 103d as a nominatively used instrumental.

Remarks. For some general observations consult § 51 B. end.—Nom. Acc. sing. Even after ruling out (i) the indeclinables, (ii) the cases (more than 50) which can be obviously construed as words forming a compound with the preceding or the following word rather than as nominatively or accusatively inflected forms and (iii) the cases (about 30) for which there is an acceptable variant in °उ in any one Ms., there still remains a substantial number of words (roughly 25) for which there is no other alternative but to assume that in these cases the bare stem is used as a nom. or acc. sing. form. For such ‘endless’ forms of other cases see § 51. B. The Dohākośas also use the bare stem in the nom. acc. sing. of the अ stems. See SHAHIDULLAH, p. 38 ; San., p. XXVIII.—In Prakritised passages °ओ appears in the nom/acc. sing. instead of °उ. The only आ form दोहा 88b occurs in a दोहा.—Instr. sing. In a Prakritised stanza occurs रंगे 110c with the °इ of the ending lengthened metri causa to °ए. Out of the 9 forms in °एण, six (दवेण-सणेण 69 and णिलएण-विरहेण 77 at the end of the Dohā-pādas and पहंजणेण-सुहंजणेण 209 closing the Paddhaḍi-pādas) are metrically conditioned. The remaining are विणएण 74b, पिणए 138b (both occurring in Dohās) and विरहेण 86d. The forms in °इहि/°इहिं are पसंगिहि 49d, कट्टिहि 50a, 117f, 192a (in °हिं), °अरुणिहिं 50d, °आलसिहि 105d, °संगिहि 106c, वज्जिहि 154d and सीहंङिहिं 187c. The Dohākośas also employ °हि in the sing. of the instr. and loc. See SHAHIDULLAH, p. 38 ; San., p. XXVIII mid. cf. TESSITORI § 59 end.—Gen. sing. An isolated form in °आसु, viz., पियासु 70b, occurs at the end of a Dohā rhyming with the pronominal जासु, while पहियस्स occurs in a वर्णवृत्त (85b). There does not occur a single form in °हु.—Abl. sing. The forms are विजयनयरहु 24a, वडवानलहु

89*a*, पुक्खरहु 141*b* and सत्थरहु 186*d*. cf. TESSITORI § 61 end. — Loc. sing. It is to be noted that Early Maithili also had these three forms for the loc. sing.: pure stem without any affix, forms in °इ, forms in °हि (See Vr. § 35). In Prakritised passages °ए is found for °इ. निहोसे 99*b* and सवसे 103*b* owe their ए to the influence of the following य. Twice °अंमि is used, in 19*b* and 115*d*. — Nom. plur. For the forms in °अह see § 51 B. (3). The only representatives of the neuter plur. forms are¹ सयइँ—तुलसीयलइँ 62*c*, d and रमिरइँ 174*a*. The first two of these occur in the section listing trees and at the end of the Paddhaḍikā-pāda. The remaining रमिरइँ qualifies the masc. plur. नर. Cf. JACOB'S observations in the San. on the tendency to use indiscriminately the masc. and neu. forms in the nom. plur. — Instr. plur. Trochaic rhyme explains the occurrence of six (18 d and e, 202 a and b, 205 a and b) out of the eight forms in °एहि. The stanza 115 in which सरेहि occurs is a वर्णवृत्त. There remains only चलणेहि 25*d*. — Gen. plur. Once °आह is attested in a Prakritised stanza: मुक्खाह 25*c*. — Abbl. plur. The solitary case is जेयणह 102*b*. The Dohākośas have °अह for both the singular as well as the plural.

§ 53. The enlarged declension of the अ-stems. For पुष्पदन्त's Apabhraṃśa ALSDORF has shown that there the phenomenon of enlargement (by the addition of °य i. e. “कः स्वार्थे”) in the case of the अ-stems is conditioned by word-rythm, firstly because in a substantial majority of the cases, the enlargement takes place after a heavy syllable and secondly because the enlarged stem appears mostly before those case-endings which consist of one mora, the normal stem appearing before those consisting of two moras. This latter fact means that the enlargement is mostly confined to three cases: nom./acc. sing., nom./acc. plur. and loc. sing. These observations are applicable also to the language of the Sr. The only difference is that here the enlarged stem is most prominent in the nom./acc. sing. and plur., while elsewhere it gives the impression of a phenomenon tending to vanish. This is clearly shown by the statistics of various enlarged forms attested in our text:

nom./acc. sing. in °अउ

(14 pres. part., 50 ‘regular’ pret. part., 100 the rest.)

164 cases

1 किमुयइ and पलासइ 209*a*, b are doubtful.

nom./acc. plur. in °अय (8) and °आ (8)	16	„
gen. plur. in °अयह (3) and °आह (1) 4	4	„

Remarks. Instr. sing. छावडइ 78*a* occurs in a Dohā and probably has got the °ड° suffix which appears in the instr. sing. in the enlarged form as a rule. °संगाइ 156*b*, metri causa for संगइ, stands at the end of a Dohā-pāda. णिडुरइ 69*b* also occurs in a Dohā. The other three instrumental forms (रुन्नयण 68*c* rhyming with °नयण, and कहिययण-रहिययण 91 c, d) actually end in °यण (see § 10. (b)). These are quite peculiar forms. All the three are inflected from the enlarged pret. part. — Loc. sing. बलियडइ 80*b* in a Dohā has the suffix °डय. In the case of कियइ 102*d*, 199*d* and णियइ 102*d* the enlarged form appears probably to avoid the vocalic group °इइ° (cf. § 22), which otherwise would be the result. In °पिक्खणइ 53*d*, पिक्खणय has developed a semantic shade slightly different from that of पिक्खण and as such it has come to be a different independent word. The rest is सुविणइ 94*f*. — Gen. sing. The three cases in °अयह viz., जोयंतयह-पवहंतयह 54*a, b* and °सुणंतयह 223*e* are all from the enlarged pres. part. It is to be noted that only the enlarged pres. part. has come to stay in Guj., Hindi, etc. The only form in °आह is मुक्खाह 25*c*. Thus, really speaking nom. is the only case seriously concerning itself with the enlarged stem. In the nom. plur. out of the eight forms (against 3 in the Hp.) in °अय, four are pres. parts. Note the fact that like the pres. part., it is the enlarged form of the pret. part. that has been later on generalized in Guj.

Remarks. For the endingless instr., gen. and loc. forms see § 51. B. — Nom. Acc. sing. For forms in °आ see § 41. — Inst. sing. All the forms (147*a, b, c, d*, 196*c, d*, 198*a, b*, 204*a, b, c, d*,) in °अइ are formed from the enlarged stem in °इय and all these forms occur at the end of a pāda. गाहाइ 113*f* is the only form in °आइ. Instr. sing. in °इ, उकंठि 120*d*, is doubtlessly formed from उकंठ+इ. But besides this there are seven forms¹, to wit, दीहरण्यणि 29*d*, कण्यणि 41*c*, तिरच्छि and तरलच्छि 97*c*, °उतट्टि and कुरंगि 97*d*, दीहरच्छि 107*d*, all to be construed as instr. sing., for which it is difficult to decide whether we have to take them as formed from the fem. stems like दीहरण्यण, तिरच्छ etc. or to explain them as bare °इ stems employed to serve as instrumentals without any ending. For, the former alternative forces us to assume fem. अ-stems like कण्यण, तिरच्छ, दीहरच्छ (भित्त in the case of the loc. भित्ति 96*d*) etc. for which there is no evidence, while as to the latter, though supported by the developments in the case of अ-stems (see § 51 B. (2)) and in Dingal, we hesitate to subscribe to it in the light of the loc. sing. forms in °इ viz., बाहडी (m. c. for बाहडि?) 81*b*, दिसि 142*c*, गिसि 136*a*, 147*c*, etc. (8 times in all), रच्छि 175*b*, पचूसि 183*e* which can be well considered as inflected from दिस, गिस, etc. Still instr. तरलच्छि 97*c*, perhaps loc. गंठि 27*a* and above all the gen. instr. and loc. forms considered under § 51 B. (1), (2) make it tenable at least in some cases of the forms in °इ that the tendency to employ the endingless stem in the fem. °इ-declension also had already made a beginning. Cf. तरणि (from a masc. इ-stem) § 55, Remarks. It is obvious that the forms in °इ, if any, are the result of the influence of the masc. अ-declension. The consequences of the convergence of the nom/acc. (गिसि), instr. (कुरंगि) and loc. (गिसि) forms in the fem. declensions are quite patent. Similarly it is the masc. अ-declension that is responsible for the one probable instr. sing. form in अहि (°आउन्नियहि required by the context for the textual °आउन्नियह 222*b*; cf. दयवर and वसण respectively for दियवर, वसणि § 22). Cf. also the instr. sing. in °हि of the fem. इ-stems (§ 56).—सिज्जह 136*c*, is the only abl. form.—Loc. sing. in °अह : सरयह 161*d*; in °अहि : सिज्जहि 185*c*. Many of the loc. sing. forms with the affix °हि detailed under § 56, Remarks, can be with equal justification regarded as formed from the fem. अ-stems with the affix °इहि.—Loc. plur. in अह : दिसह 58*b*, 148*a*; in °आयु : निसायु 173*a*, दिसायु 201*b*, 215*b*.

Remarks. For the question of nasalisation in various forms see § 8. महु 197*b*, मज्झ 197*a* as also तुज्झ 191*b* are used accusatively. तू has variants तुं and तू. Only in 94*e* and 222*c*, 109*c* तुहु has no variants. Elsewhere (41*d*: A C तुह, 88*a*: C तुह, 92*c*: A C तुह, 222*c*: B तुह) it alternates with तुह. तुअ or तुय occurs 8 times (114*a*, 86*a* etc). Besides this, we have to accept तुव (C) at 76*a* to make the construction grammatically faultless. The existence of तुह in our text is rendered somewhat doubtful because at two out of three places of its occurrence (109*c*: A तुय, 110*c*: A तुय B तुव, 191*c*: A तुअ B तुय) it is attested in only one Ms.

VERBAL FLEXION

§ 61. There is only one regular conjugation in Ap., viz., the अ-conjugation. The forms with ए-stems appear quite sporadically. The Sr. has the following such forms; pres. ind. 3. sing. करेइ—सिंचेइ 108 a, b, सहेइ 82*b*, हवेइ 104*d*; 3. plur. करेहि 205*c* and the forms in °इहि/इहि (§ 62); imper. 2. plur. गिसुणेहु 19*d*. Almost all of these except those in °इहि/इहि appear under metrical stress. The same is the ground for the employment of pres. 1. sing. भणे 95*b* and 3. sing. दड्डए and वड्डए 120*c, d*, the only middle forms. There is no pres. part. in °माण.

The following 'root-verb's are attested: जा, ठा, मा, समा, वा; दे, ले; हो; कृणा (?). For their various forms see the index s. vv.

Forms of √अस्: अस्ति (3. plur.) 64a, नस्ति (3. sing. negative) 19a, 104c.

Of the finite verb we have here : 1. The Present Indicative ; 2. The Imperative, 2. and 3. person ; 3. The Optative, 1. and 2. sing. ; 4. The future.

Of the infinite verb we have : 1. The Present Participle (also used as Preterit and Conditional); 2. The Preterit Participle; 3. The Gerundive; 4. The Absolutive; 5. The Infinitive.

§ 62. Present.

Sing. 1. °अउ (°अउँ) 23, °अमि 3 Plur. 3. °अहि (°अहिँ) 17 + 4 (pass.)

2. °अहि 5, °असि 1

°इहि (°इहिं) 7

3. 'अइ

°अइ 10

*अंति 20 + 4 (pass.)

Remarks. For the nasalization of the endings see § 6.—1. sing. जंपउँ 30*b* and अच्छउँ (B °उ) 79*a*. —सहमि 164*c*, and मरमि, तगमि 164*d* have been employed simply to effect alliteration. जाउ 91*a* has a variant जामि (C). In a Prakritised stanza occurs ताकं (= तर्कयामि) 104*a*. Cf. दुम्मं 213*b*. See Hc. III 141 com.—2. sing. सारसि 165*c* is used to bring about the yamaka. For the 3. plur. forms in अइ see TESSITORI, § 117, Remarks.

The present part. विलंबंति is used with अच्छउं (pres. 1. sing. from √अच्छ) at 79*a* to signify continuity of a present action (cf. TESSITORI, § 125).

§ 63. Imperative.

2. sing. °इ 16, °हि 10, °इहि 1; °उ 8, °अ 3

°असु: कहसु 82*c*, °अह: कहह 68*c*.

3. sing. °अउ 4 (होउ 2, सिज्जउ, जयउ).

2. plur. °अहु 2 (सुणहु, णिसुणहु).

3. plur. °अंतु 1 (गजंतु).

Remarks: Once °इ of the 2. sing. is lengthened to °ए for metre's sake: भणे 95*d*.

§ 64. Present Participle. It always ends in °अंत (enlarged °अंतय). For its feminine see § 49. i.

It is used at two or three places to denote a state in past. Thus सुहय तइय राओ उगिलंतो सिणेहो (100*b*) "O dear one, the dye of love that used to overflow on that occasion;" मोहवसिण वोलंत (95*c*) "Under loss of discrimination (she) said". Perhaps णियंती 186*a*, सरंतु, विफुरंतु 200*c, d*, धरंती 217*d* also denote the habitual past. For हुंतउ 65*c* see § 73, 3.

Further, Hc. III 180 teaches that the present participle can be used to denote conditional also. Our text offers three examples of such a use, all in one stanza; सुणंती 100*a*, धरंती 100*c*, वोळियंतो 100*d*.

Both these uses of the present participle are still quite living in the modern Gujarāṭi. The unenlarged form serves for the conditional, the enlarged one for the preterit. For other NIA. vernaculars see BLOCH: L'indo-Aryen, pp. 261-265.

§ 65. Optative.

1. sing. °इज्जउ (लजिज्जउ)

2. sing. °इज्जसु (पढिज्जसु, कहिज्जसु)

Remarks. Cf. TESSITORI, § 120.

§ 66. Future.

स-future	इ-future sing. 1. °इसु 2
2. °इसि 1	°इहसि 2
3.	°इहइ 2

Remarks. 1. कहिसु 91c, पयासिसु 117b. 2. जाइसि 41d; आसासिहसि 191d, आविहसि 191f. 3. संतोसिहइ 197a, मिलिहइ 197b.

§ 67. Preterit Participle.

The suffix °इय (enlarged °इयउ) forms the pret. part. Besides the 'regular' class of the pret. part. so formed, there is another which represents the direct phonetic development of the Sk. pret. part. But the number of such 'irregular' part. is on decline and the tendency to normalize them by adding to them also the suffix °इय (e. g. हुइय 186c for हुय) has already made its appearance (See § 49 ii.). Another tendency that is to be specially noted is the contraction of the suffix °इय to °ई in several cases in the fem. of the pres. part., e. g., चढी, विवुढी, तुढी (see § 28). This is a 'modern' trait, characterising the New Indo-Aryan vernaculars like Hindi and Gujarati. The following are to be noted: मुक्क 83b, उमुक्क 25b, पमुक्कउ 203b, पउक्कउ 217b (all from *मुक्क i. e. मुक्क), तुट्ट 78b, पलुट्ट 130c, फुट्टउ 154d, दुक्कउ 186b, पहुत्तउ 192b, वुळीण 204c, लय (i. e. लात) 86c, besides लीअय 176b. समाण 80b (in a Dohā) is of special interest as in Old Guj. this type of pret. passive part. in °आण is quite familiar to us.

§ 68. Absolutive.

The numerical strength of the various types of absolutes as represented in our text is as follows: °इवि 34, °अवि 27, °एवि 5; °एविणु 11; °इ 28; °इय 2, °इउ 1, °अपि 1. Those in °इय (see § 38 b.) are निवेसिय, पेसिय 95c, विच्छाइय 188d and Pk. मुणिय 213a; in °इउ, फरिसिउ 132d; in अपि, सहपि 199a. Besides these there occurs विज्ज 191c (cf. epic विय) and an interesting case of 'compound' absolutive दहेवि करि 108b, which is a precursor of the Modern Hindi बोल कर, हँस कर etc.

§ 69. Infinitive.

- In °अणहः कहणह 80a;
- in °अणउः धरणउ 71a;
- in °अणुः कहणु 81a;
- in °अणः सहण 218b.

Of these, only the form in °अण is known to the Dohākośas. Cf. also TESSITORI, § 134 end.

§ 70. Gerundive.

In °इव्वउ (Sk. °तव्य): पढिव्वउ 20*d*, 21*d*, जंपिव्वउ 82*c*, जाइव्वउ 82*d*, कहिव्वउ 99*d*; in °इय and °इज्ज (Sk. °य as in कथ्य, गम्य etc): कहिय (5 times), जंपिय, पभणिय; पभणिज्ज (twice), कहिज्ज;

in °अणिज्ज (Sk. °अनीय): कहणिज्ज.

With °इय/°इज्ज cf. the passive endings °इयइ/°इज्जइ (§ 71).

§ 71. Passive.

The three types are represented thus: passives in °इय: 33, in °इज्ज: 13, in °ईय° (metri causa): 3. Besides these there are some 20 'irregular' passives which represent the further phonetic development of the corresponding Sk. forms: सिज्जइ, पिज्जइ, गिज्जइ, णज्जइ; झिज्जइ, दीसइ, कीरइ, पेसइ, मुम्मइ, पमुप्पइ; धुम्मंति, डज्जंति; from the causative: चडाइयइ, मुहाइयइ. Note also जाइअइ, लाइयइ. For the origin of °इयइ/°इज्जइ see § 38 (b). Cf. TESSITORI, § 136 (both the types). The fact that so many passives in °इय° are attested in our text supports the derivation of the affix °इय° from Sk. °य of the passive against TESSITORI, unless it is proved that they have been borrowed from a synchronous vernacular.

§ 72. Causative and Denominative.

A. °आव् is the general causative suffix which in certain cases becomes shortened to °व् in accordance with § 19. Further, in declension the °व् of this °आव् is occasionally dropped according to § 35.

मावइ (from √मा) 141*b* and सरलाइवि 26*b* (cf. सरलयवि 123*d*) are used as simplex. It is by a rare chance that one comes across the 'irregular' forms like सारसि 165*d* representing the direct phonetic continuation of the Sk. forms.

B. The instances of the nouns, etc, used as verbal bases are: (a) (in अयः) वखाणियड 65*a* from व्याख्यान, तिलक्किवि 168*a* from तिलक, वणिज्जइ 208*d* from वणिज्, सीयलंतु 210*c* from सीतल, बहिरयंति 218*d* from बधीर; (b) (in अव/आवः) सरलाइवि 26*b* and सरलयवि 123*d* from सरल, सच्चविय 96*d* from सच्च and मुहाइयइ 189*b* from मुख.

POSTPOSITIONS

§ 73. Thanks to the working of the phonetic forces, the old system of the case-endings eventually became completely worn out by the time of the New Indo-Aryan stage and one of its direct results was that the postpositions, which had had only a complementary or supplementary status in the late Middle Indo-Aryan (or Apabhramśa) stage, now began to function importantly as unaided indicators of various case-relations and the analytical stage was completely achieved. The language of our text knows of several such postpositions.

1. We find here some four instrumental postpositions having the general sense 'with'.

सत्थिहि (= loc. sing. of सत्थ = सार्थे '*company') means 'with; in the company of': विविह-विअकखण-सत्थिहि जइ पवसियइ (43a) 'If a stroll is undertaken in the company of various vidagdhas —'; सोहहि सिज तरुणिजण-सत्थिहि 'The beds appear charming with (or by the presence of) young damsels'. This postposition is seen commonly used in Guj. in the form साथे. The Jain romance चम्पकत्रैलोक्यानक (mid-fifteenth cent.) uses सार्थे in the same sense as noted here.

Cf. TESSITORI, § 70 (3).

सम (= समम्) is found in का-वि केण मम दर हसइ (47c) "Some lady just laughs with someone". सउ is a variant of सम : गुरुविणएण सउ 74b, विरहसउ 79a, कंदप्पसउ 99a. Cf. OWR. सिउँ (TESSITORI, § 71), Early Maithili सनो, सँ (VR., § 36). Once संमाणिय (= समान f.) is found: तुअ संमाणिय "with thee".

सरिसु—सरिसउ (= सदृश enlarged) 'together with' is used thrice: मियणाहिण सरिसउ (187d) 'together with musk', सरिसु जाईहलह (188b) 'together with nutmegs,' हाम हेमह सरिसु (191d)? सरिसउ corresponds to the Guj. सरँ 'close with' in usages like छातीसरँ 'close with chest'.

2. The ablative postpositions are हुंतउ, द्वियउ, रेसि, लगि.

हुंतउ with the loc. adverbs of place denotes 'from' as in तिह हुंतउ 65c 'from that place'. See Hc. IV 355. It is fairly common in Old Western Rājasthām. See TESSITORI, § 72 (10). Looking to its origin, हुंतउ is the enlarged pres. part. of √ह् (= भू) used in a preterit sense. The whole phrase तिह हुंतउ literally means 'having been at that place, (he came here)' and this sense has eventually veered round to 'from that place'. (See As. pp. 22-24).

द्वियउ (= स्थित enlarged) is another such postposition. HC. IV 439, 4 has द्विअअ-द्वियउ 'from the heart'. Modern Guj. °श्री is closely allied with this द्वियउ. See ALSDORF, As. pp. 24-26. The one case in our text is तह खणि खुवइ कवाळु न वाम-कर-द्वियउ 86b "And the forehead (also skull) is not removed from the left hand even for a moment'. Cf. the com.: ततः कपालं क्षणमपि वामकरान् न दूरीभवति. Can the problematic सिहरद्विय 148*d* be brought in line with the above? For OWR. cf. TESSITORI, § 72 (3), (6).

रेसि is employed to signify the causal relation 'due to', 'because of', 'on account of'. Thus कुकवित्त-रेसि 21*a* = कुकवित्त्वेन हेतुना i. e. कुकवित्त्वात्. Ordinarily रेसि is a तादर्थ्यनिपात. See He. IV 425; Haribhadra's पंचाशक-प्रकरण 19, 40 (रेसिम्भि).

लग्गि (= abs. of √ लग्ग) with the adverbs of time denotes 'tempus a quo' i. e. it has the sense 'since' as in कदय-लग्गि 122*d* = कदा प्रभृति 'since how long'. Cf. TESSITORI, § 72 (a) where लग्गि, लग्गी are noted in both the senses 'up to', 'from'.

3. The genitive postposition तणि (fem. of तणउ; see Hc. IV 422, 20) quite obviously cannot govern any other case except the genitive. Accordingly मइ तणि (94 f.) appears to be a suspect, standing perhaps for an original मइ तणि 'my'.

Cf. TESSITORI, § 73 (4); DAVE, p. 58.

4. महि is a locative postposition: मणमहि means 'in the mind'. It is loc. sing. from मह, which is connected by BLOCH with *मध allied to Sk. मध्य.

Cf. TESSITORI, § 74 (7); DAVE, Index s. v. māhi.

§ 74. Indeclinables. Adverbs appear in the Sr. in any one of the three forms: with the °उ of the nom./acc., with the °इ of the instr./loc. or altogether without any affix. We have चिर, थिर, धीर, घणु, णिमिसिद्धु etc.; तुरिय, पुनरुत्त सव्व-वार, णिमिस, खर etc.; णिरवक्खि, निभंति, अणियत्ति, इत्थंतरि etc. Note खणु 19*d*, खण 86*c* and खणि 86*b*; खणद्धु 67*a* and खणद्धि 223*d*; निरंतर 148*c* and निरंतरिण 64*d*; cf. also पुण 96*c* etc. (5 times), पुण 67*a* etc. (6 times) and पुणि 101*a*, 117*d*; पर 79*b* and परि 189*d*. Following is the list of other indeclinables arranged in semantically allied groups: अइ, लइ (thrice); अन्न-इ, अइ, अइ, य (6 times); अइव (अइवा), व (= वा at 41*d* and in कथ व etc. ?); इअ and व (29*a*, 123*c*), किरि, जणु (thrice), णज्जइ (twice), णं (8 times; at 132*a* = इव), णाइ (twice; णाय, णायं), धुय (= धुवम्); इत्थ, कथ (कथ व, कथ वि), तत्थ (तत्थ व, तत्थ वि); इम and एम and एव, किम, किम्म-इ¹ and केम (Pk. 116), जिम and जेम, तिम and तेम; कइय, जइय, तइय; कह (equivalent to कथम्, कुत्र, कुतः (41*c*)) (कह व, कह वि; कहकह व, कहकह वि), तह (तहँ; तह व, तह वि); कहि, तहि; कि (कि-वि, कि-हु) and किं (किं-पि) and काँइ, जं, तं; °च्चिय, जि (twice), °इ (5 times); जइ (जइ वि) and अइ (101*b*), तउ and तो; जाम, ताम and ताव and ता; ण or न, णहु (26 times; णहु वि), णेय (4 times), म; णिरु; दर; पर (परि); पुणु (पुण, पुणि, ; पुरउ; हिव (twice).

1 Cf. OWR. किरइ-इ, wrongly derived by TESSITORI (§ 2 (1)), from *कहँ-इ, कथमपि.

§ 75. Compounds¹.

Already in Prakrits, the strictness of the Sk. laws of nominal composition has been considerably tempered Cf. PISCHEL, § 603. The same tendency more strengthened prevails in Ap. We can roughly distinguish three types of such looseness of composition as gathered from the Ap. material of the text.

Firstly, there are several cases of 'permissible' looseness sanctioned by the Sk. scholiasts with the words "सापेक्षत्वेऽपि गमकत्वात् समासः". Accordingly, we have गिय-कवित्तह विज्ज-माह'प-पंडित्त-पविस्थरणु 19a for गिय-कवित्त-विज्ज etc.; अन्नह तरुणिकरंगुलिणह 51c for अन्नतरुणि-करंगुलिणह; रयणनिबद्धउ मेहल रुणझुणउ 52d for रयणनिबद्धय-मेहल-रुणझुणउ; पियह संजणिय-सुहु 122c for पिय-संजणिय-सुहु; केवयकलीहि रसगंधलुद्ध 205d for केवयकली-रसगंध-लुद्ध.

Secondly, within a compound the order of various members has no regard to mutual grammatical or logical relations. We can almost say that any member can precede or succeed any other member to suit metre and rhyme. This fact is recognised by the grammarians as समासे पूर्वनिपातानियमः. The examples are: धम्मिल्ल-उमुक्क-मुह 25b = उमुक्क-धम्मिल्ल-मुह; णेवर-चरण 27d = चरण-णेवर = चरण-(गत)-नूपुरयोः; अणरइ-छार-उछित्तु 120c = उछित्त-अणरइ-छार; कट्टिय-कुडिल-अणेग-तरंगिहि 177b = कट्टिय-अणेग-कुडिल-तरंगिहि; मयण-पडिभिन्न-सरि 184a = मयण-सर-पडिभिन्नि; असेविय-सउणियण 193a = सउणियण-असेविय; फल-विरहगि 114a = विरहगि-फल; सिहरि-सुरत्तय 216a = सुरत्तय-सिहरि.

Among these special attention is to be drawn to the last two instances of the compounds with the order of the members transposed for metrical convenience. Apart from a few genuine cases of 'endingless' forms, it is such cases that must have substantially contributed to make current the view that Ap. uses the bare stem also in the genitive. For in the case of the words in such expressions held together by the strength of context but otherwise appearing hanging in the air without any grammatical element connecting them inter se, one can easily say that here the bare stem (विरहगि, सुरत्तय) functions as a genitive form². But the cases attested here, as also lots of 1 Those compounds which, though printed in the constituted text with their components separated, can be easily made out from the context have been left out of consideration.

2 They also banish ALSDORF's doubts (As. p. 61) against गज-मत्तह (Hc. 383, 3c) being a transposed Karmadhāraya equivalent to मत्त-गजह. Hence also there is no need to assume that in the said case the genitive ending is to be supplied to गज from the succeeding words.

similar cases in Dīngal works and in the Rāmacaritamānasa make it abundantly clear that we have to look upon them as free constructions—as a loose type of compounds.

रण-ताडंकिहि परिघोलिर-सवणि 46d for परिघोलिर-रणताडंक-सवणि offers a case of the fusion of the above types.

Lastly, the extreme cases of this tendency to loose composition are offered by a few instances of tnesis, which at the same time pointedly show how much the poet cared for metre and rhyme at the cost of everything else and how at times he left the reader (or the hearer) to gather the intended sense entirely from the context. Thus we have,

णिय-दइय-सोय- असहन्त -भर 103c = णिय-दइय-सोय-भर असहन्त

निम्मल- फुरइ -कर 122a = निम्मलकर (= चन्द्र's epithet) फुरइ

णवघण- जंति -तलि 130d = णवघणतलि जंति

Here we get a peep into that process as a final outcome of which the power of unrestricted word-composition has petered out in the New Indo-Aryan vernaculars.

For the instances of some verbal compounds see § 76. end.

§ 76. Some syntactical remarks.

Supply of the ending from the adjacent word in accord. At certain places the prior of the two adjacent words—either the substantive or the attribute—appears without the requisite case-ending which is to be supplied to it from the immediately succeeding word. There are some four such cases:

पहिय पवहंतयह 54b = पहियह पव°

भयभेसिय अइरावइ...खिवंतियइ 140b = भयभेसियइ अइरावइइ...खिव°

तरंगिणि जंतिहि 161b = तरंगिणिहि जंतिहि

Pk. कयहरिस वरहिणीहि 213a = कयहरिसहि वर°

मयणअगिण विरहिणि (i. e. °ण) 222b = मयणअगिण विरहिण

Notable case usages. Genitive has developed a very wide scope.

(a) Genitive absolute. Besides the usual type seen in जसु पवसंत (= पवसंतह), ण पवसिया 70a; तुव (instead of तइ A B) हिअयट्टियह, विरहु विडंबइ काउ 76a and perhaps सुद्धह विलवंतियह 25d, there is a series of cases wherein the genitive of the present participle is employed in an absolute phrase to signify continuity of an action while another action is performed. The construction can be rendered into English by 'while.....ing'. Thus

तुय सुयरंत (= सुयरंतह), समाहिमोहु विससुट्टियउ 86a. "While cherishing your memory....."

गेउ गिरंत (= गिरंतह) पाइऽ पढंतह, इम विलवंती (= °तिय) दिण पाइउ 157ab
 “While singing songs and reciting the Prakrit (gāthās),
 (I) who was thus bewailing, reached the (final) day (of the rainy season)”

(पिय) सुमरंत (= सुमरंतह).....इम जग्गंतह...अस तग्गंतह, जामिणि गमियइ 158
 “The night is passed keeping awake, cherishing the memory of the loved-one and carrying on to live somehow”.

दक्खिणमग्गु णियंतह, मह अइत्थिरिसिउ दिट्ठु 159ab “While watching the road in the south, I saw the sage Agastī (Canopus)”.

एम सुन्नहियय भमंतह, रयणि विहाणिय 199c. “While wandering thus absent-mindedly, the night dawned”.

The usage is quite living in Guj. Cf. TESSITORI, § 124; DAVE, p. 51.

(b) Genitive for the accusative. Besides the numerous examples of कथ् and भण् governing genitive of the person to-be-communicated-to, the following cases of the genitive of the object are to be noted:

तुअ हिययट्ठियह छड्ढि 75b (i. e. त्वाम् हृदयस्थितम् मुक्त्वा)

तुअ सुयरंत 86a, तसु अणुअंवि 130a, इम करुण भणंतह इक्किह ण कुइ धीरवइ 166cd, विलवंतियह आसासिहसि 191c, मज्झ संतोसिहइ 197a, महु मिहिहइ 197b.

Adverbially genitive is used instead of accusative twice: णकंतहँ 104c, d.

(c) Genitive with the word of comparison: सुन्नारह जिम 108a and जमजीहह णं (i. e. यमजीह्वा इव) 132a. As instr. postpositions, संमाणिय and सरिस (§ 73. 1) should govern instr. But originally being words of comparison, they take the gen. also. So besides मियणाहिण सरिसउ 187d, we have सरिसु जाईहलह 188a and तुअ संमाणिय 78b. Guj. regularly uses genitive with the particle of comparison.

Locative. Locative Absolute. Only two cases are met with: अण्णियइ णियइ पडयणि 102d and पड पोरिमनिलण (i. e. पड पोरिसानलह) 77a. The latter of these two cases also supplies an example of instrumental being used for locative.

णियभुयणि पत्त 130d and तरुसिहरिहि चडिउ 144a, चूयह सिहरि चडि 144d illustrate the locative of goal.

Several times singular is used for plural: वस-वीण-काहल-मुरउ 45a, तह (i. e. महीरुहाम्) णामु 64b, बगु...चडिउ 144a, कयंविण 146c, अंगंमि 146d, दसह दिसि 148a, चित्तविचित्तइ तणुपंगुरणिहँ 167d, तिहि भमिरइ 174b, भमरु 205c. Pk. आपहि...पुच्छिण पवास-दियहेण 126a, सूरससिबिन्ने 2a, लक्खणछेदाहरणे 6b.

Ellipsis. The author seems to be remarkably fond of ellipsis. At several places the sense of the sentence remains incomplete and at times even the immediate context is in no way helpful in suggesting the words kept understood. Com. supply the necessary words in most of the cases. The following cases have come to my note: 4*b*: supply तेण after पसिद्धो. 21*ab*: supply मल्लुते काव्ये in the beginning. 76*a*: supply तन् तवैव लज्जा after a. 95*d*: supply विरह before तक्खर. 108*ab*: शरीर is the understood object in b. 133*cd*: the description refers to the सहकार. 141*d*: refers to विद्युत्. 152*a*: दिण is वर्षाप्रान्तदिन. 189*c*: दिवस is to be understood after अंगुलमत्त. 193*d*: supply दुम्म after उज्जाणहँ. 196*a*: supply दानं after दिति. 196*d*: we have to understand प्रियं प्रति. 202*d*: स्त्रियः are understood. 218*d*: supply जनाः. 219*ab*: supply जनैः.

Tmesis. We have already dealt with several cases of tmesis (§ 75). To those add one more: सं- केवइ- जणइ 201*a* = केवइ संजणइ.

Anaphoric construction. Lastly, a few cases remain to be mentioned wherein the substantive being attended with a detailed description is felt incapable of directly conveying its relation with the subsequent words in the sentence and consequently an anaphoric pronoun is used which expresses the relation of the substantive with other words. For parallels in other Early Vernaculars see V.R., § 38.

णव-घण-रेह-विणगय निम्मलकरु सरयरयणि-पच्चक्खु अमियभरु झरंतउ फुरइ तह चंदह जिणल्लु पियह संजणिय-मुहु मुहु विरहमिग्गमि कइयलमि अंपियउ 122 “Since how long is covered with the smoke of separation-fire (your) face which brings happiness to (your) lover and which has the object of conquering that moon which becoming manifest on an autumn night, coming out of the row of fresh clouds and shedding its burden of nectar shines serene-rayed”.

फलहारिण उन्नमियउ.....गंधर्वाह कुंजरसवण-सरिच्छ पहल्लिर (साहार) तह पसिद्धि... कीरपंति परिवसइ 133*cd*-134*ab*. “The सहकार tree, bent down with the weight of (its) fruits, dangling due to wind like elephant's ears: in its leaves resides the row of parrots”.

Pk. माणुस्स-दिव्व-विज्जाहरेहिं णहमग्गि सूरससिविवे आपहिं जो णमज्जइ २ “by human beings gods and Vidyādhara, by the solar and lunar orb in the heavenly path by all these, Who is bowed down to—”

The use of the infinitive with ण (or an interrogative particle) and जाइ to denote impossibility of performing an action because of its extreme nature is peculiarly Apabhraṃśa. We find this construction in, e. g., Hemacandra's illustrative stanzas, in the Paramappapayāsa of Joindu. The idiom is current even in the Modern languages. The three cases occurring in the SR. are: न धरणउ जाइ 71*a*, कहणु न जाइ 81*a* and किम...सहण जाइ 218*b*.

There appears a decided bias in favour of using the pret. part. in impersonal construction. Note छावडइ पहराविउ 78*a*, मइ रञ्जु 109*d*, कछोलिहि गजिउ 142*b*, सिहंडिहि रडिउ 144*b*, साछुरिहि रसिउ 144*c*, हंसिहि उरुञ्जउ 145*d*, गोयं गणिहि संचडिउ 146*a*, कुसुमिहि सोहिउ 215*b*, etc. It is also to be noted that excepting the first case (in a Dohā), all the other cases have the instr. in 'इहि'.

Here we can say that two steps intervene between the type of usage attested here and the one in the modern vernaculars which has shed the passive sense and serves to express the past directly. Thus, firstly if for expressions like say हंसिहि चडिउ 'by the goose was climbed' 'the climbing was done by the goose', those like हंसि (instr.) चडिउ (cf. छावडइ पहराविउ) get current and then secondly, if as a result of the phonetic development of हंसि into हंस (i. e. endingless instr. see § 51 B. ii) by the reduction of the final इ, our expression takes the form हंस (instr.) चडिउ (so common in Dīngal, etc.), then the natural confusion of the हंस (instr.) with the homophonous nom./acc. हंस would give us without any difficulty the modern active expression हंस चड्यो 'the goose climbed' 'the goose did the climbing'.

Thus, in the end the old passive was lost from the pret. And eventually it met the same fate in the present, where it developed a potential (and later on a mild imperative [cf. TESSITORI, § 137]) sense. Some indications as to this are supplied by अंबर पुणि रंगियइ 'the cloth can be dyed again', अंगु अब्भियइ 'the body can be annointed', दविणु पुणु भिटियइ 'riches can be won back' and किम वट्टियइ 'how (it) can be turned', all occurring in 101.

An important result of this tendency was the development of a new passive (cf. TESSITORI, § 126 (2) i; DAVE, p. 47) which probably made the first beginning by the pret. passive part. in आणय, the successor of the old pret. part.¹ In our text (in a passage whose language appears comparatively more advanced) is attested समाण 180 (= संसिणः) from √समा and perhaps पच्छुत्ताणिय (f.)

1 According to TESSITORI (who follows in this matter HOERNLE § 484) originally this was a potential passive (developed from the causative) which in course of time became ordinary passive (see § 140), while the participle in *आणउ is connected by him with the same in *आण° in Sk.

199*d* from *V*पच्छुता—*V*पच्छुताथ (= पश्च°+उत्ताप?). TESSITORI notes that they are found in Jain Mahārāṣṭrī, in Sindhī and Avadhī.

Lastly, the attention remains to be drawn to three cases of compound verbs so current in the modern vernaculars wherein a second verb used auxiliarily in conjunction with the absolutive of the main verb serves to express an aspect or state of the action denoted by the main verb. Thus Guj. खावुँ 'to eat', खाइ रहेवुँ 'to finish by eating', 'to eat up'; जोवुँ 'to see', जोइ रहेवुँ 'to look on'. Similarly here को गिसुणेविणु रहइ 18*c* 'Who would listen on—listen completely—patiently?' (Cf. Guj. सॉभळी रहेवुँ, पडी रह्यो etc.; cf. KELLOGG Hindi Grammar: § 442, 754*d*); तक्खर वक्खर हरि गउ 95*d* 'The thief stole away the belongings' and असेस तरुय झडि करि गय 192*d* 'All the trees completely shed (their) leaves'. Cf. the com.: अशेषास्तरवः पत्राणि मुक्त्वा गताः = स्थिताः ! Note also कहि न सकउ 105*a* 'I cannot tell'. Cf. TESSITORI, § 132.

§ 77. Conclusion. The dialect of the Sr.

The linguistic material analysed and classified in the foregoing articles allows us to draw some broad conclusions regarding the proper affiliation of the dialect used in the Sr. But before we take it up, it is necessary to draw attention to one important point.

JACOBI has brought forth and discussed sufficient evidence to prove that Apabhramśa properly so called was a mixed language in so far as it borrowed most of its vocabulary from the literary Prakrits and its grammatical constructions from the देशभाषास (or the popular dialects).¹ And it is thus explained: the देशभाषास being considered vulgar as compared to the literary Prakrit, they could not make their appearance in literature in their pure, unmixed form. Hence they penetrated literature just like popular cross-threads in the general basic texture of the literary Prakrit, and the result was Apabhramśa. This means that, the standardized classical Apabhramśa apart, the form of Apabhramśa at successive chronological stages can vary in accordance with the advance in the development of the popular dialects that lie at the basis and, according to the lateness of Ap., we can expect a greater degree of admixture of the popular dialects, till that process in due course leads to a form of language like one represented in the Prākṛta-paiṅgala.

The Sr. presents to us an Apabhramśa,¹ which is in this manner considerably mixed with the traits of popular dialects synchronous with the Author's time. A reference to the parallels and correspondences with the developments in various New Indo-Aryan vernaculars as pointed out previously at relevant places—and particularly at §§ 36 (a), (b), 46. v. Remarks, p. 26 (second paragraph), §§ 73, 75 (end) and 76 (end portion) will make this point clear. Yet, doubtless, it is still to be called Apabhramśa, as its phonology (mostly unsimplified conjuncts) and its system of inflections show. Besides some traits of the Classical Apabhramśa (that which is treated by Hemacandra in his Prakrit grammar), viz., मृ > वृ (वृ) (§ 33 A.), imperatives in इ, हि, उ and अ (§ 63), absolutives in इवि, अवि, एवि, एविण्, इ, अपि (§ 68) and the s-future as well as the h-future (§ 66), we can pick up several other traits which have been shown to be peculiar to the श्वेताम्बर or गुर्जर अपभ्रंश. These are: (a) use of the bare stem in the nom. of the masc. अ-stems, (b) instr. sing. forms of the masc. अ-stems in इ and हि, (c) assimilated h-endings of the genitives, (d) pronominal instrumentals जिणि, तिणि, इणि, (e) present 3. plur. forms in अह. All these make it plain that the dialect of our text possesses all the chief characteristics of the श्वेताम्बर or गुर्जर अपभ्रंश. It is to be noted that the features like the absence of nasal in forms elsewhere found nasalized (§§ 2-8), assimilation of a post-nasal stop (§ 35, V), nominatives in अ side by side with those in उ, instr. sing. forms in हि, bare stem in the instr. and the loc. of अ-stems normalization of the इ-, उ-stems (§ 45 i), increasing use of postpositions, looseness in composition, new words like गुहिर, अंजुलि etc. are not special to any particular localised form of Apabhramśa but are commonly indicative of the lateness of Apabhramśa.

But we can go still further: (a) total absence of the आ-forms in nom. sing. of the masc. अ stems; (b) most of the postpositions collected under § 73; (c) change of °उ to °अ seen in चउगणी (G. चोगणी as against H. चौगुनी) and फरसउ (G. फरसु); (d) fem. genitives in इय (§ 56, Remarks), pret. passive participle in आणय

1 Or अवहट्ठ as at one place the author of the Sr. calls it. But this अवहट्ठ is different from one, represented by the language of the PP. On this Apabhramśa tradition in New Indo-Aryan cf. CHATTERJI, Indo-Aryan and Hindī, p. 99. San. pp. XXII-XXIV; Kp. pp. 65-66. Note that the author of the Sr. follows Eastern Grammarians in the division of languages into सक्कय, पायय, अवहट्ठ and पेसाइय (Sr. 6).

(§ 67, 76 end); (f) genitive constructions like इम भणंतह (§ 76, p. 43), (g) words like इम, जिम, तिम, किम, सवि, बे, ससिहर, अन्नइ, हिव, चडी, तुटी—these features characteristically belong to the Old Western Rājasthānī, while (a) development of °स् into °ह् (§ 34); (b) loss of neuter (§ 50); (c) use of the bare stem in all cases (§ 51 B. 1. end); (d) इ-absolutives; (e) words with the pleonastically prefixed स् (§ 48. ii), as also the words वट्टाऊ, झल, अह—these features are peculiar to the northerly section of the OWR., as one can judge from their occurrence in Ḍingal or Early literary Mārwarī.

Lastly there are a few facts which clearly indicate the influence of the then dialects of the Midland (Early Braj, Hindi, etc.) over the language of the SR. Thus (a) loss of an intervocal व (§ 33 C.); (b) agentives like संजीवयर, उल्हावयर as compared with Hindi छुँटेरा, चितेरा etc.; (c) the compound absolutive दहेवि करि (in a Dohā) point to such Midland influence.

As suggested at relevant places (e. g., p. 19, note 1) the language of the Dohās of the SR. differs in several points from that of the main portion of the text and it is closely allied to (though more advanced than) the language of the Dohās of Hemacandra.

II METRES

§ 1. Before we proceed to treat the metres of the SR., a general note on the differing Ap. metrical traditions is called forth. Besides the two well-known works, Hemacandra's छन्दोऽनुशासन and the प्राकृतपैङ्गल, we have now five other large or small treatises—all published by Prof. H. D. VELANKAR—dealing with Pk. and Ap. metres. They are the वृत्तजातिसमुच्चय of Virahāṅka, the स्वयम्भूच्छन्दस् of Svayambhū, the गथावलक्षण of Nandiyaddha, the anonymous कविदर्पण and the छंदःकोश of Ratnaśekhara¹. Among these the work of Virahāṅka (as also of Nandiyaddha, if at all) treats a very small number of Ap. metres properly so called. Though dealing with the same subject, the above-named works widely differ from one another in their range and province and on the strength of certain provisional criteria—such as, the definition and nomenclature of the commonly occurring metres

1 W. SCHUBRING's edition of the last-mentioned work (see Beiträge zur indischen Verskunde, Z. D. M. G. 75, p. 97 ff.) is not accessible to me.

मात्रा (रङ्ग) and its sub-types, of द्विचक or दोहा and its sub-types, of अङ्गि, etc., the preferential treatment of certain metres and the exclusion of others, the quantitative value of the final mora, the characteristic system of the termini technici and some special features of the method of treatment in general—on the strength of these criteria we can hazard to roughly distinguish at least two considerably divergent metrical traditions: the one, which for convenience's sake may be called the Classical Tradition, occupies itself mainly—but in no way exclusively—with the prosody of the Apabhramśa epic poetry, while the chief—but again not the only—concern of the other, which may be called the Bardic Tradition, is the metres that are employed in the Ap. narrative and lyric poetry as of the रसक compositions and other forms substantially cultivated by the popular bards (the मागध). Due to its popular character the latter tradition was obviously more open to continuous revision and reinforcement. The works of Svayambhū and Hemacandra on the one hand and the कविदर्पण on the other represent the Classical Tradition; the छंदःकोश (which is little more than a compilation from the ancient works of Arjuna or Alha and Gosala or Gulha) and the प्राकृतपैङ्गल (which also appears to have a highly composite character) represent the Bardic Tradition.

These facts bring forth one important result. In the proper identification of the metres employed in the epics like the महापुराण of Puṣpadanta or the भविष्यत्कह of Dhanapāla one should be guided ultimately by the metrical works of the Classical Tradition. The other sort of metrical works can at best render only a secondary help and as the common metres are at times divergently treated by the two sorts of metrical treatises, it will not be surprising if their undiscerning use proves a source of confusion.¹ The same words apply to the value of the works on epic metres for the study of the metres of non-epical poetry.

§ 2. Adopting ALSDORF's classification (see As. p. 46) we can deal with the metres of the SR. under the following heads:

A. मात्रावृत्तः

1. (a) Four-lined metres with the rhyme a b, c d.

1 JACOBI'S (and following him ALSDORF's) adoption of the name अङ्गि instead of वृत्तक for the commonly occurring epic metre with the scheme $6 + 4 + 4 + 2$ is an illustration in point.

- (b) Metres of the Dohā-type: two rhyming lines divided in two unequal पादs (as घत्ता : the अन्तरसमा चतुष्पदी type).
- (c) Metres with the rhyme-type a b, c d, e f.
- (d) Strophic metres.

II. Metres of the Gāthā-type.

B. वर्णवृत्तs.

A. मात्रावृत्तs.

I. (a) Four-lined metres: rhyme a b, c d.

§ 3. 1. अडिह्ला.¹

Occurrence: 104, 182; 157-170, 174-181.

We have conflicting statements of different metricians on this metre. But most of the authorities agree, by definition and illustration, in considering end-Yamaka as one of the differentiae of the अडिह्ला. And st. 104 and 182 of our text which are expressly called अडिह्ला strictly bear out this point. Further, with slight difference all grant that the metre has 16 morae per line, the last two morae being invariably short. But the agreement does not reach beyond these points. For the remaining, there is a considerable measure of divergence among the various authorities. Firstly as to the number of the यमकs. According to some (Ck. 41a, Vjs. IV 33, 34, the form of the definition stanza 127 in the Pr.; cf. the introductory remark to Sc. IV 32 and Ch. 37a last lines) there should be one यमक for all the four lines. And if instead of one, there are two यमकs, one for a b another for c d, the metre receives the name मडिह्ला. The author of the Śr. follows this tradition. Others (Kd. II 21b, Ch. p. 37b/2 recording a different view) hold that it is the other way round. According to them the मडिह्ला must have one यमक and the अडिह्ला two.²

Secondly as to the गण-scheme. Among the 'Bardic' group, all are silent on this point, except Pr. which only says that the final two morae are to be short and the जगण is forbidden. One of the commentators of the Pr. gives 6+4+4+~ as the scheme. On the other hand the 'Classical' group defines अडिह्ला as a sub-type of the metre वदनक, which latter is quite unknown to the 'Bardic' group. वदनक is defined (Sc. IV 29, Ch. 37a/15, Kd. II 21) as 6+4+4+2 and when it has यमक it is called अडिझा or मडिझा. No specific prescription is found for the form of the final two-moraic गण, but the practice is mostly in favour of two shorts. Now apart from the two above-mentioned stanzas 104 and 182 which satisfy all the requirements of an अडिझा, there are 22 other stanzas (157 to 170; 174 to 181) in the Sr. whose structure is doubtlessly that of an अडिझा, but which fail to satisfy the important condition that all the lines should have the यमक. It does not seem justified to call the metre of these stanzas वदनक because, as noted above, that name is quite unknown to the "Bardic" tradition, while the metres of the Sr. have no particular concern with the "Classical" tradition.

1 The name appears variously as अडिह्ल, अडिह्ल, अडिह्लह् etc.

2 Ck. 42 recognises a third variety with a different Yamaka (?) for each of the four lines and calls it भिन्नमडिह्ला.

On the strength of some evidence, the fact can be historically explained. There is an ancient tradition (See Vjs. IV 32, Ck. 41) to the effect that in a stanza made up of equal or unequal lines of any good metre, if the आसीरी (i. e. अपब्रंश) language and the यमक are employed, the stanza is called अडिझा. Vjs. IV 34 gives an illustration of "अडिझा नक्कडय भेएण" i. e. an अडिझा in the form of a नकुटक stanza in आसीरी with the यमक employed in it. But just below the above-cited definition of the अडिझा, another one is given at Vjs. IV 33. Unfortunately the text of this definition stanza is not quite clear, but the form of the stanza is 6+~ - ~+ - -+~ , with one यमक for all the four lines. These facts make it probable that formerly अडिझा was a technical device rather than the name of any specific metre and accordingly any common metre could be turned into अडिझा by composing it in अपब्रंश and using the यमक. But the metre with the form 6+4+4+~ was employed with special preference for this purpose and the result was, अडिझा ceased to be a general name and came to be specially attached to that particular metre. And later on, the distinction between the यमक ('a recurring group of syllables identical in sounds but different in sense') and the अनुप्रास ('rhyme') being lost (cf. the uses of the term जमक in the sense of अनुप्रास in the Ck. and even in the Sc.; see also the illustration stanza for अडिझा at Pp. 128), a 16-moraic metre of the above type, even without the यमक came to be called अडिझा.¹ Finally it also took up the rhyme a b, c d.

¹ It is to be noted that the term उझार appears to have an exactly parallel history. See Ck. 31, 38; comm. on Pp. 148; Ch. 43a/15-19.

Among the stanzas of the Sr. in question, the यमक strictly so called is found in st. 157 (αb having one, $c d$ another), 161 (only $c d$), 163 (only αb), 165 (only $c d$), 166 (αb having a pure one, $c d$ an impure one) and 181 (αb and $c d$ both having an impure one).

An analysis of the 22+3 अङ्गि stanzas occurring in the Sr. gives the the following statistics for the various forms of the constituent गण (the figures for the two यमित अङ्गि at st. 104 and 182 and one मङ्गि at st. 111 are given separately in the brackets):

The forms of the 1. गण of 6 morae are

~~~~	20 (6)	~--~	8	~~~~	3
~~~~	20	---~	4	~--~	2
~~~	19 (4)	---	3 (1)
~~~~~	7	~~--	2 (1)

These results show that 1. गण of our अङ्गि is built up altogether differently from that of the अङ्गि of the Hr., as the latter has generally the form ~~-~ with the trochaic rhyme (See Hr. p. 191 mid.), while here it is the least preferred and quite exceptional form. In our case there is a strong tendency to two-moraic grouping and hence a long for the 2. and 3. as also for the 4. and 5. mora is mostly avoided.

The forms of the 2. गण of 4 morae are

~~~	39 (2: ~, ~~~)
~~	23	~-~	14 (10)
~~	9
--	3

Thus the जगण is permissible in the 2. गण and in the case of the यमित अङ्गि and मङ्गि, ~, ~~- appears to be the only form of this गण. Note that out of the 14 cases of the जगण, not less than 6 occur in those stanzas which have got the यमक.

The forms of the 3. गण of 4 morae are

~-	46 (1)	--	23 (11)
~,~	12 ¹	---	4

This makes it clear that the जगण is avoided in the 3. गण. Mark the anapaest tendency of this गण.

1 157*d* is a real exception, c possibly an apparent one, because in the latter case if रमणीय is to be preserved, रयणि (c) is to be preferred to रयणिञ्.

The 4. गण is invariably made up of two short morae.

162b (~~~~~ / ~~~~ 1 ~~~~ / ~~~) is the only case of Gaṇa-fusion.

§ 4.

2. मडिला.

Occurrence: 111.

Different views on the exact nature of this metre have been already noted in our discussion on the metre अडिङ्गा. The wavering apparent in the Mss. of our text at 110 d (B C मडिल्ल, A अडिङ्ग) and in the commentaries (the text of both reads अडिङ्ग, though the व्याख्या names the metre of Sr. 111 as मडिल्लच्छंदः and quotes Ck. 41 cd to define it) also suggests diversity of traditions on this point.

As the difference between the two metres अडिङ्गा and मडिल्ल amounts to a negligible point, the view adopted in the Ch. which considers both these as merely two varieties of one single metre appears quite reasonable.

§ 5. 3. रासा (रासक) or आहाणय (आभाणक).

Occurrence: 26-30, 41-57, 58 (a b), 64-68, 74 (a b), 91-92, 96-99, 101-103, 104 (a b), 105-106, 109-110, 113 (6 lines), 117 (6 lines), 118 (6 lines), 121-124, 125 (a b), 130-136, 139-147, 151, 154, 155 (a b), 184-189, 190 (a b), 192-197, 198 (a b); 86-87; 204. Total 328+12 lines.

This is the principal¹ metre employed in building up the frame of the Sr. About one third of the Sr. is composed in this metre.

As it was in the case of the अडिङ्गा, here too we have to make a way through the conflicting and scanty accounts of the prosodists. Ck. 17 defines अहाणय as a metre of 21 morae. The final mora should be always short and a 5-moraic गण is to be avoided. The commentary on Ck. 17 (See Notes on Ck. 17) says that the tradition requires final three morae to be all short and this is confirmed by the Sr. stanzas. Thus the Ck. makes no provision for the constitution of the individual गण, nor says anything regarding the caesura. Still the definition stanza has a definite caesura after the 12. mora.² Further, this

1 According to Kramadīśvara as quoted and interpreted by JACOBI at Bh. p. 71* रासा is the chief metre of the Nāgara Apabhraṃśa.

2 The रासा metre used in the body of the कडवक at Bh. VII 12 has the caesura after the 12. mora. See Bh. p. 48*, 7.

Ck. 17 is quoted in the व्याख्या on Sr. 26 with the varying fourth line recording रासउ as an alternative name of the आभाणक. The व्याख्या in its explanation of the definition adds on its own account that 6+4+4+4+3 is the गण-scheme. This is borne out by our stanzas but with certain important reservations, as the analysis given below shows. If we refer to the group of स्वयंभू, हेमचंद्र and the कविदर्पण for some guidance or clarification on this point there also we are faced with disappointment. Sc. VIII 50 defines one metre which is preferentially employed in the रास compositions. It should have 21 morae, with final three morae short and a caesura after the 14. mora. On the other hand Ch. 37 a/9 and Kd. II 25 define रासावलय as a metre of 21 morae divided as 6+4+6+5. As this infringes the explicit ban on the पंचकृत्त put by the Ck., one would think this रासावलय to be essentially different from the आभाणउ of the Ck. But the facts that the definition and illustration stanzas all without fail end in three shorts and that the illustration stanza in the Ch. has a caesura after the 12. mora (cf. ALSDORF's observation, As. p. 47) do not allow any doubts regarding the basic identity of these two metres.

The fact appears that originally a 21-moraic stanza with the final three morae short must have been in common use for the रागावलय and in accordance with the varying practices and traditions it came to have different Gāṇa-divisions and positions of the caesura. Only thus can be explained the basic agreement but the divergence in details in the various accounts of this metre.

The रास-stanzas of the Sr. have the caesura optionally after the 11. or 12. mora¹. We saw above that the practice of some (Ck. 17, Ch. 37 a/10-11) supports the 12-moraic caesura. On the other hand the 11-moraic caesura finds a stronger support in Ck. 29. There while defining the strophe रासाकुल (mark the name), it is prescribed for the first part—which though unnamed is completely identical in form with the आभाणक except of course in the position of the caesura—that its lines are made up of 11+10 morae.

The general form of the रास in the Sr. is (the superior quantities less common):

1 Same is the case with the रासा found in the चर्चरी (beginning of the 12th cent. A. C.) of जिनदत्तगुरि (see अपभ्रंशशब्दवर्णिका, GOS. XXXVII).

$$\sim + 4 + \sim\sim + \sim/3 + \sim\sim + \dots$$ or alternatively

$$\sim + 4 + \sim\sim + \sim/\sim + \sim\sim + \dots$$

The individual गण are represented as under (the two चउपदय stanzas 86, 87 and the one लंकोदय stanza 204 are included in the calculations):

1. गण¹ (morae 1.-2.) has two forms:

$$\sim\sim \quad 206 \qquad \sim\sim\sim \quad 134$$

2. गण (morae 3.-6.) has five forms:

$$\sim\sim\sim \quad 104 \qquad \sim\sim\sim\sim \quad 56$$

$$\sim\sim\sim\sim \quad 86 \qquad \sim\sim\sim\sim\sim \quad 18$$

$$\sim\sim\sim\sim\sim \quad 72$$

This shows that the जगण is permitted in this गण.

3. गण (morae 7.-10.) has four forms:

$$\sim\sim\sim\sim \quad 179 \qquad \sim\sim\sim\sim\sim \quad 62$$

$$\sim\sim\sim\sim\sim \quad 71 \qquad \sim\sim\sim\sim\sim\sim \quad 23$$

Here the जगण is forbidden.

4. गण (mora 11., or morae 11.-12.) is made up of one or two short syllables according as the caesura falls after the 11. or the 12. mora. The proportion of the two is

$$\sim \quad 190 (56 \%) \qquad \sim\sim \quad 144 (43 \%).$$

Exceptions:—56*d*, 57*a*, 58*a* (all the three occurring in the section listing tree-names), 130*b* and 154*b* have the caesura after the 14. mora. Cf. the रासक of the 14-moraic caesura treated at Sc. VIII 50 and Ch. V 2. For 47*c*, 187*b*, and 188*d* see

1 A word of explanation seems necessary for this spinning out of the five (6 + 4 + 4 + 4 + 3) गण given by the व्याख्या into seven. The two implications of the principal of गण-division in general are that firstly the closing mora of a preceding गण and the opening mora of the गण following it cannot be replaced by a heavy syllable i. e. the separate individuality of each of the two morae is to be preserved (cf. AM § 19.) and secondly, the common patterns of the various constituent गण when viewed in a lot are to be indicative of the general rhythm of the metre if any. In the case of the रासक stanzas in the Śr. the formal analysis shows that it conduces to precision and lucidity to split up the first and the third गण of the व्याख्या each into two and as this can be done without any detriment to the underlying principal, seven गण are set up. For precedences Ch. V 31 versus 32 (cf. Hp. p. 189) and ALSDORF'S treatment of the दुर्बङ्ग (see § 11 below) can be pointed to.

Metrical Emendations. The heavy syllable standing in the place of morae 11.-12. in 29b (झपंती) and 55c (बाद्ध) is resolvable into two shorts in accordance with Grammar § 28 (cf. § 41 f). For 151b as also for the question of Gaṇa-fusion in 44a see Metrical Emendations.

5. गण (morae 12.-14. or 13.-14. in accordance with the fall of the caesura) has three forms in the first instance, two in the second.

(i) ∼ ∼ ∼ 66                      ∼ ∼ 66                      ∼ ∼ 56

(ii) - 77                      ∼ 71

6. गण (morae 15.-18.) has four forms :

∼ ∼ ∼ 131                      - - 58

∼ ∼ ∼ 89                      ∼ ∼ 59

Like the 3. गण this also avoids the जगण.

7. गण (morae 19.-21.) has only one form : ∼ ∼ ∼.

Exceptions:—92ab घळिया, मिहिया (i. e. ∼ - instead of ∼ ∼ ∼) are only apparent exceptions, since they are contraction-forms developed from घळियय, मिहियय. See Grammar § 41 (c). For 151 a, b see Metrical Emendations.

§ 6. 4. चउपइय (चतुष्पदिका).

Sr. 85 calls the two stanzas next to itself चउपइय. But their scansion shows their structure to be in no way different from that of a रासय stanza. So they have been treated here as रासास. It may be noted that after defining the metre रासावल्य Hemacandra remarks (Ch. 37a): इदं चतुष्पदी वस्तुर्कं च इत्येके. The various metres with the name चउपइय found in the metrical treatises are altogether different from the metre of Sr. 86-87.

§ 7. 5. लंकोडय (लङ्कोटक).

Sr. 204 is expressly named लंकोडय by 203d. No metre with this name is known to the extent treatises on Pk. and Ap. metres. On the other hand the metre of 204 is found to differ in no particulars from an ordinary रासा. But the designation implies some characteristic peculiarities, which however are not clear to us. Accordingly 204 also is treated here as a रासा.

§ 8. 6. पद्धिया.

Occurrence: 20-21, 59-62, 63 (ab), 200-203, 205-206, 207 (ab), 209-212, 214-219, 220 (ab). Total 94 पादस.

Being the standard metre of the Ap. epic, it is one of the commonest of Ap. metres and as such it is treated by almost all metricians with varying details.

A पद्विज-line is made up of four चतुर्मात्र गण;  $\sim\sim\sim$  is obligatory in the last गण, facultative in the 2., forbidden in the 1. and the 3. Regarding this metre ALSDORF observes (Kr. 73): "The Paddhadikā is a metre of anapaestic (i. e.  $\sim-$ ) basic character, which though variously violated, is still to be clearly recognised. The freedom of construction is greatest in the opening portion of the पद; toward the end the regulation becomes stricter and the basic type of the respective गण stands out more clearly. The 3. गण is built up similarly to the 1. and the 4. similarly to the 2., and between 1./3. गण on one hand and 2./4. गण on the other exists a certain contrast, so that a regular variation is set up in the stanza which is indeed often given up—especially in favour of a continued anapaest rhythm".

Gaṇa 4. is most strictly regulated. In the Śr. stanzas it has the form  $\sim\sim$  without exception. In other texts the form  $\sim,\sim\sim$  is also attested.

The forms of the 2. गण are represented as under :

(a) $\sim-$	39 (41 %)	(b) $\sim\sim$	25 (27 %)
$\sim,\sim$	14 (15 %)	$\sim,\sim\sim$	16 (17 %)
	53 (56 %)		41 (44 %)

The corresponding percentage for the पद्विज occurring in the KṚ. is 53 and 16. But KṚ. has 1% of cases which are either dactyl ( $\sim\sim$ ) or spondee ( $--$ ). They are totally absent in our specimen.

In the case of the 1. and the 3. गण here (as in the KṚ.), सगण is the most frequent and भगण—which 'disturbs the anapaest rhythm most'—the most seldom verse-foot as the following figures show.

	$\sim\sim-$	$\sim\sim\sim$	$--$	$\sim\sim\sim$
1. गण	31 (33 %)	26 (28 %)	23 (24 %)	14 (15 %)
3. गण	40 (43 %)	37 (39 %)	4 (4 %)	13 (14 %)

As  $\sim,\sim$  has originated from the anapaest (cf. Gaṇa 2.), we can sum up the first two figures in the case of each of the two गण and this gives us the result that "the anapaest basic tendency is still more strongly impressed on the 3. गण than it is on the 1." (KṚ.).

§ 9. 7. कव्व (काव्य) or वत्थुय (वस्तुक).

Occurrence: (independently) 107; (as the first four lines of the strophe वद्वद) 148, 183, 191 (only a b), 199, 137 (?).

There are 24 morae to each पद. The scheme given by the Pr. (109) is 6+4+ $\sim$ / $\sim$ +4+6. जगण is forbidden in the 2. and the 4. गण and the last two morae are to be short. Ch. and others define this metre under the name वत्थुवयण and their scheme differs in this that they say nothing regarding the caesura after the 11. mora.

After examining one hundred and odd वस्तुवदन stanzas from different sources, ALSDORF (Kp. pp. 74-75) comes to the conclusion that the main caesura falls after the 3. गण (i. e. after the 14. mora), while later on a second caesura has developed after the 11. mora., which, in the stanzas examined by him appears regularly, but not quite without exceptions. This second caesura is considered by the Pr. as the main caesura.

In the case of the Sr. all the वत्थुयपादs have both of the caesura. The last गण is  $\sim\sim$  (15) or  $\sim\sim$  (3) without exception. The material is too scanty to permit statements with any positiveness regarding the form of the other गणs. In the 3. गण the cases are divided exactly half to half between amphibrachys ( $\sim\sim$ ) and proceleusmatisim ( $\sim\sim\sim$ ). In the point of preference of forms in the 2. and the 4. गण our text supplements ALSDORF's data to some extent:

2. गण	10	6	1	1
4. गण	6	7	3	2

$\sim\sim$  is strictly avoided in both these गणs. ALSDORF has comparatively higher figures for the last two forms. Nothing is remarkable regarding the forms of the 1. गण.

Sr. 137 has an uncertain text and consequently it is not here taken into consideration. For its discussion see § 18.

§ 10. 8. कामिणीमोहन (कामिनीमोहन).

Occurrence: 82, 83, 85.

All other authorities except the Ck. (10, 32, 39), the Gl. (78) and the व्याख्या on the Sr. treat this metre under the name मदनवतार. Generally it is defined as made up of four lines, each line having four पद्यमात्रs. No restriction is put as to the form of the गणs. Only Ck. 10 says that all the four पद्यमात्रs should be रणसः.¹ But this appears to be an overstatement, since in the Ck. itself two कामिनीमोहनस—one forming a part of the strophe चंदायण (Ck. 32) and another in the allied strophe चंदायणि (Ck. 39)—do not abide by that rule. They have amphimacer (रण) in the 4. गण only. And to this point our stanzas also subscribe. They regularly end in an amphimacer. The other three गणस have various forms, but the forms ~~~ and ~~~ are studiously avoided. This means that the middlemost mora of every गण is invariably short, which fact results in giving an amphimacer rhythm to the metre. The defining or illustrating stanza in कामिनीमोहन given by the Sc., Gl. and Kn. also bear out these results. Only the stanza in the Ch. neither regularly ends in ~~, nor can it be said to have an amphimacer rhythm. It is obvious that in this case the Ck. presents one extreme, the Ch. the other. With this varying treatment of कामिनीमोहन at one place as a मात्रवृत्त, at another as a वर्णवृत्त, cf. a similar treatment of डुमिल (see § 16).

The व्याख्या on Sr. 82 names the metre as चंदायण for which Ck. 32 (with some variants) is quoted. Now, it is the metre defined and called कामिनीमोहन at Ck. 10 that is identical with the metre of Sr. 82, etc., while Ck. 32 deals not with कामिनीमोहन, but with a strophe made up of a दोहा followed by a कामिनीमोहन. But Sr. 82², 83, 85 are not strophes. So they ought to have been called, not चंदायण, but कामिणीमोहन and accordingly instead of Ck. 32, Ck. 10 ought to have been quoted.

Against this it can be urged that though the constituted text of the Ck. 32 cannot be made to support the view that calls Sr. 82 a चंदायण, still the text of Ck. 32 as quoted by the व्याख्या has a variant for the first पाद of the second line (अहं तिणि रहियउ for अइकोमलु जण^०) which obviously means that a कामिनीमोहन with or without being headed by a दोहा can be called चंदायण. However, this cannot be the original reading, as it is not attested in any of the three 'good' Mss. used by VELANKAR for his edition of the Ck. and besides, it strikes at the very root of the method of nomenclature in the Ck., in accordance with which when कामिनीमोहन is prefixed

1 PP. II 127 defines a वर्णवृत्त having four रणस to each line. But it is named there as लच्छीहर.

2 Sr. 81 is a दोहा, but it does not form a unit with the following कामिनीमोहन from the view point of syntax or sense and hence it fails to make up a strophe.

with दोहा or गथा, the strophes so formed received the distinct names चंदायण and चंदायणि in turn and similarly the strophes दोहा+काव्य (Ck. 31) and गथा+काव्य (Ck. 38) are named respectively as कुंडलिया and कुंडलिणि. Thus it would seem that Sr. 82 ought not to have been called चंदायण.

This is quite reasonable. Yet there is also a definite point or two to show that at least in some quarters the name चंदायण was in use instead of कामिनीमोहन. For, in the later days of popular Apabhramśa poetry there appears to have developed a loose practice of applying the name that by rights belongs to the whole strophe, to some one of its parts also. Cf. § 19 for some such instances. In the case of the चंदायण strophe also the same seems to have happened, since GL. 78 (probably an interpolation according to VELANKAR) defines the कामिनीमोहन under the name चंदायण (alternatively मदनवतार).

§ 11.

9. दुवई (द्विपदी).

Occurrence: 120.

All our metricians except विरहाङ्क have treated this metre. Its general scheme is:  $6 + \sim\sim\sim + 4 + 4 + 4 + \sim\sim\sim + -$  (Ch. IV 14, in the खजक section). By a statistical investigation of 100 पद of the दुवईs occurring as the opening stanza in the Ap. epic, ALSDORF obtains (see HP. p. 195) the following results: Trochaic rhythm is forbidden in the 1. गण, whose most frequent form is  $\sim\sim-$ . The 2. and the 6. गण have the form  $\sim-$ , less frequently  $\sim,\sim\sim$ . These forms are forbidden for the other 4-moraic गणs. There is a caesura after the 16. mora; in a few cases, however, it is lacking. The caesura is preceded, almost as a rule by two shorts and is followed by a long in majority of the cases.

Our दुवई stanza differs from this description in certain details. The first गण has the form  $\sim\sim\sim-$  in a b c,  $\sim\sim\sim$  in d. Only a and c have a caesura after the 16. mora. Similarly the दुवई given at GL. 81 is wanting twice in the caesura, that at So. VIII 37 and Ch. 32 a/15, once.

On the ground of the caesura after the 16. mora ALSDORF recasts the above-given scheme for the दुवई thus:

$$6 + \sim\sim\sim + 6/6 + \sim\sim\sim -$$

One serious objection can be advanced against this regrouping of the morae. The principle behind the गणनियम is, as observed previously, this that the last mora of a preceding गण cannot be fused together with the opening mora of the succeeding गण to form a heavy syllable. Expressed differently, a heavy syllable cannot appear for the two contiguous morae belonging to two different गणस. So in a दुवई, according to the traditional definition, a heavy syllable cannot be substituted for the 14. and the 15. mora or for the 18. and the 19. mora taken together. This fact is indicated by the representation  $6 + \sim + 4 + 4 + 4 + \sim -$ , while in the form given by ALSDORF it is obscured, since 6 stands for all the ten forms (including  $\sim \sim \sim$ ) possible for the षष्मात्र गण.

A few words on the name दुवई. ALSDORF finds it strange that in the face of the name दुवई (= द्विपदी), the Ch. (and now we can also add the Sc., the Gl., the Ck. and the Kd.) defines it as a metre of four पादस.¹ In his com. on Pr. 154, वंशीधर discusses for a different reason, whether दुवई is a two-lined metre or it is four-lined. VELANKAR has fully discussed this point at AM. II § 43. Vjs. III enumerates and defines no less than 57 such four-lined द्विपदīs and Hemacandra also knows all of them by their names (see Ch. p. 32a/18). But strangely enough, the sort of the द्विपदी treated here does not figure in those 57. Our type has the two-lined form when it is used as the opening stanza of a Sandhi in the Ap. epic. But in lyrical compositions it appears to have the four-lined form as a rule. Cf. a similar distinction of employment in the case of पद्धडिका, वदनक etc.

§ 12.

10. रवणिज्ज (रमणीयक).

Occurrence: 208.

विरहाङ्क is the sole authority to define this metre. Vjs. IV 26 gives  $5 + 5 + 4 + 4 + \sim -$  as the गण-scheme of the रमणिज्ज. Our stanza confirms it.

A side-point is raised by Vjs. III 27 and IV 89 which respectively define the two metres called सोम्मिआ (सौम्य) and संपिडिआ गलिआ (संपिण्डितगलिता)² both with the गण-scheme  $5 + 5 + 4 + 4 + \sim -$ , which is identical with the scheme of the रमणिज्ज, and what is more strange, while defining the संपिण्डितगलिता it is expressly stated that this metre is similar to the रमणिज्ज and सोमिआ! No where, however, it is made clear what is the exact difference between these three. Perhaps it may be that the metre with the scheme 5+5+4+4+~ - when it functions technically as a four-lined द्विपदी, it receives the name सौम्या, while as an independent metre it is called रमणिज्ज, which belonged to the general class गलितक. Cf. Ch. 31 b/8 and Kp. II 23 com.; इह हि गाथादण्डकादिवर्जं सर्वच्छन्दांसि यमकिताड्ग्रीणि सामान्येन गलितकानि.

1 Only the illustrative stanza (155) in the Pr. contains two पादस.

2 Probably this is identical with the गलितक ( $5 + 5 + 4 + 4 + 3$ , illustration ending in  $\sim -$ ) of Ch. IV 1 in the गलितक section.

From the single stanza at our disposal scarcely anything can be made out regarding the preferred and forbidden forms of the individual गणस. The 4. गण appears to have a tendency to prefer the form ~- and end in a long as a rule. The जगण is permissible in the 1. गण. The व्याख्या on Sr. 208 says that possibly the रमणिज्ज metre is a variety of the रसक metre. The external similarity of having 21 morae has proved here misleading.

(b) Metres of the Dohā-type.

11. दोहा (द्विपथा).¹

Occurrence: (independantly) 31, 69-71, 75-81, 88-89, 138, 150, 156; (as the latter part of रङ्ग) 18, 19, 24, 25, 222-223.

This is "the most current metre of the Ap. gnostic-didactic poetry and its position can be well described by calling it the Apabhramśa counterpart to the Prakrit गाथा." It is made up of two equal hemistichs each of 24 morae, with the caesura after the 13. mora. The गण-scheme is 6+4+3/6+4+1.² Following are the details of the forms of the individual गणस. (Results obtained by JACOBI and ALSDORF through an analysis of the Dohās occurring in other Ap. texts are also reproduced here from Kp., p. 72 for comparison. Hem. stands for the Dohās in the Ap. portion of Hemacandra's Prakrit grammar).

Forms of the six-moraic गण:-

- 1 The form दुवहअ (Vjs, Sc.) confirms the derivation of the name from द्विपथक, against SHAHIDULLAH, p. 62.
- 2 This is according to the tradition followed by the Ck., Pp. and Kp. On the other hand the Vjs., Sc., Gl. and Ch. consider the final syllable of a पाद always to be long and hence they give 14+12 as the measure of the दोहा. Cf. Hp. pp. 188-189.

(a) the middle always ~	Hem.	San.	Kp.	Sr.

(c) only one of the middle two ~
~~~~	1%	5%	7%	0

The figures show that the percentage of the Sr. for the (b) group is the highest, that for the (a) group, the lowest, while the abnormal forms of the (c) group are here totally absent. The preferred forms in the Sr. are (the figures indicate percents)

	Sr.	Hem.	San.	Kp.

Forms of the four-moraic गण :-

(a) in the even गणः :

~~	31 (70%)
--	13 (30%)

The proportion is thus 7 : 3. The San. has 6 : 2 and the Kp., 7 : 2.

(b) in the odd गणः :

	~~~~	----	---	~~
Sr.	27 (61%)	9 (22%)	7 (5%)	1 (2%)
Hem.		27%		5%
San.		39%		10%
Kp.		22%		18%

The three-moraic गण is throughout ~~~ except twice: 70a पवसिया and 156c चउग्गणी—both contraction-forms (see Grammar §§ 41 (c), 28b)

The last mora is short without fail.

In a general way the practice of the दोहा in the SR. is more akin to that of Hem., though we must hasten to state therewith that the SR. has no case of गण-fusion as contrasted with Hem. which has ten such cases. Out of the two possible cases of गण-fusion in the SR., 81d (सो बाहडी समाइ i. e. // - - - - - / - /) is only apparent as grammar requires the form बाहडिइ. The remaining 80c (भण पिय इक्कि वलियडइ i. e. ~~~~~ - - - - - / ~~~ //) is doubtful as the text at that place is a bit uncertain.

§ 14.

12. चूडिलय (चूडाल).¹

Occurrence: 112, 114.

Pr. 167 says that the चूडिआल is made by the addition of five morae to each half of a दोहा. The form of these five morae must be ~~~. Accordingly the measure of the चूडिलय would be 6+4+~~~/6+4+~~~. The Ck. and Kd. do not put any restriction on the form of this additional पञ्चमात्र, but the illustration in the Kd. quite follows the prescription given by the Pr. and the com. on Ck. 26 makes it explicit that the additional पञ्चमात्र must be, according to the convention (आनाय), either a यगण (~ - -) or ~~~. An examination of the form of the definition-illustration stanza Ck. 26 makes it probable that the form ~ - - has developed from ~~~ through the contraction of the final two shorts into a long.

Our specimens have always ~ - - , except once (114b पियह भण i. e. ~~~~~).

In the चूडिआल at Hc. 419, 6 both the lines end in ~ - - and not in ~~~~~. This is explicable, as ALSDORF notes (As. p. 52), on the ground that a long has got substituted for two shorts. Besides this हेमचन्द्र's चूडिआल has another noteworthy feature. As a rule ~ - - is forbidden in all the चतुर्मात्रs of the दोहा and चूडिआल

1 The com. on Kd. II 17 gives the derivation of the name चूडाल whereby the other names are also explained. Because in this metre the दोहा is endowed with a crest (चूडा) or an appendage (चूडिआ) in the form of the additional five morae, it is called the "crested" (दोहा). चूडा or चूडिआ + any of the possessive suffixes *इलय or *आल(य) gives चूडिलय or चूडिआल.

being nothing but an extended दोहा—a 'crested' दोहा, it is naturally expected to abide by this restriction. But हेमचन्द्र's illustration has one चतुर्मात्र ~~~. This appears to be a further development in the practice regarding the चूलिआला. Our stanzas do not take this freedom. Their Dohā part is quite regular.

13. फुल्लय (फुल्लक).

Occurrence : 108.

SR. 107 calls the next stanza फुल्ल. None of the metrical treatises to our hand know any metre of that name. Only Vjs. IV 63 treats a two-lined metre उत्फुल्ल (उत्फुल्लक) with the scheme $4+4+4+4+4+-$ —which, in spite of some difference in name appears to be identical with the metre of our stanza. Vjs. IV 27 defines a metre दुवह as $4+4+4+-+4+4+-$. Though the गण-scheme is different from that of an ordinary दोहा, the structure of the stanza shows it to be a दोहा beyond any doubt. Following the tradition of treating the पाद-ending syllable always long, we have here the measure of $14+12$ instead of the usual $13+11$. But the measures of the दोहा and उत्फुल्लक when rendered in accordance with the 'Bardic' tradition (which does not count the पाद-ending syllable as necessarily long) would be $4+4+4+~+4+4+~$ and $4+4+4+4+4+~$. This can mean that an उत्फुल्लक line is just a दोहा line with one mora less in the prior पाद. Consequently an उत्फुल्लक is liable to be confused with a दोहा. Precisely this appears to have been the result in the case of SR. 108.

The constituted text of SR. 108 presents it as a regular दोहा with $13+11$ morae per line. If we want to make out an उत्फुल्लक from it, we must reduce each hemistich by a mora. Possibly by reading हिउ¹ for हियउ and दहवि or दहिवि for दहेवि this can be achieved. Of course, it is to be assumed that the names फुल्ल (SR.) and उत्फुल्लय (Vjs.) relate to the same metre. But obviously, for the exact definition of this metre we shall have to wait for explicitly informative sources.

14. डोमिलय.

Occurrence : 22-23, 95.

The डोमिलय or डुमिलय is known to the metricians of the 'Bardic' group only. It is treated as a वर्णवृत्त (Ck. 16, Pr. II 208) as also as a मात्रावृत्त (Pr. I 196-198). As a वर्णवृत्त it is made up of 8 सगुण, with the first caesura after the 8. syllable and the second after the 16. This distribution of the caesurae has a rhythmic significance as it changes the anapaest rhythm of the middle portion to a dactylic one. This fact is indicated by the गण-scheme of the डुमिला of the मात्रावृत्त-type. It is $6+4/4+4/6+4+4$. The difference between the डुमिला of the वर्णवृत्त type and that of the मात्रावृत्त type is that the two shorts and one long in the non-final सगुण of the former are replaceable in the latter respectively by one long and two shorts. In other words all other forms of a चतुर्मात्र are permissible except the जगण. But, as the two specimens from the Sr. show, in practice there is a strong tendency to preserve the rhythm of the वर्णवृत्त-type i. e. the opening and the close anapaestic, the middle dactylic.

1 हिउ is attested in the Dohākośas and sanctioned by Hc. I 269.

In the case of one of our डुमिला the fact that separate stanza-numbers (Sr. 22,23) are given for each half raises one issue. Ck. 43 defines a metre called घत्ता as a four-lined अर्धसम metre with the scheme 18 (odd), 13 (even). The rhyme in the lines of Ck. 43 indicates that a caesura is to be recognised after the 10. mora, so that $10+8$ (odd), 13 (even) is the scheme. Further Pr. 99 defines this very घत्ता as a two-lined metre made up of 7 चतुर्मात्र and 3 shorts, with the caesurae after the 10. and the 18. mora. Now granting the liberty of considering the final syllable anceps, Sr. 22 or 23 (or any $\frac{1}{2}$ डेमिला for that) is quite a good घत्ता. Perhaps it makes for a greater degree of precision to name the metre of Sr. 22 and 23 घत्ता. But following the comm. here it is considered as a डेमिला, wrongly divided into two.

(d) Strophic Metres.

§ 17. A strophic metre results from the combination of two stanzas in two (or more) different metres to form a unit. In the Sr. we have three strophic metres: रङ्गा, वल्यु (three varieties), खड्गडय.

15. रङ्गा.

Occurrence. 18, 19, 24, 25, 222, 223.

Of the two parts of the रङ्गा the first receives the name राडड (should it be राडड?) in the Ck. (34). Svayambhū, Hemacandra and others call it मत्ता (मात्रा). दोहा forms the second part of this strophe. The whole strophe is called रङ्ग by all except the Ck. which calls it वृत्त, and the Ch. which gives both the names.

α) राढउ.

A राढउ or मात्रा has five lines, whose constitution varies according to the different varieties (seven according to the Pr.) of this metre. But the Ck. knows its one variety only, viz., 15+11+15+11+15. This is चारुसेणि of the Pr. In the Sr. we have this as well as the other variety with the constitution 15+12+15+11+15 (called राजसेना). Sts 18, 19, 25 and 222 are चारुसेणी while sts 24 and 223 are राजसेनाः.

Regarding the गण-division of this metre, the Pr. gives one scheme, स्वयंभू, हेमचंद्र etc. give another and JACOBI and ALSDORF adopt a third—all different from one another! The गण-scheme given by the Pr. does not work in the case of our stanzas. That given by स्वयंभू and others incorporates a different tradition. So the scheme derived by JACOBI (San. pp. 21-24) and ALSDORF (Kp. pp. 70-71) from a study of the मात्राः occurring in the San. and the Kp. is here tried. The structure of our मात्राः conforms to that scheme except in one detail. Twice (25c, 223c) we have to assume गण-fusion in the case of the first two गणः of the third पाद. This can be avoided if स्वयंभू's गण-scheme is adopted.

The odd पादः—

The first गण consists of 3 morae. It is either $\sim\sim$ or $\sim\sim$.

The last गण is made up of 5 morae which, in the case of the third and the fifth पाद should have one of these two forms: $\sim\sim\sim$ or $\sim\sim\sim$.

The middle piece is divided into two गणः 4+3 in the case of the first पाद, 3+4 in the case of the third and the fifth. As to the form of these गणः, the form $\sim\sim$ of the three-moraic गण is almost exclusively preferred in the case of the third and the fifth पादः of our रङ्गः. The first पाद permits both $\sim\sim$ as well as $\sim\sim$. The four-moraic गण is either $\sim\sim$ or $\sim\sim\sim$ in the first पाद, but appears in all the four forms ($\sim\sim$ —preferred) in the third and the fifth पाद.

As remarked previously, there are two cases of गण-fusion: 25c opens as $\sim\sim\sim$ and 223c as $\sim\sim\sim$.

The even पादः—

The 11-moraic पाद is divided as 4+4+3, the 12-moraic (24b, 223b) as 5+4+3. The last गण is ~~~ without fail. In the 2. गण the form ~~- finds considerable favour.

b) दोहा.

The दोहाs forming the second part of the above-mentioned रूपाs have been already dealt with under § 13.

§ 18. 16. वस्तु (वस्तु) or छप्पय (षट्पद).

Occurrence: 137, 148, 183, 191, 199.

Normally, this strophe is made up of काव्य+उल्लाल. Out of these two the काव्य has been described under § 9.

Due to the uncertainty of the text there is some difficulty in making out the metre of the first four lines of the st. 157. 137a and c containing 21 morae are clearly रासापादs with the caesura after the 11. mora. 137d is also the same, with the caesura after the 12. mora. The remaining पाद 137b containing 23 morae can be emended into a रासापाद by dropping दहद् (cf. व्याख्या on 137b: च शब्दात् दाहयति च) and adding य (=च) after, say, अमियमयुद्ध, though the opening still appears dissatisfactory from a metrical view-point. Thus the first four lines seem to make up a regular रासा stanza. The same is the case with 191 c and d, both containing 21 morae, with a pause after the 15. Now the Kp., in the section dealing with the षट्पदीs or six-lined metres, defines and illustrates (see Kp. II 33; com. st.s 49 and 51) several strophes made up of वस्तुवदन (=our काव्य or वस्तुक) or रासावलय (a metre closely allied to our रासा) or their mixture on one hand and कर्पूर (=our उल्लाल) or कुक्कुम (=उल्लाल less by a mora) on the other and षट्पद, सार्धच्छंद or काव्य are the general designations for all such strophes. In the light of this we can say that वस्तु is in our text a general designation of the six-lined strophes with any one of the following three types of combinations: काव्य+उल्लाल (148, 183, 199), रासा+उल्लाल (137), काव्यरासासंकीर्ण+उल्लाल (191).

For the रासा see § 5.

उल्लाल.

The 28 morae of an उल्लाल-line have the scheme: 4+4+4+~~~/6+4+~~~. The Ch. provides for the three shorts occurring at the end of the second part only, while the Pr. provides for neither of the two groups of three shorts. But both the parts of our stanzas end invariably in three shorts. According to the Ch., in the 1., 3. and 6. गण, the amphibrachys is forbidden and the 6-moraic गण consists of two

In our stanzas the restriction holds good in the case of the 1. and the 6. गण, but it is once (199f) violated in the case of the 3. गण and the 6. moraic गण in 199c in such as cannot be split up into 2+4. For the metrically defective lines see Metrical Emendations.

17. खडहडय.

Occurrence: 115-116.

There are only two sources—one known, the other unknown—which can impart requisite information regarding this metre, and as usual the definitions given by them are at variance with each other. Vjs. IV 73¹ says that when भ्रमरावलि is combined with गथा the result is खडहडय. Thus the Vjs. treats खडहडय as a strophic metre. On the other hand the quotation from an unknown source given in the व्याख्या (on Sr. 115) and the अवचूरिका (on Sr. 113) states that खडहडय known also as अतिवहभ contains twenty सगण which means that it is identical with भ्रमरावलि, having five सगण per line. So the name that the Vjs. applies to the whole strophe is found given to only the first part of the strophe in the quotation just referred to. It may be observed passingly that this sort of looseness in naming a strophe and one of its parts is evidenced also in the case of a few other metres. The names वत्यु (or वत्युअ, see § 18), रडा (see § 17) and चंदायण (or चंदाण see § 10) are found applied to the whole strophes as also to their first parts.

In spite of the fact that the two parts of the strophe are separately numbered, our खडहडय conforms to the definition given by the Vjs. and not with one quoted in the com. For, the sentence left incomplete in Sr. 115 is completed in Sr. 116, and thus Sr. 115 and 116 together form one unit and if any shred of doubt still lingers, it is banished by the striking fact that the खडहडय of Sr. 115-116 is quite apparently patterned on the illustrative खडहडय stanza (perhaps a citation) at Vjs. IV 74. See Appendix I. भ्रमरावलि and गथा are treated respectively under § 24 and § 20.

II Metres of the Gāthā type.

18. गाहा (गथा).

Occurrence: (independently) 1-17, 32-40, 72, 84, 90, 93,

1 भ्रमरावलिआअन्तेगाहा जइ दिज्जए पऊएसु ।

ते जाणह खडहडअं पुव्ववईहिं विणिदिट्ठम् ॥

126-129, 149, 152, 153, 172, 213, 221; (as the second part of खड्गद्वय) 116.

The language of the गथास is always प्राकृत with a small spattering of Ap. forms. The normal scheme of the गथा is first half $4+4+4/4+4+\sim+4+—$

second half $4+4+4/4+4+\sim+4+—$

जगग being forbidden in the odd गणस. This variety with the caesura after the third गण is called पथ्या, while the one without such a caesura is called विपुल. In our text in only the first half of st.s 6, 7, 16, 40, 84, 93, 126, 127, 153, 172 and 213 the caesura fails to recur after the 12. mora. Hence these गथास are of the मुखविपुल variety. Similarly because in st. 152 the 12-moraic caesura is wanting in the second half only, it is of the जघनविपुल variety. Lastly the caesura being absent from both the halves of st.s 72 and 116 they are of the सर्वविपुल variety. The rest are पथ्यास.

11a and 152a are metrically defective. For them refer to Metrical Emendations.

19. खंधय (स्कंधक)?

Occurrence: 119.

The metre of Sr. 119 is expressly named as खंधय (स्कंधक) in the stanza just preceding it. But according to all metrical authorities at hand, a स्कंधक requires 32 morae for each half, while our stanza in the constituted text has $(12+18=)$ 30 morae for each half, which fact entitles it to be called उद्गाथ according to the Vjs. and Pr., गीति according to Hemacandra and others. There appears no way to remove this discrepancy. But there is some evidence from an unexpected source to make it probable that the name स्कंधक was current for such metres also which had $(12+18)$ morae for each of their two halves. IV. 92 of हरिभद्रसूरि's धूर्ताख्यान¹ is expressly called खंधओ in IV. 91. The metre of the stanza appears to be identical with that of our stanza, except that both the halves of धूर्ताख्यान IV. 92 contain 29 morae instead of 30. But this fact is indicative of a defect, not a difference, in that stanza, because धूर्ताख्यान IV. 92a as well as b have not a जगग as their sixth गण which fact would be a gross violation of the structure of the गथा.

B. वर्णवृत्तः.

20. मालिनी.

This is the well-known metre with the scheme $\cup\cup\cup \text{---}/-\cup\text{---}\cup\text{---}$.

21. नंदिणि (नन्दिनी).

Only Vjs. III 20 and the text and the comm. of the Sr. (st. 170d) support the name नंदिनी (or नंदणि). It is nothing but the commonly known तोटक with the scheme ~-~-~ i. e. 4 सगणः. Vjs. IV 54 again defines this metre under the name छित्तय (= स्पृष्टक). The reason perhaps is that at III 20 it is treated as one of the द्विपद्वी, while at IV 54, independently. Compare the similar twofold treatment of रमणीयक (सौम्या) and अनरावलि (श्री) in the Vjs. To define the metre of Sr. 171, the व्याख्या on Sr. 171 and the अवचूरिका on Sr. 170 quote a stanza which is practically identical with Ck. 7, except one significant variant: the first पाद of Ck. 7 reads the name as तोटक, while the com.s read नंदिणी in its stead.

22. भमरावलि (भ्रमरावलि).

When तोटक is extended by a सगण, we get भ्रमरावलि. Thus it has 5 सगण per line. The V.s. twice defines this metre, once as a द्विपदी at III 21 with the special name सिरिया (श्री), and again independently at IV 61. Cf. Pr. II 154.

188d. The first and the second गग are fused together and the caesura does not fall after the 11. or the 12. mora. As no case of गण-fusion is known in the रासास of our text, we are led to suspect the text here. Emend.: ऊयारइ for उया° and विछाइय for विच्छा° against all the Mss.?

192c. One mora too few. Emend.: उट्टिय झखडा (C.) for उट्टिउ झखडु and accordingly फरस (B.) for °फरसु.

203c: One mora too few. Emend.: पिक्खिवि for पिखिवि.—d: Two morae too many. Emend.: Drop नव (cf. B. वल्लहीय and the silence of the com.s.) from नव-वल्लहीण.

वत्यु or कव्वः—

107c: One mora too few. Emend.: धरेविणु (C.) for धरेवि.
Proper rhyming requires the order of the last two words to be reversed. Accordingly we shall have मणु धरेविणु rhyming with कुसेविणु in d.—d. The 11. moraic caesura is wanting. We can have it if we accept दीहअच्छि (A.; cf. B. दीहच्छि) for दीहरच्छि.

148c: One mora too many. Emend.: णहवलि (A.) for णहवल्लिय.

183a: One mora too many. Emend.: कि (B.; or किं?) for किं.

82ab: जंपिक्वउ and जाइक्वउ are to be read as जंपिक्वओ and जाइक्वओ.
रवणिज्जः—

208b: One mora too many. Can we drop वि? But all the Mss. and both the com.s have it.

चूडिल्लयः—

112a: One mora too many. Emend.: As the discrepancy seems to be in the opening (mark the exceptional form ~ ~), we should perhaps read उतरायणि for उत्त^२.—b: One mora too few. Emend.: णिओइउ for णिउ.^०—d: One mora too many. Emend.: होइउ for होइयउ to rhyme properly with णिओइउ.

114d: Two morae too many. Emend.: संक्छर for संक्छर and तुलु for तुलुउ?

उल्लालः—

148e: Two morae too few. The shortage is felt just before the caesura, so that the part preceding the caesura has 13 instead of 15 morae.

183e: One mora too few. The part following the caesura has 12 instead of 13 morae. ओ^० in ओससिउ is long.

199f: One mora too few. Emend.: उवाडयणिय for उवाडयणि?

गाथाः—

11a: One mora too few. Emend.: The part following the caesura contains 17 instead of 18 morae. दलक्वहल for दलक्वहल removes the discrepancy. cf. Hc. II 97.

127b: ओ in गओ is short.

III FORM AND STRUCTURE

As stated at the beginning, there is not one but several aspects from which the Sr. proves to be of considerable importance and interest. In the present section we shall consider the literary form of the Sr. which is so novel as to bestow on it the distinction of being the first Ap. text of its kind published so far.¹ As the title of the Sr. indicates, it is a रासक type of poetic composition. By this one would be instantly reminded of the रासा compositions whose exuberance in the Old Western Rājasthānī literature is so remarkable. But the form of the present रासक is, as the treatment below indicates, altogether different from that of the OWR. रासा.

There are two prosodists who at all take any notice of the रासा form. The addition they make to our knowledge, though meagre, is quite welcome in view of the general paucity of information relating to the structural side of the Ap. poetry.² Of these two prosodists one is विरहाङ्क. The portion IV 27 to IV 38 of his वृत्तनातिसमुच्चय evidently, though not expressly, deals with a few Ap. metres, strictly so called. This small section, after treating दोहा, मागधिका, मात्रा, रङ्गा, अडिङ्गा and दोसा ends up by defining the रासक form at 37-38. We come to know from this that two different types of रासक were familiar to विरहाङ्क. Vjs. IV 37 says that रासक is constituted with विस्तारितक or द्विपदी closed with विदारी. All these peculiar terms are defined by विरहाङ्क at the beginning of the II नियम of the Vjs. But our concern is with the second type of रासक, treated at IV 38.³ There we are told that that which is built up with many अडिलास or दुवहअस, with many मात्रास, रङ्गास and दोसास is called by the name रासक. A definition essentially similar but supplementary in details is advanced by स्वयंभू. In his स्वयंभूच्छन्दस्, while closing the treatment of Ap. metres, he thinks his worthwhile to say something regarding the रासक form and the last four stanzas (VIII 49-52) of the Sc. are devoted

1 The उपदेशरसायनरास of जिनदत्तसूरी published in the अपभ्रंशकान्यत्रयी (GOS. XXXVII) is on the lines of the OWR. रासास. cf. also Kp. pp. 34-35.

2 Of course, to some degree we have to make an exception of the Epic, which the Sc. and the Ch. treat at considerable length, though here also much is still left desired.

3 अडिलाहिं दुवहअहिं व मत्ता-रङ्गहिं तह अ दोमाहिं । बहुअहिं जो रङ्गअ सो भण्णइ रासओ पागम ॥

to that end. At VIII 49¹ it is said that in poetry the रासा composition with its घत्ता, छड्डणिआ, पदडिया and other choice metres proves of great charm to the people. But immediately following this is defined² a 21-moraic metre called रासा which probably suggests that this particular metre found special preference in the रासा compositions. Sc. 51-52 give illustrations of this रासाछंद.

It requires little effort to show that all the above-detailed features of the रासक form are evidenced in essence by the Sr. A glance at the Table of Metres given on p. 75 would suffice to find out that our text has got अडिला, दोहा, रद्दा and गाहा, as also डुमिला, पदडिया and some fifteen other metres (cf. सु-अण्णरूपहि of the Sc.). Besides, the main body of the Sr. is built up with a 21-moraic रासा metre, which is closely allied to the रासा of the Sc. Thus we see that all the characteristics of the रासक form as laid down by the prosodists are amply borne out by the Sr.

The 223 stanzas³ of the Sr. are distributed in three sections called प्रक्रम. But this division rests entirely on the development of the theme of the composition and unlike the संधि of the Ap. epic it is not something essential to the form of the रासक: Like पूर्वमेघ and उत्तरमेघ of the मेघदूत these प्रक्रमs indicate a turn in the development of the poetic theme. Thus the first प्रक्रम of the Sr. is prefatory or introductory. With the second प्रक्रम begins the theme proper, while the third प्रक्रम occupies itself with वड्डुत्तुवणेन⁴ in the context of a विरहिणी and brings the theme to a close.

One small point worth noting is the use of two-lined stanzas (अर्धम्) and six-lined stanzas⁵ (cf. foot-note 52). Stanzas 58, 63,

1 घत्ता-छड्डणिआहि पदडिआ[हि] सु-अण्णरूपहि ।

रामाबंधो कव्ये जण-मण-अहिरामो (मओ?) होइ ॥

2 एकसीस मत्ताणिह णउ उदामगिरु । चउदसाइ विस्सामहो भगणविरइ थिरु ॥

रासाबंधु समिद्धु पउ अहिरामअरु । लहुअतिअलअवसाणविरइअमहुरअरु ॥

The text appears corrupt and obscure at several places.

3 There is slight irregularity in the numbering of the stanzas. 22 and 23 are possibly two halves of a दोमिल्लय. Similarly 115 and 116 together make up the strophe खड्डहडय. Further 38, 73 and 143 are clear interpolations. On the other hand 104^{ab}, 113^{ef}, 117^{ef}, 118^{ef} ought to bear separate stanza-numbers in the light of 58, 74, 125 etc., unless that in the case of 113^{ef}, 117^{ef} and 118^{ef} we have to consider them, in spite of the want of sentence-connexion, as six-lined stanzas.

4 In Early Guj. (the काव्य compositions) and Dingal (e. g. वेलि किसनरकमणीरी) literatures this is a favoured topic.

5 Of course in the simple metre. Here there is no talk of the strophes.

74, 104*ab*, 125, 155, 190, 198, 207 and 220 illustrate the former and stanzas 113, 117 and 118 illustrate the latter. We find here the युग्म (e. g. at 133-134, 168-169) and the कुल्लक (at 121-125) also, though in view of the lack of sentence-connexion between 121-125, the last-named cannot be properly so called.

IV SUMMARY OF THE CONTENTS

FIRST STRIDE

He who has created all this: the ocean, earth, mountains trees and heavenly bodies—may He, O wise ones, bless you (1). Bow down, O gentlemen, to that Creator to whom men, semi-gods and gods, as also the sun and the moon pay obeisance (2). In the western tract the Mleccha country is known of old. There was one Mirasena, a weaver, whose illustrious son Addahamāṇa (i. e. Abdala Rahamāna), famous for his Prākṛit poems and songs, has composed this Samdeśarāsaka (3-4). Homage to the great poet-scholars of yore, who were well-versed in grammar, prepared treatises of prosody and wrote good poetry adorned with grammar and metres in the Avahatṭaya, Sanskrit, Prākṛit and Paisācika languages (5-6). As it is them that we succeed, who would appreciate the inferior verse of poets like us, ignorant of the sacred texts and grammar? (7). But perhaps there is no harm. For, though the moon shines at night, are the lamps not lit in the houses on that account? (8). Because the cuckoos sing on the tree-top with charm and appeal, should the crows on the house-roofs give up their cawings? (9). If we heard sweet lute played upon by delicate fingers, should that be any bar to our hearing the drums and tabors at female-sports? (10). If the Airāvata elephant in rut emits highly fragrant ichor, should that stop other elephants from rutting? (11). If the Pārijāta spreading aroma with its variegated, richly fragrant flowers blooms in Indra's palace, should therefore other flowers cease blooming? (12). If the Ganges making her stately appearance in the three worlds proceeds towards the sea, would that be any reason why other rivers also should not do the same? (13). Because the lotus plant in a limpid lake blooms at sunrise, should therefore the gourd on the hedge forsake blooming? (14). If a youthful lady flushed with passion dances in the classical style, should that debar an effusive yokel from dancing to the palm-beats? (15). If the rice-pudding with profuse milk effervesces bouncingly, does that mean that the rough branny gruel should stop its sputterings? (16). Whatever one's poetic powers, one must declare them unabashed. If the four-faced god Brahman spoke, is that any reason for others to be reticent? (17).

There is not one such work of good poetry in this wide world as is not known to you, O wise ones. Hence which of you would tarry to lend an ear to the insipid, grace-lacking compositions of an ignoramus like myself? Still it may turn out like this: when men of taste, being hard-pressed, find betel-leaves beyond their reach, they have somehow to get consoled with the modest Śatapatrī (18). So, considering that this Samdeśa-rāsaka which is to broadcast his poetic talent and learning is composed and published by the weaver with a naive and curious heart, you please listen with indulgence for a short while to the crude utterings of this humble person (19). If anybody chances to come across my work, I request him not to recite it either before the learned (who would not stand such stuff), or before the stupid (who would surely fail to understand it), but by all means before a person of medium calibre (20-21). So now listen to this charmer—this leading light—of the love-minded, to this veritable cupid for the separated, to this revivifier of love's sentiment. Uttered so affectionately, it is full of love's aroma, it is a stream of nectar to the ear and only he who is proficient in ars amoris can grasp its full significance (22-23).

SECOND STRIDE

With down-cast looks and an unceasing stream of tears, a full-bosomed, slender-waisted belle of Vijayanagara stood beholding her husband with her mind's eye. Her fair body was darkened by the fire of separation—like the moon eclipsed by Rāhu (24). Shaken by her grief she yawned, and wept, and writhed her body. While thus bewailing, she saw a traveller passing by (25). At this, longing for her husband as she was, she so hastened towards the traveller as to make her girdle creep down with tinkles (26). As she fastened it up her necklace got torn asunder and as she was picking up some of the pearls, her feet got entangled in the anklets and she fell down (27). Perplexed and abashed, she got up in confusion, her breast-cloth torn in places. With veiling hands over the breasts (as lotuses on golden pitchers), she at last reached the traveller and uttered with pathetic eyes and a faltering voice these words (29): "O do tarry a while and kindly listen to what I say." These words drew the traveller's attention and he halted (30). On beholding her—a treasure-house of beauty, a sublime creation, a Cupid's weapon, he uttered eight Gāthās. (31):

"The ripple-like curly hair of this lady has the blackness of a bee-swarm (32). The face is but a reflex of the full-moon: bright, nectarious, spotless (33). The eyes are lotus-petals and the cheeks, two clusters of pomegranate flowers (34). The arms are delicate lotus-stalks and the hands, two halved lotuses at their ends (35). The breasts are firm, lofty, soothing (36). The circular navel is deep like an eddy in a highland river and the waist, extremely slender (37). The toes appear like rubies; their nails, like marble pieces; the line of hair on them, like lotus-fibres (39). The Creator has fashioned her limbs after the likeness of—or perhaps even surpassing—the limbs of the goddess Pārvatī. So who would blame the poets for repeating themselves, seeing that even the creator does the same? (40)."

As that lady of swan's gait heard these Gāthās she felt shy. She asked the traveller: "Whence do you come? Whither do you go?" (41). The traveller said: "O fair dame, there is a city called Sāmora (i. e. Śāmbapura) adorned with white ramparts and triple fortifications and full of well-mannered citizens, all of them learned (42). If in the company of clever persons we take a stroll in the city, sweet melodies of Prakrit songs greet our ears. At places the Vedas are expounded by experts; somewhere the Rāsaka is staged by the actors (43). Somewhere the Sudayavatsa story is narrated, in another place the Nala episode; in yet another is recited the Bhārata epic with various diversions. In some quarters selfless Brāhmaṇas are uttering benedictions; in others the Rāmāyaṇa is eulogised (44). Some hear flute, lute, drums or tabors; some, the strains of melodies. Somewhere attractive dancing girls are performing rhythmic movements (45). Troupes of actors are giving wonderful dramatic performances and one who enters the courtesan locality would simply swoon in fascination. For there, some courtesans with elephant's gait move ruffled through intoxication. Others' diamond earrings dangle about their ears (46). In the case of another one all the while one wonders how her waist does not break under the weight of her heavy, lofty, compact breasts. One of them smiles towards another with eyes slightly salved with collyrium, eloquent with passion and looking aslant (47). When another one releases a peal of laughter, it appears as if the sun and the moon are shining from her cheeks. Another one's breasts have a thick plaster of musk, while still another's forehead is adorned with a fine Tilaka (48). Another one's necklace of big pearls, failing to get a resting place, dangles on the peak of her breasts. Another one's deep round navel-hole appears encircled by waves in the form of the three folds on the belly (49). In the case of another one, because of the weight of the hips the creaking of shoes dies out only lingeringly. When yet another utters some delicious words, her teeth crimsoned with betel-juice appear like a row of diamonds (50). When another one laughs, her nether lip, arms and hands all become invested with charm. Some one's finger-nails are spotless and bright, while another's cheeks are like petals of pomegranate flowers (51). Another one's soft eye-brows remind one of Cupid's stretched bow. Some one's anklets give out a sonorous jingling, while some one's jewelled girdle produces a recurrent tinkling (52). When another one's sportive movements make her sandals give out prolonged creaks, it produces an impression of shrill notes of cranes at the advent of autumn. So also when another one sweetly hums the Pañcama note, it seems as if Tumburu tuned his instruments for performance before gods (53). In this way as the passers-by are engaged in observing the beauty of one after another, their steps falter on the road rendered scarlet with betel-juice. And if one chances to wander beyond the precincts of the city, he sees such a variety of gardens as to forget the mansions altogether (54). There are Dhallas, Kundas, Śatapatrikās and other countless trees (55-63). There are other strange trees also. The combined shadows of these trees making up a dense thicket stretch to the length of ten Yojanas (64). In the city of Sāmora the Tapanatīrtha is famous in all quarters. It is also well-known as Mūlasthāna. Thence my master has sent me as a message-carrier and for that reason I am proceeding to Stambhatīrtha" (65).

At these words that handsome lady sighed deeply. She cracked her fingers. She quivered like plaitain in a high blast. She stammered something bewaillingly. She wept. Drying the eyes, she said: "O traveller, my body is shattered at the mention of Stambhatirtha. For it is there that my husband is staying who is so cruel as not to return after such a long period (67). If you kindly stop a while, I shall say a few modest words by way of message to my loved one." The traveller said; "O fair dame with sorrowful eyes, you appear much dejected. What is the use of weeping? Say your message" (68). The lady said: "With what heart shall I send the message to one whose departure from hence has only stopped short of reducing me to an ash-heap? (69). Moreover, I am ashamed to send the message because neither I accompanied him when he left, nor did I die during his separation (70). But if I remain silent through shame, my heart would break. So, appease him by reciting this Gāthā (71): 'My limbs shattered by the strokes of your separation do not fall asunder because, O my lord, they subsist on the hope of meeting you to-day or tomorrow (72).' After reciting this you tell him these five Dohās with due politeness (74): 'Even though afflicted by the fire of separation, it would be unbecoming to me, who always bear you in the heart, to die and thus part your company (75). Disregarding your presence in my heart, this Separation distresses the body. But for the high-minded an affront at the hand of others is more painful than death (76). How is it that I am suffering humiliation, though you with your inexhaustible manhood are there as my husband? The very limbs that gave you enjoyment are now burnt by Separation (77). Though I have been subject to unremitting attacks from Cupid, it is only my body that has been shattered; the heart is not injured because of your presence there (78). I lack strength sufficient to cope with Separation. Hence my wailings. Cowherdesses can but cry; it is for the owner to bring back the stolen herds (79). The message I intend to send is too lengthy for words. Tell my loved one, now my two hands together can pass through a bracelet and that the ring in the little finger can now be worn on my arm! (80-81)'."

The traveller wishing to resume his journey shortly said: "I have to traverse a very difficult path; so speak out any thing else that is to be conveyed" (82). At these words, pierced by Cupid's arrows as she was, she sighed heavily and with tearful eyes recited this Gāthā (83): "These shameless eyes never cease pouring down tears, but the result is, the fire of separation instead of being put out flames up more and more like the conflagration in the Khāṇḍava forest (84)." After reciting this Gāthā that lovely lady of sorry plight felt much aggrieved. She said: "Convey these two Catuspadīs to him who is ruthless enough to banish all our conjugal delights (85): 'I fell in a trance while thinking of you. Not for a moment my left hand is relieved of my head resting thereon. Scarcely do I leave the bed. Thus, O Kāpālīka, I have been turned into a Kāpālīni due to your separation (86). Faded is my lustre, sunken my body; the locks dangle about in disarray; pallor has pervaded the face; the gait has become languid, ungainly; and a dinginess has enveloped my loveliness. Thus, O demon, I have been turned into a demoness owing to your separation (87)'. As you are in a hurry to go, I cannot give a written letter for him. So kindly convey to him this Dohā and Gāthā (88). 'The separation-fire must have sprung from the Marine Fire; for the more it is sprinkled with heavy tears, the more fiercely does it blaze up (89). The fair lady continuing to get reduced through long, hot sighs would have certainly succumbed, if she had not been sprinkled with gushes of tears (90)'"

The traveller said: "O fair dame, now permit me to depart. Or tell me if there is any thing further to be conveyed". She said: "Why, surely I have more to say. But of what avail can prove a message addressed to one whose indifference towards me and ambition for wealth have left me so lonely and suffering? The message is long and you are in a hurry. Tell my husband this Gāthā, Vastu and Domilaka (91-92): 'Formerly even the necklace was not allowed to obstruct our close embrace. But now ocean, rivers, mountains, trees and castles are lying between us! (93). There are ladies who after a yearningful and distressing period of separation are about to reunite with their husbands. Being agitated at the union at hand they would enjoy in dream happy embrace, kisses and other pleasures with their husbands. But since your leaving, I have not even slept; then where lies the possibility of the pleasure of union in dreams? (94). What shall I say regarding myself—I, who am weeping, pining day and night for the union with my loved one and reducing my body extremely? Fixing my mind lovingly on him, I address him for a moment under delusion: That thief of Separation has robbed me of my belongings in the form of toilette. To whom shall I go for refuge? (95).” Saying this Domilaka she became motionless for a while, not saying anything or seeing anybody. She appeared just like a wall-picture (96). She felt choked and confused. Recalling the pleasure of the former union with her loved one, she became pierced with Cupid’s arrows. Like a deer frightened at the twang of the bow-string, she threw a side-glance towards the traveller (97).

The traveller said: “Compose yourself for a while and wipe your charming face.” Bashful, she wiped her face and said (98): “O traveller, my strength proves of no avail against Cupid. Moreover, faultless though I am, my husband has grown indifferent to me. Devoid of love, inconstant, he has no idea of the anguish he causes to others. Recite a Mālini to that rogue (99): ‘At the close of our amorous sports had I but known that my happiness was to disappear, I would have preserved one jarful of fresh love that was then overflowing, and would have now immersed therein your unloving heart (100). If a cloth loses its rāga, it can be dyed afresh. If the body is without sneha it can be annointed. If one loses money, it can be won back. But when the loved one’s heart becomes devoid of rāga, how, O traveller, can it be changed?’ (101). The traveller said: “Steady your mind. Stop the flood of tears from your eyes. The travellers go abroad on many a business and they do not return until their purpose is attained (102). Moreover, wandering in alien countries, they are attacked by Cupid and remembering their wives, they become overwhelmed with separation. Thus they also like yourself, O young lady, finding the grief of separation from their beloved unbearable, get much emaciated” (103). Hearing these words that fair lady recited an Aḍillā: “Though he has, I deem, no love for me, still, O traveller, deliver this massage to my husband: The fire of separation having enveloped the body waist upwards, burns my heart till the close of night (104).

Struck by Cupid's weapon; I cannot speak at length but do tell him everything concerning this plight of mine : boredom resulting from the aching limbs, keeping awake through nights, ruffled gait owing to langour, hair unbraided and without flowers and collyrium trickling down on the cheeks. The flesh that my body puts on at the hope of being united with the loved one, is again lost, tormented by the fire of separation (105-6). Sprinkled by the waters of hope on the one hand, and tormented by the heat of separation on the other, I am neither living, nor dying but am just remaining inflamed". At this juncture, she, wiping her eyes, said a Phullaka (107): "My heart like a goldsmith longs for the dear one. It burns my body in the fire of separation and then sprinkles it with the water of hope" (108).

The traveller said: "As I am due to start, please check your tears so that no inauspiciousness may arise". The lady said: "Let your going be accomplished according to your wish. In fact, I did not weep. Only my eyes dripped due to the smoke of separation-fire" (109). The traveller said: "As the sun is about to set, finish your message quickly and allow me to depart". The lady said: "Let you, O traveller, set out in all auspiciousness. Further say to my loved one a Maḍillā and a Cudillaka (110). 'Due to hot, prolonged sighings the body has languished, but not so the flood of tears. Released, my heart landed on a foreign soil, just as a moth falls into a light (111). It is ordained of yore that only days grow longer in the Summer Solstice, while only nights do the same in the Winter Solstice. But this is indeed a third type, the 'Separation Solstice', wherein both days and nights grow longer' (112). O traveller, the day has come to a close. So postpone your leaving, and spending the night here, start at daybreak". The traveller said: "O fair-lipped dame, sunshine blazes during the day-time and my task is urgent. So I must set out immediately. The lady said: "If you are not to stay, then tell my loved one a Cūḍillaka and a Khadaḥaḍaka with Gāthā (113): 'We have profited by your going abroad. We have got a boon to live for ever. For, due to your separation, one day has assumed the proportions of an year (114). Since the heart is deranged through separation, since I am out and out afflicted with Cupid's arrows, since the eyes are engaged in pouring tears down the cheeks and since the passion is constantly blooming in the mind, how can I get relief and sleep even at night? It is surprising that though separated from their loved one, ladies can live even for some days" (115-116).

The traveller said: "O fair lady, I shall convey whatever you did say and in addition to that, what I have myself seen. You now return to your residence and I shall take to the road. The sun has set. Darkness has parvaded the east. Because of a difficult and perillous path, the night-journey is troublesome" (117). Hearing the traveller's words she heaved a hot, prolonged sigh. The tear-particles on her cheeks appeared like pearls on coral heaps. Crying and bewailing she said: "Tell my husband a Skandhaka and a Dvipadī (118): 'My heart is a jewel-treasuring ocean. It is always churned by the great Mandara mountain in the form of Separation and thus all the jewells in the form of happiness are taken out (119). The fire of separation, fanned by Cupid is incessantly blazing within my heart giving forth ashes in the form of restlessness. It scorches and terrifies. It makes me sigh longingly (120)'."

On hearing these words the traveller was touched. He said: "Patiently enlighten me on the questions I am just putting to you (121). Since when has your face, conquering in beauty even the serene-rayed and nectareous autumnal moon, has been enveloped in the smoke of the separation-fire? (122). Since when are you like this, with your lovely, penetrating eyes pining, with your plaitain-delicate body withering, with your swan-like sportive gait vanishing? (123). Why do you thus give yourself up to grief and get the body cut through with the saw of separation? Since when has your husband gone abroad so that your mind is pierced with the shafts of Cupid? (124)". At this she recited four Gāthās (125): "O traveller, what is the use of asking the day of separation whenceforth my happiness vanished and misery began? (126). What is the use of recalling that day which ignited the fire of separation? Away even with its mention! (127). I am restless since the day of his leaving. The time is felt as painful as death. Let that summer when my husband left me, be consumed by its own fire and let he who has sapped me, be himself sapped by the Malaya wind. (128-129).

THIRD STRIDE

Summer.

. It was at the advent of summer, O traveller, that my husband left, and gone with him was all my happiness. As I returned after seeing him off, I was much agitated (130). Torn by restlessness, yearning and misery, lovelorn, I found the Malaya wind unbearable. The scorching sun-rays blazed piercingly. They burnt the wild grass on the earth (131). Flames darted in the sky like Death's tongues. The surface of the earth became parched. The hot blast that was blowing scorched the bodies of women in separation (132). Cātakas cried for fresh clouds. Rivers carried a slender stream. Parrots swung on the leaves of gorgeous mango-trees, bent down with fruits and fluttering like the ears of an elephant. Their chirpings made me feel helpless (133-134). The sandal paste besmeared on the bosom for coolness, contrarily heated the breasts, as previously it had contact with serpents. The necklaces and garlands that were put on, were felt flaming-hot (135). The lotus-petals spread on the bed for comfort rather doubled my agony. Thus restless in the bed, I falteringly recited a Vastu and a Dohā (136): 'The lotuses blooming under the sun-rays are naturally heat-emitting. The moon being a cognate of poison would not give pleasure. Sandal-paste bearing snake-bites wears down the body. The necklace also throws salt as it were in the wounds made by Cupid's shafts. Lotuses, moon, sandal-paste and jewels are praised in the world as cooling anodynes. But none of them can extinguish the fire of separation. Instead, they prove more tormenting to the body (137). People apply camphor and sandal-paste on the body. But it is futile. Only the loved one can put down the fire caused by his separation (138).'

The Rains.

Somehow I passed the hot summer. The rains came, but not my shameless husband. The four quarters were overcast with thick-lying darkness. Clouds thundered with rage in the sky (139). Roads were discerned only by terrific flashes of lightning. Cātakas satiated with the water cried gaily. The row of cranes passing below the fresh clouds appeared charming (140). Heated by the summer rays the waters from the clouds flooded the rivers. Shoes in hand, the travellers waded through the waters. Each step futher on the way could be taken only when lightning flashed (141). Waves roared in the rivers which were rendered uncrossable owing to incessant undulations. Travellers halted midway, and if business still forced them to travel, then boats were used, not horses (142). Leaving pools, cranes mounted on tree-tops. Peacocks danced and cried on mountain peaks. Frogs croaked harshly in waters. Cuckoos chirped on mango-trees (144). Everywhere paths were blocked by huge snakes or by big masses of water. The Pātala flowers were destroyed at the impact of water-waves. Swans cried piteously on mountain-tops (145). Herds of cows climbed up the ridges (?). Gay cowherdesses were merry-making with their husbands. Covered with verdure, the earth alround was redolent of the Kadamba flowers. Cupid injected more aches in everyone of my limbs (146). Miserably wallowing in bed, pierced by the hum of bees, and passing the nights winkless and full of anguish, I composed a Vastu, a Gāthā and a Dohā (147): 'Dark, thundering clouds have overspread the sky in all quarters. The flickers of lightning are accompanied by crackling sounds. The frightful croaking of frogs is intolerable. How am I to put up with the continuous, heavy down-pour, with the shrill notes of cuckoos? (148). At the coming of rains, the fire of summer was put down with showers; but, O wonder! the fire of separation burnt in my heart with increased vehemence (149). Though my breasts are scalded with tears, the pearls of my necklace do not feel ashamed at this calamity of their neighbours! (150).' Languid through separation, miserable and given up to confusion, I saw my husband in a dream and I grasped his hand and said (151): 'Does it become the nobly-born to go away leaving behind his beloved in this season of crackling flashes and clashing clouds? (152). The rainy-season is, O dear one, unbearable on account of the fresh clouds, the rainbow, Indragopas and the reddened quarters (153).' As I awoke with a choked throat, I realised where my loved one was and where I was. At that moment, I did not die because, to be sure, I was fashioned from insensitive rock. Likewise my heart did not break, because surely it was fashioned from adamant (154). Groaning like a frog in 'a feeble voice, I recited this Dohā at the close of a night (155): 'O Night, the slander that sticks to you is so huge as it cannot be contained even by the three worlds. For, you become fourfold when there is misery, but shrink down when there is happiness' (156).

Autumn.

Bewailing thus and singing songs and reciting Prakrit poems, I somehow reached the end of the rainy season. The nights that become lovely owing to the loved one's wooing were like a saw to me (157). I spent them keeping awake and supporting life with the hope of my husband's arrival. Leaving the bed early and cherishing the memory of my loved one I looked towards the South and the star Canopus was spotted. At once I knew that the rains had passed. And still my husband had not returned! (158-159). Cranes disappeared from the sky. Beautiful constellations could now be seen at night. Snakes went underground. Clear moonlight streamed at night (160). The lake-water was adorned with lotuses. Rivers were full of ripples. Lakes now regained beauty which they had lost in summer (161). Swans drank honey from the lotuses and chirped sweetly. The Śatapatris filled up the world with their luxuriant growth. The streamlets flowed again towards the main water-basin (162). Shores of lakes looked charming due to the conch-white Kāśa grass and rows of birds (163). One's reflection could be seen in the limpid water. I could not bear the cry of Krauñcas and at the arrival of the swans I felt myself unable to carry on existence—dying (164). With the reducing waters, I also got reduced. With the glowing fire-flies my body also glowed with heat (?). 'O cranes, your shrill notes remind me of my long-standing misery. You cruel ones, stop your cries, which make the ladies in separation dejected'. Thus I addressed each of them pathetically, but nobody steadied me even for a while (165-166).

Those ladies whose husbands are at home, put on ornaments and variegated garments and they dance Rāsas with them in the streets (167). Making a fine Tilaka mark on the fore-head, besmearing the body with saffron and sandal-paste, moving with the sport-case in hand and singing charming, divine melodies, these ladies devoutly burn incense in their cowsheds and stables. Seeing this I was downcast, as my hope was frustrated (168-169). Then I beheld the directions putting on more attractive hues. The flames of separation flared up in my mind and enveloped me. I recited a Nandinī, a Gāthā and a Bhramarāvalī (170): 'With their throats clear and astringent due to the fresh lotus-fibres, swans and Cakravākas scream in the water and move in a wonderful manner—as if, one heard the shrill tinkling of the anklets of the Autumnal Beauty (171). In the month of Āśvina, the cries of the cranes in the rivers that flowed with a stumbling velocity made me weep again with grief (172). In the moon-lit nights, the white, lofty ramparts looked lovely. I wallowed in my lonely bed, crying, as if I were struck with Death's blow (173)

The shores of lakes were pleasant because of the ladies sporting there with their husbands. Youngsters occupied themselves with games. Drums were beaten in every house (174). Boys danced in a circle and sauntered through streets playing music. Beds were graced with the presence of young ladies (175). On the Dipāvalī night mansions were decorated with lights resembling the crescent moon. Ladies applied collyrium to their eyes (176). Dark-coloured garments were put on. Various wavy lines and curves were drawn as decorations on the bosom. The breasts were besmeared with musk (177). To every limb thick sandal-paste was applied. But it worked as poison from Cupid's arrows. Flowers worn artistically on the head gave the appearance of the half-moon mounted on a black cloud (?) (178). The betel-roll with a good deal of camphor was placed in the mouth, which then resembled the rising sun. Toilette was done in hurry and confusion. Tinkling of bells was heard in beds (179).

Thus some had given themselves up to sport, while I passed nights in anguish. Fascinating music was played in every house. Only to my lot did it fall to suffer the collective woes (180). Again I recalled my husband who was away since long. And, on a daybreak, shedding profuse tears, I recited an Aḍillā and a Vastu (181): 'Not an hour's sleep do I get at night. Reminiscences of my loved one now fail to give me diversion. I have not a moment's enjoyment. Thus circumstanced, who fervent with passion, would not be torn? (182). Does not the lucid moonlight stream in that country? Are there no swans feeding on lotus-fruits? Is there nobody who recites Prakrit poems in a graceful voice or who movingly releases the Pañcama note? Does not the early dawn there become redolent of blooming flowers? But I have come to know that as even in the autumn, my husband does not return home, he is surely a man void of taste (183).

Winter (Hemanta).

Thus was spent the lovely autumn rich in fragrance. Still that hardened rogue did not think of home. While I was thus being pierced with Cupid's shafts, I saw the mansions white with frost (184). My whole body was burning with the fire of separation. Twanging the bow, Cupid was arrogantly releasing his arrows. I was lying on the bed distressed. Still that stealer of my heart, that wandering Kāpālīka, that rogue, that vandal did not arrive (185). In restless yearning I then glanced at the quarters and lo! Winter with his frost-load had deftly arrived! Now cool water was disliked. All the lotus-petals were removed from beds (186). Servant-maids no more ground camphor or sandal. The rouge was tempered with bees' wax. Saffron that was applied to the body was now devoid of sandal. People took to the Campaka oil mixed with musk (187). Camphor and nutmegs were no longer ground together, nor were arcca-nuts perfumed with Ketaki. People gave up sleeping on terraces and ladies slept in cots inside the rooms (188). Aguru was burnt for fumigation. Saffron was applied to the body. Close embrace was now enjoyable. Comparatively the days became very short; but for me, O traveller, was fixed the Brahman's aeon! (189). Wailing through a long sleepless night and lonely in my dwelling, I recited a Vastu (190). 'O you boor, I spent the long night with lingering sighs. Cherishing your memory, I cannot sleep. Bereft of your touch, my limbs have withered owing to the wintry frost. If you do not come and consol me in this winter, would you then, O blockhead, rogue, sinner, come on receiving my death-news?' (191).

The Cool Season (Śisīra).

That enemy of a winter was thus spent by me with much trouble. The cool season arrived but that cheat of my husband was as ever far off. The hurricane began to blow fiercely in the sky. Being blasted by it, trees shed all their leaves. They stood without flowers, without fruits, without shade, unapproached by birds. The quarters were befogged. Travellers were obstructed, being afraid of hail. Park-trees were reduced to stumps. Flower gardens withered (192-193). Leaving their husbands in pleasure-houses, young ladies were forced by cold to resort to fire-places. Love-sports were confined to the interior of the houses. Nobody now slept under the garden trees (194). Slightly-boiled and scented suger-cane juice was drunk. On the festive day of Kundacaturthī many full-bosomed ladies wallowed in their beds (195). Some gave alms on the birth-day of Spring, the lord of seasons. Some enjoyed in the company of their husbands. At that time I, lonely in the bed, infatuated with love, sent my mind as a messenger to my husband, thinking that it would bring the loved one and satisfy me. I had no idea that it too would behave knavishly and leave me. My husband did not come. Holding up the messenger he still remained there. My heart was furthermore filled with the load of misery (196-197). In the hopeful attempt to make a profit viz., the union with the loved one, I had lost the principal. Hear, O traveller, the Vastu then recited by me in sorrow (198): 'After heavy suffering, I sent my mind as a messenger. It did not bring my lord, but itself became attached thereto. So absent-mindedly I passed the night. I indeed repented for this, for though I gave the heart, I did not get my husband. Shall I say what this was like? The she-ass went to get horns, but instead she lost her ears! (199).'

Spring.

Charming spring followed the cool season. The Malaya wind blew fanning the love-fire of those in separation (200). Ketakī was in full bloom. There were fresh flowers and leaves of various sorts. Lakes were invested with a unique beauty (201). Women put on varied garments of white and red flowers and sang in the company of their friends. Their bodies spread rich aroma. It looked as if the sun's period of wintry mourning had expired. Seeing this I recited a Laṅkōṭaka in the midst of my dear friends (202-203). 'The unbearable summer passed. Autumn and winter were spent with great trouble. The harsh Śīsira also was somehow spent crying. But with the mind on my beloved, it is very hard for me to pass this spring' (204). Trees with their hands of fresh sprouts carried the vernal beauty. Bees, greedy of the juice and fragrance of the Ketaki bud hummed in the forest. They did not mind being pierced with pointed thorns, because persons of taste care only for their tastes. One who is infatuated with love has no consideration for the evil (205-206). Seeing the spring, I was wonder-struck and hear, O traveller, the Ramaniya which I then said (207): 'Let Cupid, armed with the sharp tongues of the fire of separation roar. Having tolerated the intolerable, I still live in danger, while my husband, quite untouched by my love, carries on his business without an anxious thought of me' (208). The Kimśuka flower appeared like a shower of blood(?). Palāśas were veritable goblins. The Malaya breeze made everything unbearable. Śobhāñjana(?) proved a source of unhappiness (209). The fresh blossoms which made the earth scarlet with their pollen added to my anguish. A cool, pleasant breeze blew imparting coolness to the earth (210).

The Aśoka flower is falsely so named by the people, for it did not remove my soka for even half a moment. My limbs were tormented, thanks to arrogant Cupid. It is my lord, not the Śahakāra tree, that can still support me (211). Wrestling this opportunity, the terrific separation reached its full stature. I heard the peacock dance and cry. Seeing him climbed on a mango-branch, I recited a Gāthā (212): 'I am pained to see the peahens merry-making as if they were in a stage-retinue(?). So also mistaking the skywards spreading trees for fresh clouds, I am pained (213).' After this I rose up crying and recalling my grief of long standing. Flames of separation burst up in me. Cupid shattered my body with arrows (214). For a while I felt the unbearable grip of death: Beautiful flowers adorned the ten quarters. Mango-trees spread towards heaven in compactness. Fresh blossoms appeared because of spring (215). The cuckoos(?) on the Suraktaka trees sang with gestures, as if to represent various sentiments. Bees were humming sweetly. Time was quite charming (216). Parrots moved in a circle(?) and cried merrily. O! in this period it is very very difficult for the ladies enslaved by Cupid to go on living (217). Empty clouds scorched the body. How can one put up with the Cuckoo's notes? Beautiful women strolled in the streets. Clamour of trumpets filled the three worlds (218). The spring time was spent in dancing and singing Carcaris with Tālas by ladies with their numerous necklaces dangling and their girdle-bells jingling (219). Young women were shouting hilariously. Hear the Gāthā that was then recited by the youthful lady pining for her husband (220): 'At this time when people are engaged in mad revelry (?), Cupid is sending with a greater vehemence volleys of arrows towards my heart (221).'

O traveller, if, full of agony and tormented with separation and love's fire, I have said any words harsh or ill-becoming, then you omit them and convey to him everything with due decorum. Speak to him what is proper and in such a manner as may not displease him". And having blessed him, the lady let the traveller proceed further (222).

Sending him off she was returning hurriedly when, as she looked towards the south she saw her husband on the way coming back and she was filled with joy. As her great purpose was accomplished unexpectedly, so be it for those who recite or listen to this poem. Victory to Him who is without beginning, without end! (223).

NOTES

2b. गयरे: coms. take it to be a voc. plur. form meaning हे नागराः, but it is difficult to see this form and meaning in this word.

3b. The sentence comes to an end after आरहो. मीरसेणस्स goes with तह in 4a.

8b. जोइज्जइ is not द्योतते (so com.) but द्योत्यते.

18de. पत्तहि can be either instr. or loc. But normal construction here requires the acc. pl. form of पत्त. So, if it is not an instance of case-attraction, there is only one way to explain it. Take पत्तहि अलहंतेहि to be loc. absolute and अलहंत to be used in a passive sense. Further आसासिज्जइ = आश्वासयते so that the whole sentence would be ततः छेकतैरैः रसिकैः दुर्गतैः, पत्रेषु अलभ्यमानेषु, कथंकथमपि क्षतपत्र्या आश्वासयते. Still one curious fact is, if from पत्तहि 18d, गयहि 123d, °ल्लयहि 137d and जलविंदुम्भवहि 150a, हि is removed, we get just the form required by the construction and context.

19d. तं जाणिवि: 'knowing these (facts about the work, its composition and authorship)'. णिमिसिद्धु खणु goes with णिसुणेहु in the next line.

20b. विबुह (voc. sing.) goes with c. हे विबुध, ये पण्डितानाम् etc.

22d. रससंजीवयरो: cf. रससंजीविनी, the title of अर्जुनवर्मदेव's com. on the अमरुशतक.

27d. पंखुडिय : cf. आषुडइ = आस्खलति (प्राचीन गूजराती गद्य संदर्भ pp. 192 l. 28, 215 last line).

28a. Take पडिउट्टिय as one word equivalent to प्रति + उत्थिता = प्रत्युत्थिता.

28d. णित्त (= नेत्र) is the general term for the fine stuffs in clothes. Cf. Vr. p. xxviii.—If दर is taken to mean ईषत्, we have to attribute such a sense to विलगिय as it never possesses. So better to interpret दर as = दरि (acc. to Grammar, § 51 B (2)) 'in the hole'.

42a b. Similar to सरोरुहदलनयणि rhyming with ससिहरवयणि we have 64a b. ससिवयणि and सरोरुहदलनयणि, 66a b सिधुम्भवयणि and सलिलम्भवनयणि, 91a b ससिहरवयणि and मियनयणि, 96a b णिसित्तमहरवयणि and सरोरुहदलनयणि, 104a b वीहरलयणिहि and मयणुकोयणिहि, 125a b वीहरलयणिहि and मयणाकोयणिहि and non-final 121c d मियनयणि and ससिवयणि. This reminds us of the refrain वरलोयणे—मियलोयणे which we come across in some old Gujarāṭī रास-compositions like the सप्तक्षेत्रीरास (A. C. 1271) and a later type छुणि सुंदरि रे—गिहिलि कुणि करी रे employed by the early Guj. poets भालण, नाकर and प्रेमानंद.

65*d*. खंभाइतई. As our text knows no other case of loc. sing. in °अई, we may accept खंभाइतिहि (A). N (see below) has खंभायतउ.

68*c*. Ms. N (not availed for the text-constitution) has कहहि for कहह, which otherwise is the only form of its type in the Sr.

76*a*. तइ (loc.) हिययट्टियह (gen.) does not make any sense. So we may read तुव (C) and take the whole as a case of gen. absolute (see Grammar, § 76 (a)).

77*a*. It is probable that कि न is किन which appears also as किण at 154*d* and is merely an interrogative particle. Cf. Hc. II 216: किणो प्रश्न.

86*a*. समाहिमोहु means मोहः (= मूर्छा) एव समाधिः. The first line is तव स्मरन्त्याः मम विषमः समाधिमोहः उत्थितः.

89*a*. पाइय and पिय refer to the husband of the नायिका who also is a प्रवासिन्.

98*a*. थीर is strange. We expect here थीर (f.). Ms. N (not availed for the text-constitution) reads थीर & थीरि.

99*a*. य is intriguing. It cannot be च as it just precedes. Perhaps it is an orthographic variant for the emphatic इ = अपि and निदोसेय = निर्दोषायाम् अपि. N. has निर्दोसेण which, following the comm., is to be interpreted as = दोषं विना.

99*c*. निजेहह चलह goes with the next line.

103*b*. विरह सवसे य कय = विरहेण स्व-वशे च कृताः.

103*d*. तुम्हिहि. The instrumental appears inexplicable. A confusion of the passive and active constructions? See also Grammar, § 51 B. (3) and the foot-note on p. 27.

104*cd*. The rhyme is responsible for the gen. of the णकंतह.

105*d*. आलसिहि is आलसेन.

107*c*. To construe properly we require मणि (loc. sing.) or even मण (see Grammar, § 51. B. (2)) instead of मणु.

116*ab*. The sentence is completed after दीवुन्हउ. Read ससिउ सासु.

119*b*. पिम्मे is instr. sing. cf. सुद्धगळे (plur.) 71*a*, Pk. सूर-ससिविबे 22, लक्खणछंदाहरणे.

122*a*. See p. 44.

122b. सरय-रयणि-पञ्चवखु is a compound.

123cd. सुसंतियह and लीलंतियह are nom. plur. forms (see Grammar, § 51. B. 3) going with कइ दीयहि वडहि. गयहि is not clear. See 18de above.

124a. अंगु is to be supplied from b as the object of अपियइ.

126ab. हरिऊग stands for हारिऊग.

130c. अणुअंनि (= अनुगल्य) is abs. from √अणुअंन (= अनु + अच्).

130d. विहलमणु is used adverbially.

134a. तह पत्तिहि = तस्य (सहकारस्य) पत्रेषु. संसगिहि (= संसर्गेण) is to be construed adverbially with परिवसति in b.

137cd. खयहि and °च्छयहि are not clear. For °च्छयहि see 18de above. झल is ज्वाला.

138b. व is confusing. Further we are required to take उल्हवइ in a passive sense, though the form is active.

140b. For भयभेसिय and अइरावइ see Grammar, § 76 beginning.

141cd?

142a is not clear.

146a. The comm. take गोयं गणिहि = गवाम् गणैः (= व्रजैः). In that case गोयं would be a strange form.

148c. धर in धरधरोहभरु = ?

148d. For सिहरट्टियइ see Grammar, § 73. 3.

150a. For जलबिंदुचभवहि see 18de above. It appears preferable to take गलस्थिय = गलस्थिताः.

154cd. As remarked under 77a above, किण in d is an interrogative particle equivalent to किं. The construction is: यदि (= यतः) जीवः न खलु निर्गतः (ततः मन्ये सः) पादबन्धैः बद्धः । हृदयम् किम् किल न स्फुटितम्? ननु तद् वज्रेण घटितम् ।

164ab. Read कहम-भार-पमुकिय-सलिलिहि विमलिहि (सरिहिं) पडिबिबउ दरसिजइ.

167cd to 169ab is one single sentence. For proper construction there is no go but to take दिति as pass. 3. plur. The sentence would be गुरुभक्ति-मुदिताभिः.....धूपानि गवासाने दीयन्ते.

171a. In णवविभस-सुद्धगले, गले is instr. See notes on पिम्मे 119b.

172cd. The two sentences are गय दंति चमकरी । णं पवरं झीणसरं सरया-सरि-गेवर ।

173d?

174b. Only तिहि (C.) भमिरइ सरह तीर (B.) सोइइ makes sense. Cf.

163b. For तिहि भमिरइ see p. 43 end.

13 सं. रा.

176a. दिति य.

177ab. (महिलाः) कृष्णाम्बरैः कृष्ट(=रचित)-कुटिल-तरङ्गैः अनेकभङ्गिभिः विभाविताः (आसते).

178d. Can it be चंद्रकु (= चंद्रार्धः)? 'White flowers on the black hair look like half-moon on the top of black clouds.'

184d. सेय goes with धवलहर.

188a. Separate कप्पूर and सरिसु.

188d. Probably विच्छाद्य is an absolutive. Construe cd: भुवणुपर परिहरवि, उयारइ पल्लंघ विच्छाद्य, कामिणिहि जामिणिहि पसुप्पइ.

192c. The sentence is completed after खरफरसु. The next sentence extending up to 193a is तहि तिणि पवणि ह्य सूडिय (य) असेस तरुय झडि करि गय; छाया-फुल्ल-फल-रहिय सउणियण-असेविय (य ते ठिय).

193b. If भरिणि is accepted some connected sense can be made out: दिसा य तिमिरंतरिय, तुहिण-धूङ्ग भरिणि (य जाया).

193d. Put a semicolon after इअ.

194a. गिय goes with कंत.

194d. If कीरइ is not to be construed actively, सयण must mean 'bed' instead of 'lying down'. Then उयानानाम् दुमेषु न कानिचित् शयनानि क्रियन्ते (= रच्यन्ते), though value of this suggestion appears doubtful.

196b. कर is puzzling. It appears that कर-केलि = केलि कर meaning केलिम् कर्तुम् (?) = केल्यर्थे.

201b. Does this go with णव-कुसुम-पत्त in c? Then विअसंतु is plural (cf. p. 43 end).

201d. The line should read अइरेहइ णव-सर रइ-विसेसि.

206. There is some obscurity in a. Apparently the whole stanza has a reference to the भमरु in 205c. So भमरु (plur.) is the subject and तरु (i. e. their flowers) the object of लिहंति. विज्झंति in the light of b would be (भमराः) तीक्ष्णैः कण्टकाग्रैः विध्यन्ते. There remains परप्पर (= परस्पर) which cannot be made to fit in the context. If somehow it can mean परंतु, then the logical sequence would be quite all right: भमराः तीक्ष्णैः कण्टकाग्रैः विध्यन्ते, परंतु (= तथापि) ते तरुकुसुमानि लिहन्ति, तानि तीक्ष्णानि कण्टकाग्राणि च नैव गणयन्ति । यतः रसिकानाम् तनुः रसलोभेन वीर्यते । (= त्यज्यते) प्रेममोहेन च पापम् (= अनिष्टम्) न गण्यते ।

209ab. इ is emphatic.

210a?

211ab कंदर्पद्वेण संतप्ता (अहं जाता) । मम अंगे नाथः (एव) संधारकः, न सहकारः.

216*a*. कसिणकाय (the dark-bodies ones) must be cuckoos as there is reference to singing. ab mean "there on the top of the Suraktaka (tree) the cuckoos are releasing as it were songs-with-gestures accompanied by various sentiments".

217*b*. कारुण-पउक्कउ is a compound.

218*c*. With रत्थ° cf. सामत्थ = सामर्थ्य (Hc. II-22).

220*ab*. गजंति तरुणि । णवजोव्वणीहिं पियकंखिरिहिं (जा) गाह पडिय (सा) सुणि.

223*b*. इत्थंतरि य = अत्रान्तरे च.

223*c*. पहावरिउ = ?

† This quotation is from that portion of the गायालक्षण of नंदियुद्ध which VELANKAR thinks, on several grounds, to be spurious. Now the quotation no. 2 above expressly gives the name of कवि नंदहु. This possibly suggests that नंदियुद्ध had to his credit, besides the गायालक्षण, a treatise on अपभ्रंश metres from which our quotation no. 2 as also most of the stanzas of the GL. onwards from st. 75 have been taken.

ADDITIONS AND CORRECTIONS

Grammar.

P. 9, foot-note 1: ससिहर occurs in the Karpūramāñjarī also (GHOSH's edition, p. 48, l. 19).

P. 17, § 37: For a different and more probable derivation of महि see § 73 (4), p. 40.

P. 22, § 48 ii: ससंभंत° and ससंक्रिय° occur in the Vasudevahindī also (Part I, p. 47, l. 12 and p. 40, l. 19; p. 41, l. 17 respectively). Some of these words were formed perhaps analogically: ससंभंतो as contrasted with असंभंतो etc.

Metres.

P. 54 beginning: ष्वंगम (Pr. pp. 297-300) with the scheme 6+4+4+4+3 bears only a superfluous resemblance with our रासा. For the former should begin with a long, need not have a caesura after the 11. or 12. mora and should end with an iambic. These features clearly differentiate ष्वंगम from our रासा.

P. 59 end: The variant for यत्रादौ दोषकः etc. in the व्याख्या on st. 82 (दोषकेन सह अष्टाविंशत्यधिकं शतं मात्राणां दोषकेन विना अशीतिमात्राप्रमितमणहरनामा चंदायण छंदः) found in the Ms. N. (not availed for the text-constitution) removes the difficulty. It shows that चंदायण without the Dohā is called मनहरण which appears to be the early form of the मनहरछंद of the Gujarati prosody.
